Underground Explosion

U.S. Touches Off No-Fallout Blast As Tests Resume

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States began its underground nuclear test series with an apparently junior-size blast packing a punch equivalent to 1,000 tons of TNT—possibly less.

President Kennedy announced that Friday's low yield, no-fallout underground explosion took place in a remote, highly guarded section of Nevada. There was no advance announcement and the blast was not audible in the nearest city, Las Vegas, 65 miles away.

In his statement, Kennedy said, "The detonation has produced no fallout. This is in marked contrast to the Soviet nuclear tests in the atmosphere."

He added, "The United States once again reaffirms its readiness to negotiate a controled test ban agreement of the widest possible scope."

Fifteen days ago, the Soviets junked their three-year moratorium on nuclear testing. They have fired 10 blasts into the atmosphere in their current test series.

There have been reports from an authoritative source that a series of 24 U.S. weapons was ready for testing as soon as Kennedy gave the go-ahead.

1. The White House described the explosive yield of the blast only as one of "low yield."

2. A University of California seismologist reported that his seismograph had recorded the earthshock from the blast. He said its magnitude on the earthquake scale of reckoning was 4. That would be a moderate earthquake.

It was the 104th nuclear explosion at the Nevada proving grounds. The 103rd shot was set off nearly three years ago.

There were no reporters present at the blast. The White House had announced that no on-the-scene coverage by news media would be permitted at future U.S. nuclear tests.

Word of the blast was flashed to Washington over an open telephone line from the test site to Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, who relayed it over a direct line to the President at the White House.

But at Las Vegas a sonic boom from a fast flying airplane 28 minutes after the blast was mistaken for the nuclear explosion.

In the old days of testing—before October 1958—mighty flashes, mushroom clouds and devastating booms rewarded viewers who turned out to watch the show.

Settlements 'Trickle In' At GM Plants

68 Reach Accord; Union's Executive Board Calls Parley

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers union's International Executive Board gathered here today for a special meeting while the union and strike-plagued General Motors Corp. plodded toward settlement of local-level issues across the country.

Early today 68 plants with workers represented by the UAW had settled and three represented by the International Union of Electrical Workers also had reached agreement. GM has 129 plants represented by the UAW and six by the IUE.

A number of plants were unable to operate because of local strike. About 242,000 workers remained out of their jobs. GM employs about 350,000 hourly workers.

Settlements came in a trickle Friday. When Walter P. Reuther, UAW president, left the bargaining table at midnight, he said about 15 meetings were being held at the local level around the country and "a number of them are rather close to settlement."

Reuther said the executive board meeting would decide whether to call a meeting of the union's national council. The council has the authority to approve a new contract and quash any local disputes.

President Kennedy has asked that agreement be wrapped up in time to get back in full production by Monday, but it appeared that the request couldn't be met. The union and GM have agreed on a national economic package and on most national work rules, but dispute over local level work rules and production standards stalled full agreement.

Reuther took time out from bargaining at GM Friday to sign the UAW's new agreement covering 25,000 workers of American Motors Corp. The historic settlement, which calls for profit-sharing, must be ratified by local AMC members.

5 Ore Cars Derailed In Columbiana Area

COLUMBIANA — Five ore cars in a Pennsylvania Railroad Co. freight train were derailed at 2 a.m. today at the intersection of the tracks and Route 344 at the Kaiser Aluminum plant a mile west.

The diesel engine heading the long line of cars was damaged in the mishap. A railroad detective said the engine apparently became unhitched.

As it then slowed down, the remainder of the train drifted into the rear of it.

Four of the cars were empty and one was full. The right-of-way is expected to be cleared by noon. None of the rails was damaged.

Senate Opens Battle Over Filibusters

Dixie Opponents Seen Holding Top Hand In Rules Tiff

WASHINGTON (AP)—Southern opponents appeared to have the upper hand today as Senate leaders signaled for the start of a fight over a proposed rules change to make it easier to choke off filibusters.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana planned to move to take up a measure that would permit debate to be cut off by three-fifths of the senators present and voting, rather than the two-thirds as is now required.

With the support of Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, Mansfield said he would follow with a petition to limit debate on the proposed rules change.

Under this procedure, a vote will automatically come one hour after the Senate meets Tuesday on the question of whether to limit debate. This is expected to mark the turning point of the battle.

If debate limitation is invoked—and it will take a two-thirds majority under present rules—then each senator will be allowed to speak for only one hour.

This would clear the way for bringing the proposed rules change to a vote. But if the move to limit debate fails, the Southern forces will be able to filibuster against any action.

Civil rights forces have protested that the end of a session is the worst possible time to try to change the Senate's rules. They contend it plays into the hands of the Southerners because senators are tired and anxious to go home.

The filibuster has been Southerners' most potent weapon in beating of civil rights legislation. Sen. Richard B. Russell, chief strategist for the Dixie forces, contends that advocates of a new rule for halting filibusters are more interested in passing legislation to alter the economy.

Since the Senate first adopted an antifilibuster rule in 1917, 32 attempts have been made to limit debate. Only four times have the moves succeeded—the last time in 1927.

West Aides Progress On Berlin Steps

Foreign Ministers To Conclude 3-Day Conference Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Western foreign ministers were reported today to have made good progress in agreeing on military, political, and other countermeasures that may be used by the Allied powers against Soviet pressures on West Berlin.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk and the foreign ministers of Britain, France and West Germany were scheduled to wind up their three-day Washington conference early this afternoon.

Rusk was scheduled to go to New York Sunday for the opening days of the U.N. General Assembly, beginning Tuesday, and for exploratory talks on Berlin with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

The foreign ministers meeting with Rusk—Britain's Lord Home, France's Maurice Couve de Murville and West Germany's Heinrich von Brentano—are reported to consider the Rusk-Gromyko probing operation of crucial importance. Britain, and apparently the United States, favor an East-West foreign ministers meeting on Berlin in October or November if Gromyo brings word that Soviet Premier Khrushchev is ready for negotiations on what the Western powers would consider reasonable terms.

On the other hand, information from inside the conference is that the four Western ministers agreed that they will not become involved in any negotiations in which Khrushchev clearly intends to dictate the terms and humiliate the West. If that is the attitude which Gromyko displays to Rusk, the judgment of the Western ministers is reported to be that prospects of a shooting war over Berlin will be very great.

Informants said the Western foreign ministers have considered the possibility of making Berlin an open city or of establishing U.N. agencies in Berlin as a guarantee of its independence.

The Western policy meeting here went into its final day amid a rash of rumors about possible new moves by the Soviet Union and Communist East Germany in the Berlin crisis. The ministers learned Friday that the U.S. government has reports that the East German regime plans "the arrest and mass deportation" of people living on the Communist side of the Berlin and East German boundaries.

One of the major problems before Rusk and the foreign ministers has been what counteraction to take if the Reds undertake new moves.

ANXIETY-RIDDEN NATIVES line up for their ration of food in Elisabethville, Katanga, at a camp set up under United Nations auspices. Warpainted Tribesmen Join Assault

White Officers Are Leading Blows On Main U.N. Center

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—U.N. troops were reported reeling today under a massive assault by Katanga soldiers and warpainted Baluba tribesmen on Kamina, the main U.N. military center in rebellious Katanga Province.

A radio message from the Kamina control tower received at Usumbura, in the neighboring Belgian trust territory of Ruanda-Urundi, said resistance of the 500-man Irish and Swedish garrison was weakening and "it will be difficult to hold out much longer."

White officers led the massed attacks.

A bloody struggle, touched off Wednesday by the U.N. decision to use force to restore Katanga to the rule of the Congo's central government in Leopoldville, persisted also in Elisabethville, the capital, and at the mining town of Jadotville, 60 miles northwest of Elisabethville.

U.N. helicopters ferried food and ammunition to the isolated Irish garrison of Jadotville, beseiged by hordes of hostile Katangans in six days of savage fighting. A Dublin dispatch said the Irish government listed 3 men as missing and presumed dead, 5 wounded and 27 captured from a Jadotville defense force that originally totaled 150.

Sniping continued in the tree-lined streets of Elisabethville. City power lines were reported cut again. A clandestine station calling itself Radio Free Katanga quoted President Moise Tshombe as saying his regime is conducting total war against the United Nations.

Two jet aircraft of Tshombe's tiny air force bombed and strafed U.N. troop positions, which have neither fighter planes nor antiaircraft batteries.

U.N. headquarters was reported to have asked member governments urgently for jet fighters. Informed sources said Sweden was considering sending in some.

Casualties have been heavy and U.N. sources said Katangans regained control of large sections of Elisabethville.

The bitterest fighting, however, appeared centered at Jadotsville and at Kamina, in the north.

Milk Driver Arouses 5 In House Blaze

Fire In East End Apparently Started By Cigarette Ashes

An alert milk truck driver aroused the occupants of a double house in the East End this morning, enabling five persons to flee the burning home.

Don Moore of Calcutta, a driver for Vernon Dell Dairy, spotted smoke coming from a front bedroom in the half of the frame dwelling at 938-940 Railroad St. occupied by John Norris.

Pounding on the front doors of the Norris home and that occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Hull, Moore awakened the families and Norris, who had been asleep on a downstairs couch, called firemen.

Norris, Mr. and Mrs. Hull and their two children fled from the house. Norris' wife and two children were staying with relatives

Plans Pushed For New Link Of Lake Road

Engineering work still is moving ahead on schedule for the second southern phase of an East Liverpool - Ashtabula freeway, stretching from the city limits in California Hollow to a point at Substation, the Board of Directors of the Lake Erie-Ohio River Highway Association was assured Friday in a conference with State Highway Department officials at Salem.

Preparation of detailed plans and specifications for the stretch should be complete by late November or early December, which means the department will be ready to call for contractors' bids early in 1962, the group was told.

In previous announcements, the department had indicated it might let contracts late in 1961, but the new schedule will mean no delay in construction, the highway officials said. Although a contract might have been let late this year, no significant work on construction could have been done before next spring, they pointed out.

East Liverpool was represented at the meeting at the Salem Golf Club by Atty. Francis H. Lang and E. R. Chandler, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce. A. P. Morris of Salem is the third member of the association's board from Columbiana County. J. Paul Mossman, manager of the Youngstown Area Chamber of Commerce, is president.

The city's California Hollow-West End Freeway, now more than 50 per cent complete, also represents the southernmost segment of the lake-river highway. It ends at the north city limits. The next phase of the lake-river road will begin at the city limits and extend to a point where the Y. & O. Rd. intersects Routes 7 and 30 at Substation.

The association's board members conferred with William McKenna, head of the Division 11 Highway Department at New Philadelphia, and Carl Campbell, head of the Division 4 office at Ravenna, and members of both division staffs.

Man Drowns In Fall Into Yellow Creek

Edgar Wilson, 50, Wellsville Potter, Loses Life Fishing

A Wellsville potter drowned Friday night in Yellow Creek while on a fishing trip with a step-son.

The body of Edgar (Ed) Wilson, 50, of 1822 Buckeye Ave., was discovered at 1:30 a. m. today, about an hour after dragging operations started. The mishap was timed at 10 p. m.

Authorities said Mr. Wilson tumbled into the deep water from a steep embankment while fishing with Joseph Fluharty.

They were approximately 200 to 300 feet upstream from the old underpass on abandoned Route 7.

Fluharty told authorities that the two were fishing along the bank from some old pieces of concrete when Mr. Wilson lost his footing and tumbled into the water. He said he got a hold of him once but was unable to drag him from the water.

Fluharty then walked back to Wellsville and told his mother of the accident. She notified the Wellsville police who in turn called the fire department.

Fire Chief Robert Lewis said it was estimated Mr. Wilson had

Commissioners Fire Coroner Of Hancock

Hancock County commissioners have dismissed Dr. George S. Naymick, county coroner.

The Weirton physician confirmed his dismissal today after receiving a letter from Courthouse officials in New Cumberland.

Commissioners have made no appointment to fill the vacancy as yet. Justices of the peace will assume duties as deputy coroners until an appointment is made.

The letter dismissing Dr. Naymick cited his residence in the Brooke County sector of Weirton as the reason for the action.

Dr. Naymick was appointed as coroner several years ago when David Thomas of Weirton served as president of County Court.

Fallout Shelters Eyed

'Berlin' Revives Interest In City Civil Defense Unit

With cold war shivers running down their backs, more and more East Liverpool householders are finding their way to an almost-forgotten cubbyhole office at City Hall—Civil Defense headquarters.

The Berlin crisis, Khrushchev's rocket rattling and President Kennedy's stern replies have brought thoughts of atomic warfare and fallout shelters to the forefront for the first time since the early days of the Korean conflict.

Mrs. Edna Sweeney, CD Council secretary, said the number of inquiries directed to her office in the last six weeks is far greater than at any time since the North Koreans marched across the 38th Parallel into South Korea and touched off the last war.

East Liverpool householders, judging by their enquiries, are concerned primarily with construction of home shelters against atomic fallout. Others, in addition to their concern for themseives and their families, want to know what they can do to aid CD work, Mrs. Sweeney added.

The CD Council here is ready with stacks of literature on most phases of civilian survival in nuclear war. The booklets and pamphlets are available for persons who call at the CD office on the second floor of City Hall.

They will be mailed to individuals who are unable to make the trip downtown to pick them up, Mrs. Sweeney added.

The most comprehensive publication on shelters is titled Civil Defense Technical Bulletin, with been in the water about an hour when they arrived. The Wellsville Boat Club sent four boats to the area and dragging operations started between 11:30 and midnight.

The body was found in 10 feet of water about five feet from shore.

Operating the boats were Dave Burroughs, Don Hepp, Webb Thompson, Victor Carosiello, John Erwin, Richard Spahr and Richard Barnes, Boat Club members, and Wellsville Patrolman Robert Wellington.

Firemen set up portable lights along the bank. Chief Lewis said the water is very deep along the shoreline.

He pointed out raising of the Ohio River by the new superdam at Stratton has caused the water to back up into Yellow Creek. The water has reached a level where there is no shallow shoreline anymore, he said.

Lewis said this condition also exists in the Ohio River.

Six volunteers responded to the call with the emergency truck. Two Jefferson County sheriff deputies were on the scene.

They obtained a release from Jefferson County Coroner J. P. Smarrella and the body was taken to the Haugh Funeral Home at Wellsville.

Mr. Wilson was born in New Cumberland May 1, 1911, son of Mrs. Vaughn Loy of Wellsville, and the late Howard Wilson. He was employed at the Wellsville China Co. for 12 years. as the family prepared to move today.

Asst. Chief James Pelly said the fire originated in the front upstairs bedroom. The cause hasn't been determined definitely, but cigarette ashes may have been dropped in the bedroom, he added.

Firemen received the alarm at 8:40 a. m. and had the blaze under control 12 minutes later, using an oxygen mask to enter the bedroom.

The fire was confined to the bedroom where the principal damage occurred. There also was some heat and smoke damage to other rooms and slight water damage, Pelly said.

Firemen also had to open holes in the ceiling and floor of the bedroom to make certain the flames hadn't extended.

Patrolman's Hunch About Fire's True

When city firemen received a fire call to a Railroad St. home this morning, Patrolman Paul A. Burson Jr., desk officer, referred the call to Patrolman William E. McDaniel in the downtown cruiser because the East End cruiser temporarily was off the air.

As McDaniel headed for the home, he had a strange hunch. When the house number was relayed to him, the officer, who resides on W. 4th St., learned the hunch was correct. He owns the double frame dwelling!

Fire Destroys Garage Of Home Near Signal

LISBON — Fire destroyed a 1½ - story garage at the home of Howard Davis near Signal at 12:30 p.m. Friday, according to Lisbon volunteer firemen.

Firemen were unable to save the garage but they wet down the nearby house and only the paint was scorched.

Firemen said bare electric wires sparked and ignited a can of gasoline on a shelf. The can fell to the floor, spreading the blaze.

The flames destroyed a refrigerator, stove, tools and children's toys. Davis said the garage was insured.

plans and specifications for construction of a basic underground fallout shelter and details on the food, water and supplies that would be required for a family of four to six.

The booklet includes details on constructing the shelter and data on ventilating, lighting and emergency sanitation facilities.

The drawings depict a poured concrete structure with 2 feet 3 inches of earth cover. It is 12 feet long, 9 feet 4 inches wide and 7 feet 6 inches high. The walls are 8 inches thick — solid concrete — and the roof slab is 6 inches thick.

The shelter also can be incorporated into small separate structures such as garages or garden houses, the booklet says. Another drawing shows how a similar shelter can be erected in the basement of a home, utilizing two of the cellar walls.

Three feet of earth cover generally will provide "a high degree of protection" against radiation, the booklet points out. Similar protection will be provided by 24 inches of concrete; 7½ inches of iron or steel or 3 inches of lead, it adds.

After attack, virtually every locality in the U.S. would be subject to fallout that would require inhabitants to remain in shelters for two weeks or more, the booklet says. In many areas, radiation levels might permit leaving a shelter for intermittent periods or permanently after two or three days. Since the density of fallout at any particular spot is difficult to predict, any shelter should be prepared for two-week occupancy, it recommends.

Shelters should provide at least 12½ square feet of floor for each inhabitant and ceiling heights should not be less than 6½ feet, it recommends.

The East Liverpool CD office has another booklet entitled Home Protection Exercises" that is designed mainly to guide the average family in preparing in advance against warfare — including preparation of a shelter, first aid lessons and stockpiling of emergency supplies of food and water.

There is a booklet, "Facts About Fallout Protection," which in brief phrases and a few cartoons explains the dangers of fallout and how to guard against it. Another called "Between You and Disaster" lists the foods and other supplies required for an emergency shelter.

Another pamphlet with basic information on evacuation, home shelters and fallout is called "Six Steps to Survival."

The East Liverpool CD office has ample supplies of all the booklets, published by the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization.

There's even a wallet-size card titled "Civil Defense Preparedness" that boils down the instructions to about a dozen sentences. It includes the various siren signals that would be used to warn of imminent attack and explains how national defense radio messages would be confined to two spots on the radio dial — 640 or 1240 kilocycles.

Over the years, the local CD has conducted a series of courses on home preparedness for women's clubs and other groups. The six-week course is designed to prepare the average housewife for the emergencies she would meet under enemy attack. It includes classes in first aid and home nursing, emergency food stores and fire-fighting.

The course has been presented for the Business & Professional Women's Club, Women of the Salvation Army and the Quota Club. Some parts of the course, at least, have been presented for virtually every parent - teacher association in the area.

Organization of new home preparedness classes will be discussed when the Women's Civil Defense Council meets Wednesday night at 7:30 at City Hall.

Mrs. Sweeney said any women interested in joining the group or in obtaining information about civil defense may attend the session.

The office is open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The telephone number is FU. 5-5394.

And joining CD isn't like joining the Army, Mrs. Sweeney reminded.

A woman caller told her Thursday she was anxious to join the local CD force, but her husband was against it.

"He thinks it's like joining the Army and I'll get sent away somewhere," she explained.

Mrs. Sweeney said the women's organization is aimed mainly at helping housewives prepare their homes against the event of atomic attack or natural disaster. The women's branch has been active three years, meeting each month.

ing some 75 to 100 workers. The Men's Division, headed by Harold Sneddon, who also is serving as assistant campaign chairman, will need another 50 to 100. These two divisions contact several hundred smaller and independently-owned businesses.

The Professional Division, which will solicit gifts from doctors, attorneys, dentists, etc., will be headed by Mrs. Norman Birnbaum and Mrs. Alexander Fisher. They are recruiting some 20 to 25 workers.

Robert W. Gray, Boy Scout executive, will form the Chester Division of about 25 to 30 volunteers and Melvin Whittington of the Crucible Steel Co. will head the Newell Division of 15 to 20 solicitors, both in the West Virginia area. The Industrial Division, largest in the Campaign organization, will be directed by William Hocking Jr. of the Hall China Co. and William F. Porter of the Globe Brick Co. Some 400 to 500 workers may be included in this division by the time its roster is completed.

Both Chairman Emmerling and Assistant Chairman Sneddon today urged volunteers to phone Community Fund headquarters (Fulton 5-2082) and offer their help, saying, "the fullest participation will be required if we are to achieve success in the coming campaign. Each of the six agencies — Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, YMCA, Salvation Army, Recreation Council and USO — depend on the Community Fund for their major maintenance in the coming year. If these agencies are to survive in our community, the campaign must be successful. We must have enough workers to contact every resident in the area; everyone should be given the opportunity to contribute to these important community agencies."

Opening date, campaign goal, division quotas and other campaign details will be decided at next week's meetings of campaign and association officials.

Columbiana Woman Hurt

A Columbiana area woman was hospitalized with injuries suffered in a one-car crash on Route 14 about five miles east of Columbiana at 5:30 a. m. today, according to the Lisbon State Patrol.

Officers said Olga L. Gillman, 32, of Columbiana R. D. 2 was headed west when she apparently lost control of her car and went off the right side of the highway. It struck an embankment, careened left of center and overturned.

The 1956 sedan was demolished. She is in "fair" condition at Salem City Hospital with a fractured right collarbone and contusions and abrasions of the forehead. She was cited for reckless operation.

Two were injured in a sideswiping collision on Route 165 two miles north of Unity Friday morning at 7:20, the patrol reported.

Officers said a car driven by Sylvia Massey, 24, of East Palestine and a bakery truck driven by Richard Lowe of Youngstown were involved. Lowe lost control of the truck after the two sideswiped and the truck struck an embankment.

How Are Your Nerves?

It is crossing the minds of many lately that there's nothing new about a war of nerves except the name.

Like most of the other things that men claim to have discovered about human nerves, the war that's waged with imagination was known ages ago.

If the tireless gadflies of the Kremlin could have their way they would have scared every non-Communist to death by this time. They would have convinced every Communist that all truth resided in the Kremlin, and they would have brain-washed all waverers to the point of helplessness.

This hasn't happened.

It isn't going to happen.

Those who know most about the way things are done inside the Soviet Union and Communist China are least nervous. They see the Communist movement for what it is—a forced-draft industrial revolution that squeezes extra work out of people by telling them it's done for the sake of ideology.

It's like an attempt to keep people fired up with war slogans throughout the duration of a long war. First the slogans wear thin, then they wear out. The war of nerves may hurt its perpetrators more than it hurts its victims.

THE FACT is that the Soviet Union never has had any interest in Communism as such, which has been experimented with only in experimental communes set up at various times in the United States.

It has peddled its ideology like a patent medicine pitchman. But it has avoided using its own nostrum in therapeutic doses.

All this has been successfully concealed by one of the most fantastic projects of preying on human fear ever conceived. By taking advantage of every natural fear and creating unnatural fears where no natural ones existed, the psychological warriors of the Kremlin have peopled the world with goblins, spooks, ogres, imps and specters—all red.

These creations now are found under ever overturned rock. They lurk under beds and spring from behind trees.

They fill the news from Berlin, and when that crisis finally has passed and the Kremlin has created a new one, they will fill the news from there, too.

They spring out from places in the United States where no one ever suspected anything sinister before. Every objectionable move, every disputed word or thought immediately is pointed to as the suspected hiding place for one of these Kremlin-manufactured fears.

IT'S ALL PART of the war of nerves.

Berlin is only part of it—the temporary focal point.

A few months ago it was Cuba. It has been Laos, Egypt, the Congo, Korea, Taiwan in the past. It will be Brazil, Mexico, Japan, India, Hawaii in the future.

But this isn't new for Americans—this relentless nibbling at the people's confidence.

It has been tried against them before. In the 19th century it was being tried so relentlessly that the United States was driven to declare in the Monroe Doctrine that the Old World should quit trying to undermine the New World. Russia was working at it hard, then—czarist Russia.

Britain worked at it, first in the attempt to hold Americans in subjugation, later in an attempt to destroy their new government. France worked at it with a plot to take over Mexico for the Holy Alliance.

Spain would have liked to topple America, but was too decadent to do a good job. The Japanese had their turn. And of course the Germans and even the Italians, who never were cut out for this sort of thing.

WAR OF NERVES is not new.

Americans have endured wars of nerves before. They endured them at the hands of hostile Indians.

They sweated out the odd-against chances of survival on raw frontiers. But by keeping their nerves steady instead of allowing them to fall apart they managed to survive and prosper.

If at any time your nerves start to go to pieces under current stresses and strains, think back to the time of your great-great grandfather. He was surrounded by things that could destroy him, though he had been assured on the highest authority that atoms were forever unsplittable.

A Time For PTA Re-Evaluation

Complaints that some Parent - Teacher Association meetings are devoted too much to entertainment and money-raising must be countered with an analysis of the over-all picture of the PTA and its problems.

There are many PTAs in which the link between instructor and home is developed through greater understanding and cooperation, with the education of the child and improvement of the school program being furthered as the result.

However, there are other PTAs in which the basic aims of the organization are bogged down in games and preparations for school parties and bake sales and the highlight of the meetings is either a skit by students or serving of refreshments.

A survey conducted by The Review four years ago pointed out the difficulties faced by PTA leaders. Officers stated that in fund-pinched school budgets there is no money for certain supplies and teaching aids which the PTA provides.

Officers and teachers lamented that the only way they could attract many mothers and fathers to meetings was to put the youngsters in a playlet or musical program.

The PTAs have established goals, and there is no real excuse for not meeting them. But PTA is comprised of teachers and parents. Having equal responsibility in education of the child, they first should work together to insure their relationship is one which paves the way to assisting the child.

Now, at the beginning of a new term, is an excellent time to re-evaluate the PTA program to see if the individual organization is meeting its 1961-62 challenges and its newly-defined goals.

They Didn't Know How Loaded

It couldn't have been a case of the United Nations not knowing the gun was loaded in Katanga Province in the Congo.

Having been on the scene for a year, with everything in plain sight, the Swedes, Irishmen and Indians who make up the U.N. enforcement arm in Katanga Province must have known the gun was loaded.

But surely they could not have known how loaded, on the basis of what has been happening to them since trouble erupted between them and local belligerents in Elisabethville.

They have been encountering jet fighting planes, armored cars, disciplined troops and white officers who know an uncomfortable lot about the military game.

They have been meeting major resistance, in fact, and there is a possibility they may be overmatched. The next step, if this were to be so, would give the United Nations something to think about.

The United Nations either would have to step up its rate of military exertion against Katanga Province or lose everything it has been fighting for in the Congo—unification of the Katanga rebels with the Republic of Congo.

It would have to prove it could lick the irreconcilable Belgians who never have been reconciled to the loss of the Congo, or admit it was powerless to protect other new states in Africa against interference from Europe, Asia, Latin America at the discretion of would-be interferers.

This shapes up as the touchiest situation for the United Nations since that fateful November day in 1950 when troops that had pushed ahead to the Yalu River discovered they were fighting Chinese "volunteers."

The United Nations never did figure out what to do about that, except to retreat and hang on until it could achieve an armistice in July 1953.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

"Miss America" issue got settled for 1961 although the same cannot be said for Berlin crisis, atomic bomb threat to civilization and global Mr. Dracula Contest.

More extensive planning, all out concentration and deep precision routines went into selection of a beauty queen than seems to go into summit meetings and world crisis conferences.

Well, folks never needed entertainment and relaxing events more, so why complain? If the world could get back to a point where only disputes were over bust, waist and ankle measurements, what a break it would be for civilization! We'd all feel so much more at ease.

For a brief interval beautiful faces and figures got call over some of the globe's ugliest people. Grace and loveliness knocked crudeness and savagery out of the picture temporarily.

Interest in legs, facial perfection, charm and general glamour triumphed over interest in fists, voice throwing, men's baggy suits, unpraised shoes and desk thumpings. It was good for morale.

For a little while the peaceful southern town of Ashville, N.C., shoved Moscow, Belgrade, Peiping and Bizerte into the background. A 19-year-old gal of rare beauty, Maria Beale Fletcher, took some attention away from Nikita Khrushchev, Fidel Castro and other violent foes of freedom.

But it was not too easy to forget that, as eye-filling American beauties paraded in the elaborate ceremonials, the "Four Horsemen of Apocalypse" were almost all set to come down a grim runway along the borders of Hell, to the applause of some extra evil global characters, each dressed up for a Mr. Global Annihilation Contest.

Atlantic City event was not a complete waste of time. It made a lot of folks forget for a few hours some male extra ugly mugs and grotesque shapes.

New "Miss America" was formerly a dancer with Radio City Rockettes. This put her on her toes for Atlantic City pageant, obviously.

LAST "OPEN END" PROGRAM should have been called "Open Barroom." It was boozy, cheap and vulgar featuring the rowdy atmosphere of an all-night saloon dispute. Few Sunday nights in airwave history have been so degraded.

Jim Lanigan, who beat Tammany boss DeSapio and may be new Tiger chief, is a Harvard man. That rumbling you hear is Dick Croker, Charlie Murphy and Boss Tweed turning over in graves.

The first Chief Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court was John Jay. He later resigned, stating that he did not think the Supreme Court would ever amount to much.

It's Kickoff Time Again

Industry Fights Price Edict

By Victor Riesel

On the morning of Sept. 7, President Kennedy approved a telegram to 12 men which declared war on the steel industry. Actually the wire was signed by his press aide, Pierre Salinger, who now rates with "Hurricane Carla" in the executive suites of the nation's steel companies.

Victor Riesel

As in all wars, there was a series of events leading up to the firing of the first shot—the ricocheting of which won't end for a year.

This first shot may, in fact, touch off a war not alone with steel but with all of U.S. industry.

For months now the President and the secretary of labor, Arthur Goldberg and White House economists have been discussing strategy for freezing prices.

They decided on the tactic of public assault. In effect, the White House would openly dare industry to raise the tabs on its merchandise.

ON SEPT. 6, in line with this decision, President Kennedy signed 12 letters to the heads of the major steel corporations. They were mailed while copies were quietly "leaked" to several newsmen.

The letters, urging the steel industry not to raise prices, arrived in the regular mail on the secretarial desks in the steel company offices during the morning hours of Sept. 7. Most of the steel company presidents and board chairmen were out.

About 11:30 a.m. these were followed by a telegram from Pierre Salinger. Since the press, said Salinger, had gotten wind of the President's letters, the White House would release them to avoid confusion.

The telegram had come just a few hours too late. Newsmen already had placed calls to such men as Roger Blough, chairman of the board of U.S. Steel and Arthur Homer, chairman of Bethlehem Steel.

There had been no advance notice of the presidential letters. None of the company chiefs had been quietly called in and first asked to freeze prices. Most of them did not know of the communication until they read of it in the newspapers.

Mr. Salinger's wire merely sent tempers higher than the 93-degree heat.

THE STEEL COMPANIES then returned the favor. The paper war began. Bethlehem Steel replied by mail—and the President could have read it all in the press. U.S. Steel hand delivered its answer at noontime Sept. 13—by which time the company letter already had leaked into city rooms.

The White House now complained that all this was not fair.

President Kennedy had expected the companies to reply en masse, at one time. Nor was he pleased with the fact that the companies were telling him his Council of Economic Advisers was not really that well informed, and that the unions were showing as little restraint as a teen-ager with her first lipstick.

With the first volley over, we war correspondents began wondering how it would affect the steel industry's negotiations with the steel union next spring.

WOULD THERE BE another long steel strike? There will be if the prices are frozen and Dave McDonald's United Steelworkers demand another big pay-package—as has Walter Reuther.

This isn't guesswork. There was a speech made by Conrad Cooper, U.S. Steel executive vice president, last July 14. I dug it out from where I had tucked it away when I flew off to another barbed front.

In it Mr. Cooper in effect, tells Arthur Goldberg that neither the labor secretary nor the administration appear to know how to settle disputes.

"Many people," said Cooper, "have been quite disturbed by the rapidity with which Washington has intervened in several labor disputes during the first months of the new administration."

COOPER STATES that under the present circumstances the unions are more powerful than industry. He disagrees with Goldberg's formula for industrial peace—a formula which calls for use of the President's 21-man labor-management board and the admission of public representatives to the bargaining table.

All this would lead to "government control of virtually all major bargaining, a stepping stone for the establishment and enforcement of national wage and price policies. . . ."

Then, answering charges by labor that industry had developed a hard policy, Cooper said:

. . . "If the term 'soft policy' points in the direction of appeasement and an attitude of 'labor peace at any price,' then surely this extreme must be ruled out as being unworthy . . . . There is no room for soft heads in this field of endeavor. . . ."

It does look like a lot more will be hot on the steel front than the blast furnaces.

Cotton Corners

By Truman Twill

Dear Nephew: Fall has come to Cotton Corners.

The leaves are drifting through our linden tree. The tips of the buckeye trees are bare.

The foliage on the zinnias has turned brown. The tomato plants have given up, the chrysanthemums and marigolds have taken over responsibility for color arrangements in the flower garden and we have received our first Christmas catalog.

This to me is the most wonderful yet the saddest transformation of all the seasons.

Perhaps because of my age but more likely because of the way Spring has acted lately, I rarely get a rise out of the end of Winter. But I will have to concede that the end of Summer couldn't be staged better if it had been done in Hollywood.

Even the temperature was taken care of this year in meticulous detail. The day it began to drop, all other autumn effects were in full blast. The crabgrass was as high as a small dog's eye. The pears had the wonderful russet color that has been the despair of artists for centuries.

The wind was bearing the most exciting perfume there is — distant wood smoke. Why doesn't some perfume works put this in a bottle and sell it to indoor girls who want to bowl over outdoor men?

Of if they can't get that into a bottle, they should try the scent of fallen apples lying in high grass that has been wet down with a hard rain. There are a dozen wonderful fragrances the perfume people haven't done anything about. Where did they get the idea that people want to smell like flowers when they could smell like burning apple wood, apples, plums, an asphalt highway on a hot afternoon, fallen leaves and newly plowed ground?

But I have strayed from my theme: Fall at Cotton Corners.

In the morning the greatest project of logistics ever tackled by men occurs here as it occurs everywhere — the movement of umpteen million educational shock troops to their battle positions. First come the janitors, then the teachers, then the kids.

Then the whole army is returned to its quarters for the night — and all this takes place with efficiency and dispatch that would be the envy of a military transportation specialist.

The county fair is over. Another Berlin crisis is at its height. Football players have pushed baseball players out of sight, except for a last flurry of interest during the World Series.

Soft drink stands have posted "See You in the Spring" signs. People are closing up summer cottages and figuring out where to keep boats until it's time to put them back in the water.

Women are wearing heavier clothing, and I note that some men who had peeled down to the buff are getting back into undershirts.

Your Aunt Effie has been telling me about the things she hoped I'd get done this summer, and I have been telling your Aunt Effie about the things I did get done this summer.

The sheep in the meadow are acting the way a misled lyric writer once said they behaved in June, when things are "bustin' out all over." I am thinking about buying a new cold-weather cap with retractable ear tabs, and I detect a liverish cast in the once-golden tan on babes who debark at the filling station to give the local yokels a look at what's going on down the road.

It's Autumn, and each year when it comes I'm conscious of something that's impossible to believe in Winter, Spring and early Summer. This is the fact Autumn brings the same relief we feel when we go to bed. We get tired from the things we do in Summer — not tired of them but from them. We need to doze and nod until it's time again to be up and doing next Spring.

Fall has come to Cotton Corners. It has come to me. Give our regards to all and good luck to the family scholars who are, I hope, deep in the books again by this time.

Suspicions Revived

By David Lawrence

Russians May Have Made Robot Space Orbit

Whether Gagarin and Titov, the Soviet spacemen, actually circled the earth or whether they merely parachuted to earth from a previously fixed location after a satellite had gone around the globe has not been conclusively proved as yet but high officials in Washington say that the American project whereby a simulated astronaut traveled around the earth in orbit this week proves that it is theoretically possible that the Soviets didn't actually put a man on the two satellites as claimed.

David Lawrence

Officially the course of the government here is not to express any doubts on the subject. This is a wise bit of diplomacy but it is conceded privately that proof of the alleged flights by Gagarin and Titov is still lacking.

As one space expert put it: "They may have had a man in their satellites and he may never have been ejected, or it may have crashed and someone else could have parachuted from a fixed location and claimed to have gone around the world himself."

A comparison of what was done by the American satellite and what Maj. Gagarin did follows: (Each made one orbit of earth.)

	U.S. Robot	Gagarin
TIME
	1 hour 49 mins.	1 hour 48 mins.
ALTITUDE
	17,500 m.p.h.	17,500 m.p.h.

The artificial astronaut was constructed so it could breathe, sweat and talk just like a human being, and, except for two minor defects, it did just that.

Ground stations throughout the world monitored the flight of the American capsule and kept a close check on its progress.

The artifical astronaut was a small, grey box of instruments 3 feet high, 2 feet wide, and 1 foot thick.

It was laced with hoses, pipes and wires designed to put the same load on the capsule's environmental control system as a man would. In fact, three main purposes were fulfilled:

1. Oxygen was inhaled and carbon dioxide was exhaled, and this filled the cabin with heat and moisture, creating conditions comparable to a man breathing.

2. A man's body heat was simulated by an electrical heating element which indicated the capsule temperature a man might endure.

3. Pre-recorded messages were played back from two tape recorders designed to permit an evaluation of the whole communications system.

THE MESSAGES were similar to those an astronaut himself might make in flight. The voice was that of the assistant flight director, Howard Kyle. He used the same sort of words as astronauts would employ in actual flight to test the space-to-ground radio.

All around the world the tracking stations listened. One minute after the launching the signals began to come in loud and clear.

A station in Australia was the last to have "contact" with the voice tapes, as there developed a technical difficulty which can be remedied. There was also a slight leak in the oxygen system.

Other radio instruments on board did send back information on vibration, acceleration and temperature in the capsule. This, of course, wasn't pre-recorded but was provided simultaneously by scientific instruments.

A special color movie camera, automatically operated, was placed in one of the portholes to photograph the view. Another camera was pointed through a periscope, and a third snapped shots of readings on the instrument panels.

IN ADDITION, there were some devices around which can be operated either automatically or by a human astronaut. Thus, the spacecraft turned itself into the proper position in orbit when it first reached outer space.

Also, the on-board timing mechanism was geared to trigger the retro-rockets which slowed the capsule after completing its orbit and sent it into a planned target area in the Atlantic Ocean near Bermuda. The capsule, with all the scientific instruments in it intact, was recovered.

Just before the flight, the information chief at Cape Canaveral said: "It's supposed to do everything a man could do." Apparently the artificial astronaut did just that.

What does it all prove?

It demonstrates that manned and unmanned flights around the world are feasible.

There still is no proof that either Gagarin or Titov did it. Indeed, there is a suspicion that they were trained to come down in a parachute at a given spot and that neither one really had circled the earth.

This suspicion arises from the strange things they were quoted afterwards as saying which do not stand up on a scientific basis—such as the claim of Titov that he was able to distinguish plowed from unplowed fields at a distance of 160 miles up in the air.

Letters To The Editor

I would like to thank the public for their response on our tag day Sept. 9 and also thank the boys and girls who helped us.

I would like the public to know our Marine Corps League Auxiliary, though small in number, is still very active in spite of the fact the league has disbanded for the present time.

A statement was made in town Saturday that we were frauds, that we collected money and went on vacations. This, of course, is not true. We make monthly trips to Butler, Pa., to the Deshon VA hospital; also, we have an Easter party and Christmas party each year for the veterans.

We have our records and proof of our hospital work. We extend an invitation to any doubting Thomases to join us in our trips to the hospital to see how we work and how much the veterans there enjoy our visits and to know they are not forgotten even in peacetime.

Bringing Up A Family

By GARRY C. MEYERS

Children Must Face Inevitabilities

Often in this column, I have entreated parents to exercise great patience and use considerable time, if necessary, to win the child, from about 20 months to three or four years of age, to comply with a special request — to close the door, bring a book or pick up an object from the floor. I have urged the mother not to shift from a request to a command in such instances. I have further advised the mother to avoid commanding a youngster so young to do anything for her, but to request instead; this in the interest of winning the child's co-operation. Then, I have added, "But when you command with No or Don't, command just once. Expect him to obey, or else."

ALSO I HAVE noted that routines like going to bed, going to the toilet, coming into the house are rarely matters for requesting. They are just things to be done regularly, usually being very different from irregular activities commanded.

Sometimes it's necessary just to pick up the tot and take him to bed, for instance. No occasion for a verbal command then or for any punishment.

Now and then a youngster under three or four may suddenly refuse to let you wash his face or hands or put on his coat, mittens or rubbers. This usually happens when you are about to go out with him.

You may not have time to win his co-operation. It's something that must be done rather promptly.

IN SUCH A case, proceed to wash his hands and face or put on his clothes, by force, if necessary, being as skillful as you can. He must learn to face some inevitabilities then. With some practice, his resistances wane or disappear.

You can, of course, reduce the number of such emergencies by more often planning ahead, so as not to be pressed for time.

Some crying scenes may arise when you wash the young child's hair. His resistance may have risen because some soap or water got into his eyes. Even if force becomes necessary, slowness and patience may be desirable. By having him lie down as you proceed, you might prove to him you can keep the water from his eyes.

My bulletins, "Stubborness" and "How To Teach Child Meaning of No," may be had by sending a self-addressed stamped envelope to me in care of this newspaper.

Confident Living

By Norman Vincent Peale

Don't Manufacture Unhappiness

En route by train from Chicago to New York, I went to the dining car and was seated opposite a man and his wife. The woman was conspicuously well dressed. She was stylishly gowned, had a strikingly beautiful fur piece around her shoulders and was wearing very handsome jewelry. You didn't need unusual discernment to perceive that there must be money in the family. This woman was not pleased with anything. She complained about the air-conditioning not being properly adjusted. She complained that the table cloth looked mussy and insisted on the steward's putting on a new one. She complained about the food. She complained about the weather. Everything was wrong.

HER HUSBAND seemed to be an easy-going, genial sort of man. He didn't seem to be paying much attention to his wife's fussing. He and I got to talking. He asked what line of business I was in. I told him I was a minister. I asked what his business was, and he told me. Then he said, "My wife is in business, too."

"She is?" I responded in some surprise. "I didn't take her for a businesswoman."

"Oh, yes," he said. "She's in the manufacturing business."

"Is that so? What does she manufacture?"

"She manufactures unhappiness," he answered. "Her own unhappiness."

Well, the atmosphere at the table grew a bit chilly. But presently we were able to thaw it out a bit and finally draw the woman into an objective discussion of whether it can be said that unhappiness is, for the most part, self-manufactured.

THE PLAIN FACT is, I think, that we ourselves are the cause of most of our unhappiness. To be sure, our physical condition affects the way we feel. So does the social climate, the way our personal plans are working out, local conditions, even the condition of the world.

And much of the time the conditions are adverse, causing us irritation, tension, disappointment, depression, frustration of all kinds. But that is the way things are for everybody — always were and always will be. So it doesn't explain why some human beings have such happy dispositions and others are always gloomy and low in spirit. When you come right down to it, happiness depends primarily upon an attitude of mind.

A man once told me of himself: "With me it used to be all negativism. There were a great many people I didn't like. Things rubbed me the wrong way. I was wearing myself out with depressing thoughts and I was full of anxieties. I didn't think humanity had any future, either, and I could have given you a long list of all the catastrophes which someday might overwhelm us.

"Then I went to a Billy Graham meeting when he was here in New York. The spirit of God got to working in me. I followed Billy's advice and committed my life to God. As a result I became filled with new hope and peace of mind. God led me into new ways of thinking. And the time came when I realized that I was happy, real happy.

"I don't mean my troubles all just disappeared. But many things that had eluded me seemed now to come to me of themselves. And what is more, I now actually take pleasure in the problems that previously got me down. At least I'm not afraid of them any more. All in all I have a sense of harmony in my living."

ONE THING is sure — this man stopped manufacturing unhappiness for himself. By a new attitude of mind he became a happy person.

In the Book of Proverbs we read, "Who so trusteth in the Lord, happy is he." If you trust in God you have the secret of happiness at all times, anywhere, no matter what your circumstances are. But you have to practice remembering this and feeling it. As we practice, so do we become.

If you practice unhappiness, you will be an unhappy person. If you practice happiness, you will be happy. It's just that simple. The royal road to happiness is the attitude, "Trust God and practice being happy."

PROMINENT MEN OF FAITH

Pope John XXIII

Moving with a warm, humble spirit, Pope John XXIII has moved the hearts of many. He visited carpenters in their Vatican shop and ordered them wine; he talked with Vatican workers on their jobs and raised their salaries. He visited prisoners in jail, the first Pope to do so in 90 years.

The 79-year-old Pope, who hopes to promote the unity of all Christian faiths, starts his day at 4 a.m. with prayers. The former sergeant, a chaplain in the first war, has moved far to become the leader of 500 million Catholics around the world.

Timed For Annual Show

Dahlia Garden Now Riot Of Color

To the surprise of none of his friends, J. T. (Jack) Eccleston's flower garden near Calcutta is a riot of color.

The garden at the Eccleston home on St. Clair Ave. Ext., near the Calcutta United Presbyterian Church, will be even more beautiful as additional dahlia buds burst into bloom, for the 36th annual show of the East Liverpool Dahlia and Floral Society tonight and Sunday at Westgate School.

Eccleston's new garden was started from scratch last summer when he was forced to move from Chestnut St. Ext. because of construction of the new city freeway.

He and his wife were dismayed when they learned their home would be taken because they had spent 35 years building up the soil to the point they wanted. When they left, the top soil ranged from 12 to 22 inches deep.

Beginning anew, the Ecclestons transplanted virtually all of their flowers and shrubbery and most of it survived despite being moved in a period when many wondered whether the plants could stand the change.

"Considering everything, we're very satisfied," Eccleston commented, pointing out the lack of rain had hurt all gardeners.

Eccleston also has an oddity in his garden — a sunflower "tree" apparently planted by birds.

Rather than growing as conventional sunflowers do, the "tree" is loaded with blossoms. "I've never seen anything like it in all my years of gardening," the retired potter said.

Eccleston's more famous for his dahlias, however, originating several varieties and capturing awards at many dahlia shows.

Named for East Liverpool, his "Ceramic Beauty" was the highest scoring dahlia in the nation in 1953, winning five major awards in various shows and was the subject of an article in American Home magazine.

Eccleston recently returned from Syracuse, N. Y., where he served as one of the judges in the dahlia exhibit at the New York State Fair.

100-mph. City Driver Fined Among 16 In Palestine Court

A 22-year-old city driver, who fled Ohio Highway Patrol officers at speeds up to 100 miles an hour, was among 16 area motorists penalized at hearings Thursday before County Judge Herbert Arfman at East Palestine.

Boyles of Alice St., East Palestine, was fined $10 and costs for speeding, and Robert Garvin of Rogers R.D. 1 was fined $50 and costs — with $35 suspended — for false registration.

Charles Mohr of E. Adams St., East Palestine, was fined $25 and costs for theft of a tire from a Unity service station.

Mike Mercure of New Waterford was fined $5 and costs for permitting a dog to run at large.

Palestine Trio Unhurt In Car-Truck Mishap

EAST PALESTINE — Three city women who are teachers at Boardman apparently escaped injury when their car and a bakery truck collided on Route 165 about a mile north of United Friday morning.

Witnesses said Miss Sylvia Massey of W. Martin St. was driver of the auto in which Miss Jean Parker of E. Main St. and Mrs. John Jenkins of Unity Rd. were passengers. They were en route to Boardman.

Their auto and a Nickle's Bakery Truck from Youngstown apparently sideswiped on the road, and the truck overturned.

Wheat Program Policy Clarified

LISBON — Columbiana County farmers should understand what their permitted wheat acreage is for 1962 prior to planting, according to L. E. Lora, county Agriculture, Stabilization Conservation committee office manager.

Area producers are being reminded by a card from the county ASC office, pointing out that if the producer is not sure what his permitted acreage is, he should check with the office here.

Of concern to many producers is the change in the law which provides that farms previously planting up to 15 acres may now plant only 13½ acres for 1962 harvest if they have planted at least 13½ acres during the previous three years. If less than 13½ acres was planted during the years 1959, 1960, 1961, the acreage permitted is the largest acreage planted in any one of these years.

Area producers with any question concerning their permitted wheat acreage should contact the county office located over the Farmers National Bank, or phone HA. 4-5525 immediately.

Lisbon Stuns Wellsville, Throws Rival For 30-8 Loss

Henry Nets Pair; Devils Gain 2nd

The Review Sports
SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 16, 1961 PAGE 9

By CHUCK CRONIN
Review Sports Writer

Lisbon High's quick - hitting Blue Devils struck for touchdowns the first two times they got the ball, then capitalized on the sluggish play of Wellsville to score a surprisingly easy 30-8 triumph Friday night.

A crowd of 2,000 turned out on a brisk night to see the well-coached Blue Devils open their home campaign with a victory. It followed an 18-6 decision over Carrollton last week.

Piling up the yardage with a razor-sharp T formation attack that included a few razzle-dazzle type surprises, Lisbon punched across touchdowns in every period to gain revenge for a 40-14 setback of last season.

LISBON dominated the action throughout, driving to paydirt for 74 and 60 yards for the first pair of touchdowns and marching shorter distances for the others.

Penalties, especially the ones charged for personal infractions, proved costly to Wellsville. The Tigers lost regulars Jack Culp, an end, and tackle Alvin Jackson, plus guard Mike Thompson before the first half was over. The trio left by way of ejection although there were no flare-ups among the performers.

Lisbon piled up an overwhelming margin on the ground, with 200-pound fullback Gary Peruchetti and halfbacks Dave Rose and Jeff Henry accounting for most of the team's 313 yards by way of rushing.

With star fullback John Euill bottled up after a great performance last week, Wellsville netted only 116 yards rushing and was forced to settle for three quick plays and a punt in each offensive drive.

HENRY, 165-pound senior, scored two of Lisbon's touchdowns on runs of 35 and 22 yards. Fullback Peruchetti boomed into the end zone on a one-yard buck, Rose romped over from two yards out and halfback Tom Coontz scored on another short dash.

Neither team tried much in the way of an aerial attack. Lisbon tried only five passes and completed one. Wellsville quarterback Roger Ours attempted one and sub Bill Reed another, but neither clicked.

Veteran Coach Bud Bucher of Lisbon praised his husky linemen for "a fine job, a better performance than against Carrollton last week."

Lisbon effectively throttled Wellsville fullback Euill throughout and the big senior had a rough go of it most of the night.

Lisbon's Robert Nicholson, 200-pound senior end, piled up most of Wellsville's outside runs before they could gain much momentum. Big Larry Buckley and guard Dave Nicholes helped stop Euill on the inside.

THE BURDEN of Wellsville's running game fell on the shoulders of halfback Alvin Thompson and the 157-pound junior turned in a worthwhile effort.

Thompson carried 12 times for 38 yards, but two of his long runs were nullified by "little" mistakes of backfield-in-motion or offsides.

Frank Luckino, scrappy 150 - pound senior, scored Wellsville's touchdown on a one-yard buck through the middle. Luckino had set it up with a twisting 34-yard run in one of his few offensive moments.

Luckino's defensive play was one of the few good individual efforts on the squad. He made plenty of tackles in the secondary from his defensive halfback post.

Lisbon exhibited a well - balanced variety of offensive plays in driving 74 yards in 12 plays for its first touchdown in the opening period. The big one was Henry's 19-yard race from the Wellsville 45 to the 26. Peruchetti slammed into the end zone from one-yard out for the score.

AFTER Wellsville punted, the Blue Devils mounted a 60 - yard drive which they covered in only eight plays. Henry swept down the left sidelines on a reverse for the score with 1:45 left in the first quarter.

The second quarter included three quick charges of personal fouls against Wellsville and the ejection of the two regulars, plus Thompson who recently joined the squad.

Penalties moved the ball from the Wellsville 41 to the 6 where Lisbon banged away without success and turned over possession on the one-yard line.

Lisbon moved 28 yards in four plays for its third touchdown in the second quarter, with Henry breaking loose for 22 yards for the score. Tim Bucher's rush for the conversion was held short.

Lisbon ran the count to 24-0 on Rose's one-yard run with 8:15 left in the third quarter. It capped a 14-yard drive in six plays following a Wellsville fumble.

WELLSVILLE'S only successful drive of the game started on the Tiger 38. Leyda, Thompson and Ours alternated in carrying the ball to the Lisbon 35 and a first down.

Then the wiry Luckino squirted into the Lisbon secondary and broke loose. He was caught from behind at the one-yard line, but scored on the next play. Ours drove over for the conversion.

Lisbon's final quarter touchdown was made by Coontz on a one-yard buck that climaxed a drive of 65 yards in 11 plays.

Guiding Lisbon's fast - moving T formation attack flawlessly were quarterbacks David McPherson, 145-pound sophomore, young Bucher and occasionally Henry.

Beaver Local Rips Chester, 40-0, For First Victory

BEAVER LOCAL'S tough little halfback Carl Hoppel (40) appears to be stopped by his own teammate No. 85, Larry Carroll, but actually Carroll was attempting to apply a block for Hoppel on a Chester defender shown tackling Hoppel around his left leg. The action took place in the second quarter of Friday night's game at Chester. No. 15 is Beaver quarterback Mike Klembara. Beaver Local routed the Panthers, 40-0.

Defensive Forces Spearheaded By Myers

By BOB DUFFY
Review Sports Editor

Beaver Local turned its vicious defensive forces loose in the first quarter to build up an early lead and then coasted to a 40-0 victory over the Chester Panthers before some 1,400 fans Friday night at Chester City Park.

Statistics showed Beaver Local had not made a first down and picked up only three yards rushing, but nevertheless Coach Jack O'Rourke's team sported a 13-0 lead.

The victory was the first for the "eager Beavers" after playing Leetonia to a 14-14 tie last week. Coach Dom Amedeo's team, unable to get its offense clicking, dropped their second straight of the campaign.

Beaver Local scored about every way possible last night. One came on a blocked punt, another on an intercepted pass, two through the air and another pair on the ground.

Halfback Francis Possage, hero of last week's tie withe Leetonia, scored twice for the Beavers while Carl Hoppel, Gary Berhar, George Wilkinson and tackle Roger Walker tallied one each.

Playing just shy of sensational on the forward wall was Beaver Local's junior guard Dave Myers, who was the fifth man in the Chester backfield during the first half.

Myers blocked three Chester punts and was in on another. He was directly responsible for Beaver Local's first touchdown and set up another one in the second quarter.

The first two punts blocked by Myers didn't count, since Beaver Local was called for being offside, but the next two did.

CHESTER'S Don Reese went back to punt on his own 21-yard line midway through the first quarter. Myers came busting through to block the kick and send it rolling into the Panthers' end zone where Walker, Beaver Local's right tackle, fell on the ball for the first six points.

Hoppel put the finishing touches to the first TD by adding the extra point for a 7-0 lead.

Two plays later, Chester quarterback George Bebout's pass was picked from the air by Possage on the Beaver Local 49-yard line and the little speedster raced 51 yards for the second touchdown. An attempt for the extra point by sophomore Jim Smith failed. The score came with 3:46 remaining in the first quarter.

Late in the first quarter, Reese attempted to punt again, but the pigskin smacked into No. 35 (Myers) again and Beaver Local took over on the Chester 40 - yard line as the second quarter opened.

It took the Beavers four plays to get to the Panther 24 where Klembara hit senior end Wilkenson with a pass on a touchdown play covering 24 yards.

THE TD came with 10:01 left in the first half and Hoppel added the extra point.

Another Beaver Local drive was stopped when Chester's Kelse Johnson recovered a Beaver fumble on the Chester 33-yard line.

Reese finally got his first punt of the evening away cleanly and put Beaver Local back on its 36.

A Klembara-to-George Gaydos pass netted 28 yards and was the big gainer in the Beaver Local drive which carried to the Chester 28-yard line. From this point the Beavers pulled a razzle-dazzle play to net their fourth touchdown.

Klembara flipped a short pass into the left flat taken by Wilkinson who lateraled to Possage and the speedy halfback traveled the remaining distance for the TD with only 17 seconds remaining in the second quarter. After a pass for the extra point failed, Beaver Local took a 26-0 lead at intermission.

The second half saw the Beavers cross the goal after extensive drives down the field.

THE FIRST sustained march was for 84 yards and climaxed by Klembara's second touchdown strike, a short seven-yarder to junior end Berhar with 2:54 left in the third quarter as Beaver Local controlled the ball for over nine minutes. Possage added the extra point to build a 33-0 margin.

Hoppel was the workhorse of the third period drive and also the bread and butter man on the fourth quarter touchdown march which started on the Beaver Local 21-yard line.

After Beaver Local had picked up a series of three first downs to the Chester 38, Possage reeled off a 26-yard dash to the 12-yard line. Possage got nine more yards to the three and Hoppel hit the right side to score with 2:16 remaining in the game. Hoppel also converted for the 40th point.

The deepest penetration by Chester was to the Beaver Local 41-yard line in the first quarter.

O'ROURKE'S team rolled up 12 first downs and 266 yards on the ground, with another 86 in the air on the strength of Klembara's good right arm. The total offense for Beaver Local was 346 yards.

Other defensive stalwarts for the Beavers were guard Dave Stacey, end John Detchon and Walker.

Leetonia Scores Late, Nips Rootstown, 12-8

Leetonia High's Bears owned their first football victory of the season today after a rally in the dying minutes earned them a hard-fought 12-8 triumph over Rootstown Friday night at Rootstown.

Coach Ike Farrah's Bears drove 59 yards in the final three minutes to gain a come-from-behind victory.

Halfback Guy Falzetta scored the touchdown on a four-yard buck that brought Leetonia from behind. A pass to Joe Gallo accounted for the conversion.

Leetonia had trailed, 8-6, until the final minutes when Paul Conrad led offense clicked for the necessary yardage to spark a rally.

The sensational Conrad scored Leetonia's first touchdown in the third quarter on a three-yard run that capped a 69-yard drive. Frank Guerrier's run for the conversion was held short.

Conrad scored two touchdowns last week when Leetonia tied Beaver Local, 14-14.

Rootstown took the opening kickoff and marched 70 yards for its touchdown. Dick Martin swept right end 22 yards for the score, and Joe Mesojudec ran over the conversion.

Leetonia controlled the ball most of the second half.

East Palestine Bows, 20-8, To Beaver Before 3,500

EAST PALESTINE — Flashing a well balanced running attack, Beaver invaded Ohio here Friday night and returned to Pennsylvania with a 20-8 victory over the Bulldogs.

A packed house of over 3,500 fans watched the Beaver eleven pile up a 20-0 lead before East Palestine broke the ice with a last-period touchdown.

A 35-yard pass play from Dave Mooney to Ed Rose netted Beaver its first touchdown. Lauson Cashdollar took a pass from Mooney for the two-point conversion. The TD came midway through the second quarter.

Time ran out on East Palestine which drove to the Beaver five-yard line where the first half ended.

Another pass play going 35 yards from Mooney to Jim Sanford set up Beaver's second TD in the third quarter. Mooney climaxed the drive by going over from the one.

The Pennsylvanians struck again in a hurry when they recovered a fumble on the East Palestine 24 and carried to the two-yard line from where Sanford bolted over.

Ron Doll and Dave Smith set up East Palestine's only touchdown which was scored by Bill Smith from two yards out. Dave Smith tallied the extra points.

Avella scored in every period and had a 33-0 lead before South Side hit paydirt in the final period on a 42-yard pass play going from Chuck Schmidt to Wilbert King. Tackle Jim Todd had recovered a fumble on South Side's 40-yard line to get the Rams started.

Third Period TD Breaks Tie As Midland Loses, 20-14

Injuries Prove Costly In 2nd Straight Loss

By ANDY NUZZO

The Midland Leopards, showing great improvement on defense over their first performance, dropped a hard-fought game Friday night to the Canon-McMillan Gunners, 20-14, before some 1,700 fans at Midland High School Stadium.

Canon-McMillan fell on end Paul Cacic's fumble of the opening kickoff on the Midland 43-yard line. Halfback Hank Foley then raced 30 yards around end on the first play to the Midland 13 and it looked like last week all over again.

The visitors had a fourth and one situation on the Midland five when Foley hit the line, fumbled and Tom Flasco recovered for Midland on the three.

MIDLAND moved out to its 45 before being forced to punt. Sam Zigerelli's kick slid off the side of his foot and went out of bounds on the C-M 41-yard line.

Midland halted a C-M bid on the Midland 32. After having a 60-yard jaunt called back because of an illegal procedure penalty, fullback Earl Vaughn fumbled and John Subrick fell on the ball on the Midland 27.

Here the Gunners launched their first touchdown drive, going the 27 yards in four plays. Fullback John Scarton plunged over from the four for the score. Dave Miller added the PAT.

Midland came back in the second period and scored, Vaughn going over from the six with 6:15 remaining in the quarter. It climaxed a 70-yard drive which took 11 plays. Ken Epley added the extra point to knot the score at 7-7.

The second C-M drive covered 59 yards in five plays. It was set up when guard Paul Maggi intercepted a Midland aerial on his 37 and returned it to his 41.

Quarterback Mel Podraski hit Foley with a 44-yard screen pass for the TD. Miller again added the point to give C-M a 14-7 lead, with 2:10 left in the half.

MIDLAND started to march for its second touchdown when Vaughn returned the kickoff to his 40-yard stripe. The payoff play as a screen pass from quarterback Trbovich to Vaughn from 25 yards out, the last play of the first half. Epley converted to send the teams to the locker rooms tied at 14-14.

C-M took the second-half kickoff and went 58 yards in 13 plays, the climax coming when Scarton plunged over from the one. The try for point failed when the pass from center went over Miller's head.

Midland made one last bid in the third quarter. The Leopards took the kickoff following the final G-M score and started a march downfield. Epley led the drive until he was injured with 3:35 remaining in the quarter and had to leave the game.

Until hewas hurt, Epply had run four of the seven plays on the drive and had picked up 25 yards.

Midland drove to the C-M four-yard line where, on second down, halfback John Chuldenko was caught for a 12-yard loss.

Two Trbovich passes went astray and Midland managed to get the ball for only six plays the remainder of the game.

LEADING THE ground attack for C-M was Foley who reeled off 133 yards in 19 carries. Halfback John Coligan added 84 yards in 16.

Midland was led once again by Vaughn. The junior fullback ate up 77 yards in 11 tries. Epley managed 55 in 8.

A big blow was dealt Midland when senior guard Henry Tookes injured his knee early in the game and had to be removed. The full extent of the injury is not yet known.

Midland will travel to Beaver next Friday.

Yanks Set HR Record In Split With Tigers

Maris Now Must Hit 4 Home Runs In 5 Games To Tie Ruth's Record

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Homerless in seven games, Roger Maris faces the imposing task of hitting four home runs in five games in order to tie Babe Ruth's 1927 home run record of 60.

Maris, who spurted 24 games ahead of Ruth's pace on July 25, was caught Friday night as he came up with only one single in nine at-bats while the American League leading New York Yankees were splitting a twi-nighter with second-place Detroit.

Maris, with 56 home runs, now is even with Ruth, and must hit four homers in the next five decisions—two against Detoit and three at Baltimore—to match Ruth under the 154-decision allotment specified by Commissioner Ford Frick.

Teammate Mickey Mantle fell further behind Ruth with a single, double, three walks and a sacrifice fly in nine trips against the Tigers. Mantle, with 53 homers, needs seven home runs in the five games to get a draw with the Babe.

The Yankees, however, set a major league team home run record as Yogi Berra and Bill Skowron connected in the 11-1 opening game victory and boosted the New Yorkers' total to 222 for the season, one more than the New York Giants in 1947 and Cincinnati Reds in 1956.

In the nightcap, the Tigers used a two-run homer by Norm Cash and a solo shot by Steve Boros for a three-run third that proved enough to subdue the Yankees 4-2. That left the Yanks magic pennant-clinching number at four.

Any combination of four New York victories and-or Detroit defeats will give the Yankees their 11th pennant in the last 13 years and the first under rookie manager Ralph Houk.

Boston edged Baltimore 3-2 in 10 innings, Minnesota nipped Cleveland 3-2, Los Angeles beat Chicago 9-5 and Washington defeated Kansas City 3-1.

In the National League, the second-place Los Angeles Dodgers crept closer to first-place Cincinnati by belting Milwaukee 11-2 and cutting the idle Reds edge to 4½ games. The San Francisco Giants took over third place with a 5-1 victory over Chicago in the only other game scheduled.

The Yanks won the first game easily behind Whitey Ford, who scattered eight hits in a route-going performance for his 24th victory against three defeats. Berra's 20th homer, off loser Don Mossi (14-7) with one on in the fourth, put the Yankees ahead to stay.

Ron Kline (7-8) spaced seven Yankee hits in the nightcap, giving up a homer to Clete Boyer—the New Yorkers 223rd—in the fifth and an unearned tally in the eighth. Cash and Boros smacked their homers in the third.

Koufax Sets Strikeout Record; LA Trails 4½

Associated Press Sports Writer

Swift southpaw Sandy Koufax has broken a 50-year-old strikeout record, continued Warren Spahn's 12-year-old jinx and maintained the Los Angeles Dodgers' chances of catching the front-running Cincinnati Reds in the National League pennant battle.

Koufax set the Milwaukee Braves down on five hits Friday night, striking out 10 en route to an 11-2 victory that pushed the second-place Dodgers within 4½ games of the Reds, who were idle for the second night in succession.

The 10 strikeouts gave Koufax 243 for the year—the most ever achieved by a left-hander in modern NL history. Rube Marquard, who fanned 237 for the New York Giants in 1911, held the previous record.

Spahn, meanwhile, met his usual fate against the Dodgers on the road, losing for the 12th consecutive time since he last beat the then Brooklynites in their home park in 1948. The 40-year-old Milwaukee ace was seeking victory No. 20 for the sixth year in a row and the 12th time in his career.

Instead, he lasted less than two innings, his string of 10 straight complete game victories came to an end and the Braves dropped into fourth place behind San Francisco. The Giants whipped the Chicago Cubs 5-1 in the only other NL game scheduled.

In the American League, Roger Maris went homerless for the seventh game in a row and, with 56 homers, fell even with Babe Ruth's record 60-homer pace of 1927, as the New York Yankees split with Detroit. The Yankees won the opener 11-1, reducing their magic pennant clinching number to four before the Tigers won the nightcap 4-2. Boston beat Baltimore 3-2 in 10 innings, Minnesota edged Cleveland 3-2, Los Angeles walloped Chicago 9-5 and Washington defeated Kansas City 3-1.

Koufax, who had lost six straight at the Coliseum and had not won at home since June 11, gave up a leadoff homer to John DeMerit in the first, allowed another run to cross in the inning on a doubleplay, then closed the door for his 16th victory against 11 defeats.

Spahn (19-13) got past the first 1-2-3, but Frank Howard opened the second inning with a liner over the left field screen for homer No. 15. Warren then lost his control, walking the next three men on 13 pitches before Norm Sherry hastened his exit with a two-run single. The Dodgers wound up with six runs in the inning.

The Dodgers continued their assault on replacements Ron Piche and Tony Cloninger in the fourth by scoring five runs—three on a homer by Daryl Spencer, who shared hitting honors with Wally Moon. Moon had a double and three singles in five at-bats and drove in three runs.

Murphy Nets Three TD's For Clippers

COLUMBIANA — It was "Dale Murphy" night here Friday when the junior fullback scored all three of Columbiana's touchdowns in a 20-6 victory in the season's opener over McDonald.

The 180-pound fullback plunged over from the one-yard line for the first touchdown of the contest in the second quarter, went over from six yards out in the third period and took a nine-yard pass from quarterback Dave Bailey for the third TD in the final period.

Coach George Fisher's crew built up a 20-0 lead before losing the shutout in the fourth quarter when McDonald's Ed Dolsak raced 20 yards for the visitors' lone tally.

105-Yard Run Features Win For Quakers

SALEM — Quarterback Bill Beery scored three touchdowns—one a thrilling 105-yard run—as Salem High scuttled Youngstown North, 28-14, here Friday night.

The 105-yard run to paydirt by Beery came in the first quarter when he intercepted a North pass five-yards deep in the Salem end zone.

He scored two others, one on a 44-yard punt return in the second quarter, and another on a nine-yard run in the third period, to spark the victory.

It was Salem's second straight success, after a 16-0 win over Struthers in the opener last week.

Halfback Dave Edling scored Salem's other touchdown on a 17-yard run. The Youngstowners scored both times in the fourth period, with halfback Pat Paris going four yards each time.

Nicklaus Battles Wysong For Amateur Golf Crown

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Power-hitting Jack Nicklaus, a veteran at 21, battled for his second National Amateur golf championship today against Texan Dudley Wysong, one year older but far less experienced.

Wysong expected to see the Nicklaus tee shots in front of his, but it didn't seem to bother the slim 170-pounder from McKinney, Tex., who picked up valuable tips from another Texan—the great Byron Nelson.

"I'm going to play this course with my game and let him play the course with his game," Wysong said before teeing off for the 36-hole finals over the Pebble Beach layout.

Nicklaus, who won the amateur title in 1959 and currently holds the collegiate crown representing Ohio State, overwhelmed Sonny Methvin of Little Rock, Ark., 9 and 8 in their semifinal scheduled for 36 holes Friday.

It took Wysong the full distance to bounce the only remaining foreign entry, Ireland's Joe Carr, by a 2-up margin despite Dud's 5-up margin after 18 holes. Carr simply wouldn't give up and Wysong's morning-hot putter cooled in a fog-shrouded afternoon.

Jack was 14 strokes under par for the 104 holes he has played in this event. Wysong was 14-over-par for 113 holes.

While Nicklaus had won several major titles and represented the United States on the Walker Cup team, Wysong wasn't even among those mentioned in preview stories of these national championships.

He told newsmen he has been practicing daily to get into shape for the title bid and that through the past six years Nelson has been giving him helpful tips as a friend of the family.

Pitt, Miami Clash Today In TV Battle

By The Associated Press

Miami (Fla.) and Pittsburgh, disdaining early-season tuneups, plunge into the middle of the major college football wars today at Miami in the feature contest of a slim program.

The game is scheduled for 3:30 p.m. (EST) and will be televised nationally over the ABC network starting at 3:15.

Miami is a slight favorite over the rugged Panthers, who have two hard-running backs in Fred Cox and Bill Clemens to bolster their usually potent power attack.

West Virginia takes on Richmond at Morgantown, W. VA. Richmond held the Mountaineers to a 6-6 tie last year and has a fine halfback in Dick Stoudt.

Iowa State of the Big Eight meets an old rival in Drake, and the Cyclones are expected to see just how well their diversified attack operates.

In other games of more than ordinary interest Wyoming meets Montana at Billings, Utah State entertains Texas Western and Utah is host to Colorado State.

NFL's 14 Teams To Open 42nd Season On Sunday

By ROBERT MOORE
Associated Press Sports Writer

Nearly a third of a million people will turn out in person Sunday to watch the National Football League's 14 teams launch the circuit's 42nd season in play-for-pay action from New York to San Francisco.

The biggest crowds of 60,000 will view the fireworks in Philadelphia's Franklin Field where the champion Philadelphia Eagles clash with the Cleveland Browns and in New York's Yankee Stadium where the New York Giants battle the St. Louis Cardinals.

Elsewhere, 53,000 will see the Los Angeles Rams at Baltimore; 42,000 the Washington Redskins at San Francisco; 40,000, the Detroit Lions against the Green Bay Packers in Milwaukee; 40,000, the Chicago Bears at Minnesota's Metropolitan Stadium in Minneapolis, and 25,000, the Pittsburgh Steelers at Dallas.

Additional thousands will witness the inaugurals on television.

Philadelphia's collision with the Browns very likely will prove the day's eyebrow lifter. The Eagles, unbeaten in four NFL exhibition games, have a new quarterback in Sonny Jurgensen, a new coach in Nick Skorich and a bitter remembrance of the 41-24 licking Browns dealt them on opening day a year ago.

The Browns have finished second in the Eastern Conference the past three years and are tired of their bridesmaid's role. Quarterback Milt Plum seems to have finally arrived with more poise, confidence and skill.

Green Bay, Western Conference defending champion, piled up a 5-0 record in exhibitions. The Packers, with Bart Starr at quarterback, have just about the same team which bowed 17-13 to the Eagles in the 1960 title game.

Detroit and Baltimore expect to have considerable to say about the Western Conference title. The Lions, beaten only by the Eagles (23-14) in the warmups, have speed, fine receivers and a rugged defense. The Colts have added Jimmy Orr, who should be a favorite target for passing demon Johnny Unitas.

The Giants-Cardinals get-together will be a battle of cripples. Both teams have ailing quarterbacks, New York's Charlie Conerly and the Cards' Sam Etcheverry.

OSU's Warfield Injured In Head During Practice

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Bad breaks have put the brakes on the main breakaway threat of Ohio State's football team, and Coach Woody Hayes must be hoping his star sophomore runner isn't really injury-prone.

Paul Warfield of Warren, prize hope at left halfback, was hurt again in Friday's practice. It was a minor head bump but it came only 20 minutes after the start of a scrimmage marking Warfield's return to action after being out since Wednesday with a leg injury.

In the final drill until Monday, the Buckeyes' No. 1 offensive unit behind quarterback Bill Mrukowski's 9-for-14 passing rolled up five touchdowns in the first 15 minutes. End Chuck Bryant caught five of the aerials.

All but four members of the 1961 Hardin - Simmons football players are from Texas.

Coach Appeals For Support Of Potters In Lions Address

An appeal for fan support of the inexperienced Potters was voiced Friday afternoon by Football Coach Bob Hedmond in addressing the Lions Club at the Travelers Hotel.

"I hope the fans will stay 'off' the boys," Hedmond declared, pointing out one East Liverpool fan called a Potter player 'yellow' in the Niles game.

Hedmond said his team is young and woefully lacking in experience and is bound to make mstakes. "There are going to be some long nights," he warned, but pointed out the fans shouldn't take it out on the gridders who are doing their best.

The team's morale is bound to drop lower if it loses and players can lose interest. Their interest will be decreased if they feel the fans are not going to support them, but back only a winner, Hedmond continued. "Give them a pat on the back once in a while," he urged.

The coach pointed out there are 54 players on the squad, but five are out with injuries. The remainder includes 25 sophomores, 13 juniors and 11 seniors.

He reviewed the offensive and defensive units, explaining there are only two players on the offensive team with any experience. On the defensive team, only one lineman has had much experience with a couple of others getting some game experience last year.

All of the sophomores and three juniors will be dressed for the reserve game tonight with Wellsville, Hedmond said, adding that he wants to give the players as much experience as possible, hoping for a change in the grid picture in the future.

He introduced Rey Peduzzi and Nunzio Polichene, line coaches, and Jack Bair, backfield coach.

Hedmond was introduced by Richard Martin, program chairman.

Mrs. Blanche Eli, Civic Music representative, spoke on the membership drive, and Leo C. Lawrence invited the club to attend the dahlia and floral show today and Sunday at Westgate School.

NOTICE FOR BIDS

Sealed bids will be received by the Director of Public Service-Safety of the City of East Liverpool, Ohio, until twelve o'clock noon, Eastern Daylight Savings Time, September 25, 1961, for the purchase of a motor vehicle with a 12 cubic yard packer body suitable for use in the Garbage Removal Department according to specifications now on file in the office of said Director, with a simultaneous sale to the bidder of a 1954 Ford truck and 12 cubic yard packer body attached thereto now owned by the city (which is no longer fit for public use) with the stipulation that the sale price of the city vehicle be subtracted from the purchase price of the new vehicle as a means of determining the lowest and best bidder and to enter into a single contract for the sale of said city vehicle and purchase of said new vehicle described above.

Each bid must contain the full names of every person or company interested in the same and be accompanied by a certified check on some solvent bank in the amount of 5% of the bid for the new vehicle payable to the Treasurer of the City of East Liverpool as a guaranty that if the bid is accepted, a contract shall be entered into and its performance properly secured. Should any bid be rejected such check will be forthwith returned to the bidder, and should any bid be accepted such check will be returned upon the proper execution and securing of the contract.

Envelopes containing bids should be marked on outside "Garbage Removal Department Truck Bid".

The right is reserved to reject any or all bids.

2 IN MEMORIAM

IN memory of Violet Cook
On her 54th birthday.
She's wandered from our presence here
Into a land that knows no fear.
A land that knows no pain or death
Yet isn't far a single breath.
A land where tears are never shed
Eternity lies but ahead.
To those of us who must remain,
Our loss is surely Violet's gain.
Sadly missed by Husband, Children, Aunt Wee and Aunt Cora.
Written by Chleo Deshler Goodman

Welfare Staff Facing Shifts

County welfare deartment heads in West Virginia and their employes were on notice today that they might get a "change of scenery."

Welfare Commissioner W. Bernard Smith said in Charleston that he had given district administrators authority to transfer any of the help at their discretion.

Smith explained "a great percentage" of approximately 500 workers come under the order.

He said many county workers have held their present positions so long they consider the offices "entitles in themselves."

Others have become too concerned about local political organizations, he added.

Miss Adda R. Hindman, director of Hancock County's department of welfare in New Cumberland, was not available for comment.

Miss Hindman and Mrs. Ila M. Snyder, medical assistant to the aged workers, are among social welfare personnel from District 1 attending the 1961 southeast regional conference of the American Public Welfare Association at Memphis, Tenn.

But the state welfare commissioner didn't pinpoint any one county for criticism. He said only that "we're trying to get away from the 'buddy system' on the county level."

Smith said transfers would be made for periods from two months up or long enough "to let them know we're watching." The transfer program would not violate Civil Service rules, he said.

City Youth Deprived Of Driving License

Robert V. Willison, 16, of 1814 Harvey Ave., and Forrest G. Allen, 17, of Salem received 30-day suspensions of their driving permits for speeding in traffic cases at the Courthouse.

Russell Andrew Williams, 16, and Lawrence James Miller, 17, both of Youngstown, received 15-day suspensions for failing to yield the right-of-way and for stopping without the assured clear distance, respectively.

Charles Leon Cain, 17, of Beloit R. D. 2, was fined $10 for driving without a muffler. Willison was cited by Lisbon police, the others by the State Highway Patrol.

Keep In Trim

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Overweight Remains National Problem

One fourth of our nation is overweight. It is perplexing that nutritious, strength - giving food can turn into unhealthy fat. We're in a dilemma. Our e s t a blished ways of eating no l o n g e r match our way of life. Result: Forty million o v e rweight Americans.

Ida Jean Kain

An unprecedented abundance of g o o d food the year 'round plus convenience foods with built-in maid service compound the problem. Consequently a large proportion of our population are trying, none too successfully, to dodge calories.

Perhaps the most alarming part of this weighty picture is the widespread overweight — in all age groups. There is nothing new about the middle - a g e spread, but now we have chubby children, roly-poly pre-teens, and fat, unhappy teen-agers.

OBVIOUSLY WE haven't learned how to balance our food requirements to our fuel expenditures. We need a meal planning pattern that allows us to enjoy good food without fear of adding fat.

Serving sizes should be changed to fit our less active way of life. In short, our inherited food patterns and accepted serving sizes are outmoded and need to be modified.

On-again, off-again dieting is no solution. It's ridiculous to contemplate putting millions of Americans on diets. We're not happy on diets. Then what is the answer? Dietary know-how! What's needed is a plan by which we can lower total calories. Being able to choose our own weight control meals will undoubtedly help banish resistance to cutting calories.

A choice pattern plan is adjustable to reducing in any way of life — the homemaker who is confronted with assorted weight problems; corpulent couples, dining in or out; and the working girl who may or may not carry her lunch.

To help you plan reducing meals and control your weight on good food, your dietitian will soon have a new type of leaflet, entitled "Choose To Lose Diet."

It isn't a diet really . . . but a plan by which you eat to build slimness. With the Choice plan, you rule the diet.

BY PLANNING your own meals, within your reducing calorie limits, you get the experience of controlling weight through an everyday pattern of eating. A diet plan should never be more than a guide. Result: A built-in slimming system.

You stay slim by habit. (As soon as the new leaflet is ready, an announcement will be made, so that you can send for it.)

Chester Hill Project Set

Improvements to Route 30 in the Chester area — a point of much discussion but little action in years — appears to be a certainty.

West Virginia State Road Commissioner Burl Sawyers has allocated $50,000 for initial improvements to the heavily-traveled highway.

Sawyers confirmed that the project will involve widening, grading and resurfacing.

Cost of eliminating some of the dangerous curves on the long Chester Hill, where scores of traffic crashes have occurred over the years, is expected to be $250,000.

Sawyers said the road commission workmen will begin initial phases of the widening and grading with the completion of the engineering studies.

The road commissioner said final phases of the improvement will move into contract - bidding with contractors to complete a four-lane thorofare.

Widening, grading and elimination of the curves is expected to begin this month by workmen of the Pughtown Garage of the State Road Commission, it is indicated.

4 Hancock Women To Attend Conference

Four Hancock County women will attend the annual program planning conference Monday through Thursday at Jacksons Mill for West Virginia Farm Women's Clubs.

They are Mrs. Floyd Grimes of Weirton, president of the County Farm Women's Council, Mrs. William Oyster of Asbury Club, Mrs. Earl Pugh of Fairview and Mrs. Kenneth Timberlake of Agalthelian Club of Weirton.

Mrs. Ruth McPherson, county 4-H club agent, said about 200 are expected at the annual county 4-H achievement banquet Monday night at 6:30 in Weirton.

Youngsters will present a program of songs. The event will feature award of certificates of merit and project ribbons.

Irondale Man Chosen As 'Airman Of Month'

Airman 2C Edward Scott Patton, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Patton of Irondale, was chosen "Airman of the Month" in Bermuda, where he is stationed with the 1934th Communications Squadron.

Airman Patton, a 1959 graduate of Irondale High School, entered the service in 1960, and has been in Bermuda since May, having completed basic training at Keesler Air Force Base, Biloxi, Miss. He is in radar maintenance work.

Scientists In Accord On Disarmament Plan

STOWE, Vt. (AP) — Scientists from 11 nations — including the United States and Russia — have reached tentative accord on disarmament proposals in five major areas, a spokesman for the eighth Conference on Science and World Affairs said Friday.

The proposals will face a vote today as the conference holds its final meeting.

Dr. Harrison Brown, a geophysicist from California Institute of Technology, said some of the proposals are "considerably ahead of any government agreements" in nuclear disarmament.

President Grover Cleveland accepted the Statue of Liberty from France on behalf of the United States on Oct. 28, 1886.

Run for Your Life!

Stricken by heart attacks, these businessmen slipped into track shoes instead of rockers; you, too, can attain better health by following their example

By CHARLES CURTIS

SYD MEADOWS was celebrating his 65th birthday. His heart was scarred by what doctors called a complete left bundle branch block, a left axis deviation, and an anterior mycardial infarct. In short, a heart attack.

He balanced his old legs astride the starting line of the running track in Cleveland's Central YMCA. He had made a proud and possibly foolish birthday claim, promising to run ten miles without stopping. A skeptical crowd had come to watch.

Bill Cumler's gun exploded and Meadows was off running barefooted, a pacemaking companion at his elbow. As he whirled into the first turn, the crowd watched with open mouths. This was no ancient eccentric about to commit suicide but a powerful man in fine physical shape. As the laps fell behind, Cumler heard a remark: "That guy could drop dead. What's he trying to prove?"

Cumler, physical director of the Y's Businessmen's Club, knew the answer. Meadows was proving that a man's arteries can be rejuvenated and made fit for a vigorous life at almost any age, provided they are free from disease. He would also prove that running was one of the world's easiest, safest, and most pleasant exercises.

FOUR YEARS AGO, Meadows had asked for a checkup. After running in place for 60 seconds, he was near collapse. "What'll I do?" he panted. "Start running," he was told. Cautiously, he was led through gradually toughening grades of running, swimming, and calisthenics. In four months, his pulse had dropped from 98 per minute to 58.

At the seven-mile mark, his pacemaker dropped out, but Grandfather Meadows plowed ahead. After the 243rd lap—ten miles—he trotted to a stop. The "old man" had run the incredible distance in 71 minutes, 11 seconds.

Meadows' feat, which can be matched in large degree by dozens of other Cleveland businessmen, is evidence of a growing understanding on the part of the public as well as medical men of the benefit of vigorous exercise. Dr. Paul Dudley White blazed the trail with his ardent advice to walk or to ride a bicycle as often as possible. Dr. Edward L. Bortz of Lankenau Hospital, Philadelphia, says, "It appears that exercise is the master conditioner for the healthy and the major therapy for the ill."

WILLIAM ROGERS, who runs Cleveland's airports and harbors, is a distinguished example. Now 65, he had his first heart attack in 1935, his second in 1956. Either one could have put him on the shelf for the remainder of his days. When he got out of the hospital, he went to Cumler and told him, "I want to exercise. My doctor says it's okay."

At this time, five years ago, Cumler was feeling his way. His new program was just taking hold, modeled on the research of Dr. Thomas Kirk Cureton, director of the Physical Fitness Research Laboratory at the University of Illinois. Its "secret" was a technique called progressive overloading. On a supervised basis, a man was encouraged to work just a bit beyond comfort every day, resulting ultimately in a tremendous increase in endurance. The working-up process could take up to six months—and in the case of a heart-attack victim, up to two years.

But Rogers was a prominent citizen and a two-time loser to heart disease. Was it safe? Cumler recalled a medical-journal account of sitters and walkers among the heart patients of a sanatorium. The walkers were permitted to climb a hill every day, and at the year's end they had suffered 70 percent fewer casualties than the sitters.

Before he allowed Rogers to enroll, they had it out. "This can cost you your life, but if you'll do it gradually and quit when I say, we'll try it," he said. They started work in the pool. Rogers walked its width once. Cumler ordered, "Out!"

"You're kidding," Rogers protested.

"Out!" Cumler said, and made it stick.

On his second visit, he was allowed to walk across and back through the water. On his third, he swam a single width. A gradual increase of work load is the essence of Bill Cumler's reconditioning method, and tests are taken before and after each session for blood pressure and pulse.

If you were in Miami last winter, you might have seen a lovely lady hiking swiftly along the beach for block after block while, offshore, a powerful swimmer paced her through a fast half-mile. They were Mr. and Mrs. William Rogers (who doesn't swim), enjoying their favorite sport.

Today, white-haired Bill Cumler is Cleveland's high priest of fitness. A few years ago, he was an overweight, jittery ex-YMCA secretary newly assigned to the Y's anemic Businessmen's Club. Now, club membership is more than 450. Swimmers pursue a scientific program, and two dozen times a week the most rugged company of businessmen in America gather for 45 minutes of hard, nonstop calisthenics, wind and weight work.

FOR YEARS, medical men have debated the value of exercise, plagued by a lack of research on human beings. When Dr. Herman Hellerstein of the Cardiovascular Research Department, Western Reserve University Medical School, heard of the Cleveland Y's program, he led a team of physicians and students to examine Bill Rogers and 17 other cardiacs who were exercising regularly. After a study of his findings, he said recently, "This is the shape of things to come. The Y should magnify its program tenfold."

The lesson is clear. You must walk (or swim) before you can run. But first consult your family doctor. If he approves, walk one block vigorously each day for a week. Add an extra block each week. When you can walk a mile without tiring—and if your doctor consents—you can begin jogging. Try 100 paces the first week, and build up gradually. After a while, if evidence of Bill Cumler's classes at the Cleveland Y is typical, you will discover that the springs of eternal youth are in your own body.

Run—If Your Doctor Says So

Ask your doctor for a health survey, review of your medical history, and laboratory tests. Ask him about an exercise program. He may recommend the individualized courses available at many YMCA's or other facilities. Or he may say, "Start walking, but work up slowly." Whatever you do, don't rush any exercise—and don't disregard your doctor's advice.

—Harold D. Morris, M.D., Consulting Physician Central YMCA, Cleveland, Ohio

Tilt!

Oh, why is his temper out of kilter?
His wife is a rearview mirror tilter!
And while he's driving, she blithely tips
The mirror to fix her hair and lips,
And leaves it tilted the wrong direction.
And though she's pleased with her own reflection,
Her husband's glowering glances hint
Of dark reflections we couldn't print!

Success is a relative thing—the more success, the more relatives. —Enoch Slavey

"What are we watching now, Alice? I've forgotten."

A confirmed do-it-yourselfer assured his wife he could replace a broken window. After taking measurements of the pane, he went out to buy the glass.

"It's quite a simple job," said the owner of the hardware store. "All you do is take out the old glass, fit in a new pane, fill in with some putty around the edges—and there you are!"

An hour later, the do-it-yourselfer showed up again at the hardware store. The clerk greeted him happily.

"We have the same size pane of glass all ready for you, sir," he said. —Dan Bennett

Beauties of Autumn

Now is the time
That is truly sublime;
No long, noisy weekends,
no desperate haste;

The kids back in school,
And the summer replacements
are being replaced.

The youngster had just finished his first week of school, and his parents anxiously awaited a report.

"How did you do at school?" the father asked.

The boy was crestfallen. "Not so good," he replied.

"You mean you didn't learn anything?" the father asked with great concern.

"Well," said the child, "I learned that I need a vaccination, my eyes are weak, my teeth need fixing, and that I have a propensity for shyness."

—Frances Benson

His wife came in from shopping and had bad news: she'd just damaged a fender. Even worse, she hadn't taken the license number of the other car. "Well, what kind of a car was it?" the husband demanded impatiently.

"I don't know," the wife replied. "You know I can't tell one car from another."

The husband decided it was time she learned. For the next week, whenever they were driving, he made her name each car they passed until she was an expert at recognizing auto makes.

About a week later, she came bounding in from shopping. "Darling," she said brightly, "you'll be so happy. I just hit a car—and I'm certain it was a Buick!"

THE DAY WE SAILED WITH FEAR

By ERIC HATCH

IT HAPPENED during the war. About 30 days after D-Day I was on a Liberty ship creeping across the channel from England to France. There were about 1,000 men aboard, including my outfit. I was a civilian specialist in command of the combat loudspeaker trucks of the Third Army, part of the Psychological Warfare Division.

It was a rough trip; not weatherwise, but the channel was full of U-boats—and fog, which made it easier for the U-boats. None of us knew what awaited us on Omaha Beach. None of us had ever been to war before. The fog and the knowledge that the U-boats were there, all around us, preyed on the men's nerves.

Like men everywhere on their way to war, they were frightened. Like men everywhere who are frightened, they felt the need of God's help. On Saturday night word reached the commanding officer that the men wanted church services the next morning. Of course, the services would have to be nonsectarian for there were men of every faith and creed on board. But there was no chaplain. Because I had once been master of ceremonies of a network radio show, the commanding officer asked me to hold services.

NEVER WILL I FORGET that Sunday morning. We were at anchor somewhere in mid-channel. I was conducting the services from the bridge deck. As we finished the first hymn and then joined in the Lord's Prayer, we paused, and I said, "Now for a moment or two, let's each of us worship in silence, each according to his own faith."

The Christians among us knelt or bowed their heads; the Jewish men put on their helmets. I was deeply moved. After a few hymns, it was time for the sermon. I had never preached a sermon, nor even read the lesson in church. It did not matter because I spoke from the heart. At the end I spoke about fear—fear of battle and, worse, the fear of being afraid. I said in closing:

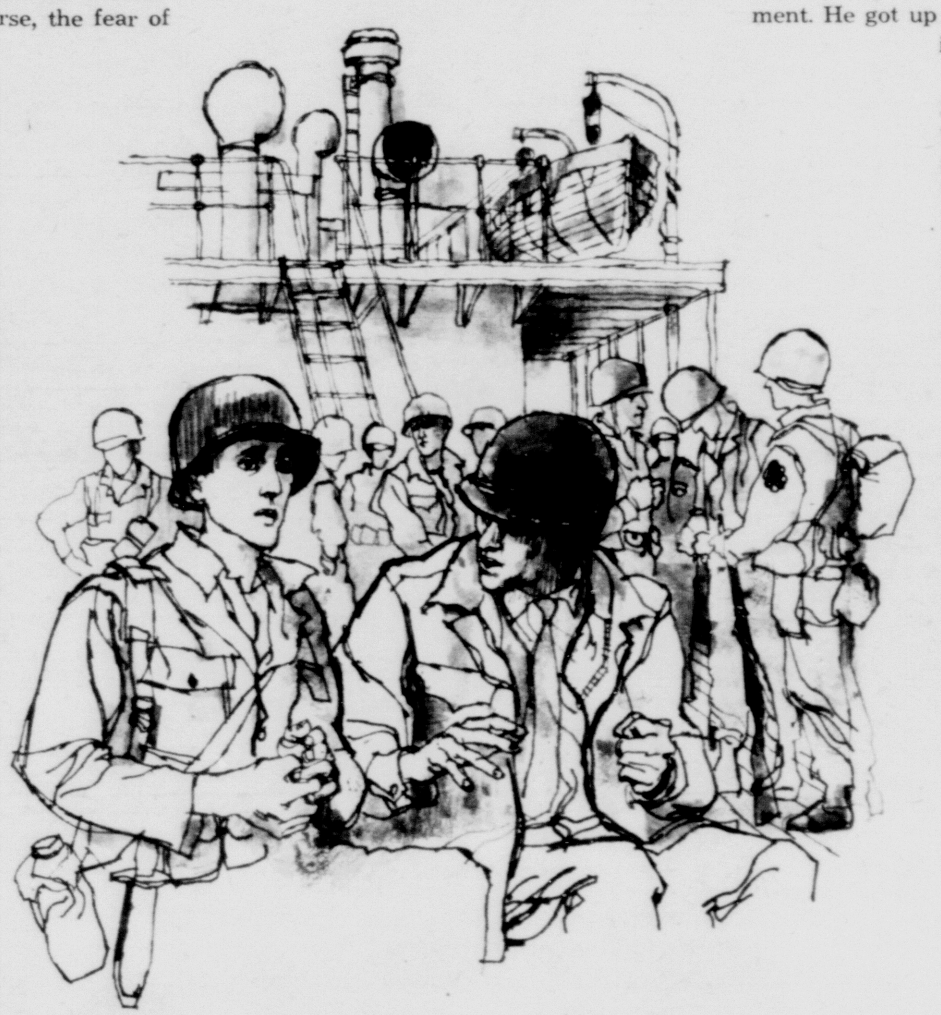
"You—none of you—need worry about fear. You don't need to be afraid because just as He builds the staunch oak tree with all the strength it needs to withstand the violence of the tempest, God has built into each of us the strength and the courage to do anything, to meet any test, to face any enemy that He may call upon us to face."

The next morning the ship was moving again, in fog so thick you couldn't see the bow from the bridge. We knew we were close to shore because ahead of us were the thud and crash of heavy gunfire. I was in the commanding officer's stateroom with two or three other men, drinking coffee. I think all of us were trying hard to pretend we were somewhere else—anywhere else. Suddenly the first mate burst into the room, moving fast and breathless. The C. O. was sitting on a big sea chest. The mate said, "Move, please, sir! I've got to get in there in a hurry!"

The C.O. got up. "What's going on here?" he asked. "Why the sweat?"

"Skipper thinks we got off course in the fog. Says we're heading smack into Le Havre." The Germans still held Le Havre.

The mate went on: "He's burned the ship's papers." He flung open the chest and began taking out guns. He's ordered me to arm the officers and some of the crew." He went to the doorway, sort of grinned, and said, "So long—soldiers."



I felt my stomach heave and my hands start to tremble. I was scared sick—literally. I didn't want any of these men, men I knew well, to know it. I wanted to be alone. I followed the mate out the door and made my way down the corridor to the deck and then down a companionway to the foredeck. Here little knots of enlisted men were standing around, trying to see through the fog. It didn't take much observation to know that what the skipper had told the mate had spread through the ship like a prairie fire. Nobody spoke. Except for the sighing sound of the ship slipping through the water and the distant thump and thud of the big guns, it was as still as—as still as death.

I went over and sat down on a corner of the main forward hatch. It's much easier not to show you're trembling if you're sitting down. For a few minutes I was alone. Then a boy named Sydney came up to me. His face was ashen.

"Say, Mr. Hatch," he said. "Can I talk to you?"

"Of course. What is it?"

"You know all that courage you said I had in that sermon you preached yesterday?" I nodded. "Well, I've got news for you, sir. You were wrong, Mr. Hatch; I haven't got it. I'm scared ————" He used a highly descriptive word. "God may have given everybody else that built-in courage you talked about, but He left me out."

I blew a gasket. "You sit down here!"

HE DROPPED onto the hatch cover beside me. For 10 minutes straight without stopping, I lit into him, indignant, furious that he dared question not what I had said, but the very idea that God would create a man and leave him unequipped to do the things he must do. At the end of the 10 minutes, I wasn't quite certain that I had convinced Sydney, but my rage had gotten me over my fear—for the moment. He got up and said, "Thank you very much for trying to help me."

So I'd lost. He walked off and stood dejectedly by the rail. About an hour later the fog lifted and the sun came out and the ship turned hard a-starboard, in time to keep clear of Le Havre. That afternoon we landed on Omaha Beach. My moment of inspiration came a couple of months later when I was back in Paris on leave. I hadn't seen Sydney since we'd left Normandy. One day at the Crillon Hotel I bumped into one of the Psychological Warfare officers from First Army Group at lunch.

"Say," he said, "remember your friend Sydney?"

"You bet I do," I said. "A nice boy, but a little on the nervous side."

"Nervous?" said Ed. "He got decorated for bravery last week. Went into a patch of woods alone and flushed out a machine gunner. You know what, Eric? The little son of a gun's turned out to be one of those weird characters you find in a war—one of those guys who don't know what fear is."

I opened my mouth and shut it again. You can't talk about a miracle, even a small miracle, in a hotel dining room. Since that moment, in the war and afterward, whenever I have faced a crisis I have remembered this and found new strength. I don't have to be afraid. In truth, I can't be afraid for long. It would be letting Sydney down—and God.

They were untested soldiers facing battle when this noted writer delivered a sermon that proved as sustaining in peace as in war

Carbon costs you money. A tiny bit extra on a vital engine part can waste a tenth of the gasoline you buy, cost you 50 cents or more every time you fill up. Why is this so?

Carbon hurts your engine. It increases roughness. Fouls spark plugs. Runs up repair bills.

Gulf gasolines control carbon. Gulf's exclusive refinery processes refine out dirty-burning, deposit-forming elements.

Let's Draw a Sheep or a Goat By Ann Davidow

Draw, large and long, one letter "U"
Just the way
you always do.

To make a nose,
use letter "Y."
Also, add the ear and eye.

Give him a fancy,
curly ruff.
He is a sheep,
or close enough.

(Or add horns, beard, and then I'd vote
To call this chap
a billy goat!)

New kind of pie . . . Red Cinnamon Apple!

Because you know a little boy who loves apple pie...

you put your whole heart into doing for him. And it's because you care so much that you begin with Pillsbury's BEST. (Pre-sifted? Of course; for years!)

Sift or not? You decide. The reason you sift is to measure. When you want the accurate measurement that guarantees your very BEST pie crust, sift before measuring.

Apple Pie news! Flavor livelier, color brighter . . . with little red cinnamon candies. Special pastry twist makes pastry fail-proof. See the recipe in our flour sacks right now. A Bake-Off winner from Xenia, Ohio . . . to Pillsbury . . . to you.

A MILLION-DOLLAR IDEA!

what's needed, satisfy the need—and protect your brain child

PEOPLE PROBABLY laugh when you say, "I've got a million-dollar idea!"

Well, the laugh may be on them. In spite of all you hear, this is still the day of the valid patent on gadgets which can make a fortune for you. Rather than laugh, I assure you that the Golden Age of the independent inventor, the "loner," is still very much with us—today more than ever.

Our country's history is bright with examples of the modest one-man break-through that paid off. William G. Kendall got $25,000 for his self-closing top for talcum-powder cans. An Illinois farmer named Joseph Glidden received $60,000 for his invention of barbed wire and a royalty of 25 cents on every 100 pounds manufactured. The Minnesota grocer who met his customers' need for a handy carrier by inventing the shopping bag was soon manufacturing and selling them by the millions. Ponder that humble metal cap next time you pry one off a bottle: it made its inventor, William Painter, a wealthy man.

Things like that couldn't happen now? Our economy is too highly organized? Don't kid yourself. Look at Edwin H. Land of Massachusetts and his Polaroid camera. Take Bill Lear of California, with his long list of aircraft-navigation and safety devices. With the help of patent protection, both these self-taught men made it to the top in fields dominated by giant competitors. They are not alone.

Ever think twice about the problem of stacking supermarket baskets? Somebody did. He now has a patent on that collapsible rear gate in each wheeled cart. Nothing momentous, but the gates flip inward to save valuable space by making the otherwise bulky baskets nestle compactly.

Women Can Cash In, Too

Don't think that only men can think up profitable gadgets. The popular "Jonny" mop, a disposable mop for cleaning bathroom porcelain, was invented by Dorothy F. Rodgers, wife of the famed composer Richard Rodgers. Sometimes a household time-saver invented by a woman takes time to win the favor of other women. The first patent on a contour sheet, for example, was issued in 1903 to Delina Grattin, but it was years before this type of sheet caught on with housewives.

For those who are not self-starters, the National Inventors Council in Washington publishes regularly a list of "Inventions Wanted by the Armed Forces and Other Government Agencies." You can pick up a free copy at any Department of Commerce field office in the country, or write the Department for its latest Cumulative List. More than 50 percent of all patents are issued to private inventors, and anyone with an inventive turn of mind will find this list an exciting clue sheet to our current needs.

But aren't most of those needs too technical for the average inventor? Aren't they the kind that call for elaborate, costly equipment?

Many are, but there are other needs on this list which challenge almost any good theorist or skilled mechanic. Some 98 percent of patents go to male inventors, but what's to prevent a woman from solving the big Air Force problem of keeping birds off high-speed sled-testing tracks, for example, without killing the birds? Many a town council struggling to keep its public buildings clean would also pay generously for that one.

Could you develop a gadget to tell when machinery is about to break down, without dismantling it? Or invent a self-cleaning oil filter? A cheap industrial adhesive tape from waste material? A screw or bolt that doesn't have to be turned so much? A quick, reliable method of coupling hoses? Instant sauces, dressings, or bread mixes?

Have you a test gadget to warn when flashlight batteries are about to burn out, so they won't fail in emergencies? Better still, can you come up with a dry-cell battery that will last indefinitely by some self-renewal process?

If so, get in touch with us. It isn't necessary, but if you like, you can do what an Oneida, N. Y., boy did when he found himself with two fine brainstorms: one an improvement on roller skates, and the other a darkroom gadget. He and his family came to Washington, where our staff steered him through the maze of 500 categories and 55,000 subcategories he would have to search to learn if someone had beaten him to the same ideas.

As with most would-be inventors who tackle the chore unaided, it was a sobering experience for this 16-year-old. Fortunately, it was not a discouraging one. He went home dazzled by the wealth of new ideas he found in our files. Many were in the public domain. That meant he could use them freely because the 17-year period during which a patent pays royalties to the inventor had expired. This youngster hasn't applied for any patents yet, but we expect to hear from him. (Incidentally, there are no age or sex limits on seeking a patent. You don't even have to be a citizen.)

Get Professional Help

Two things are sobering about our files. Sometime this month the U. S. Patent Office, which was founded in 1790 by George Washington and later reconstituted by Congress under Section 8 of the Constitution "to promote the Progress of Science and useful Arts," will issue Patent No. 3,000,000. We currently receive about 80,000 applications a year and grant some 55,000 patents. All 3 million patents issued to date, together with their often massive paper work, jam our facilities to the bursting point. Even with our help, their bulk alone staggers an inventor trying to make his own search, and patents are in language which takes for granted "ordinary familiarity with the art." Often that requires an engineering background.

If you think you have a million-dollar idea—whether it's a pioneering break-through or just a useful improvement—we recommend that you do not do as the Oneida boy did. For your own sake, you should communicate the idea in detail to a properly authorized patent attorney, along with drawings and notes of your earliest thinking about it—dated and signed by witnesses.

For 45 cents you can obtain from us a register, arranged alphabetically and by states, of patent attorneys who have passed rigorous examinations to qualify for practice before the U. S. Patent Office. These attorneys do not advertise. I cannot urge you too strongly to avoid anyone calling himself a patent agent who does advertise. Their low-low fees of six to ten dollars for a preliminary search are obvious come-ons. How much of a really qualified professional man's time do you think you get for six dollars?

What It Will Cost

A reputable patent attorney will make a thorough preliminary search for $75 to $125. If he finds you have something, he will help prepare descriptive drawings, specifications, and claims for your patent application. The wording of each claim is vital. Here these lawyers, many of whom are also engineers, again prove their worth by getting you complete protection. The Patent Office fee for filing an application is $30, with a $1 fee for each claim above 20. Another $30 is payable when the patent issues. These fees are real bargains: they haven't gone up in 168 years.

If your lawyer tells you your idea is not patentable, believe him. The amount of time people waste inventing things that have already been invented is frightening. One help along this line will come when, as I hope, we microfilm all 3 million of our patents and put them in libraries across the country. That way, with the information handy, inventors can get a fair idea for themselves before calling on a patent attorney.

Another spur we hope to offer American inventors is data-processing by computers. With electronic brains to speed up the search of every claim, we may yet catch up with the "information explosion" of modern technology. Now it takes three to three-and-a-half years for a patent to issue.

But don't let that discourage you. Even while you wait, agencies (which you can check on with us) or your local Better Business Bureau can bring together you, your million-dollar idea (patent applied for), and interested manufacturers. Normally, a businessman will not even look at an idea unless you have at least applied for a patent because unprotected ideas often lead to expensive lawsuits.

The patent system, which Lincoln said has added "the fuel of interest to the fire of genius," is being steadily improved to protect you for a reasonable time while you share the fruits of your genius with your fellow men. For your own sake, take advantage of it intelligently. And—who knows?—for the sake of your country's survival.

By CURTIS MITCHELL

Gay Currie chats with an orphaned Iranian boy. She soon discovered many like him, homeless and

SOME OF THE wasting babies lay in cribs, three or four jammed into a space meant for one. Older infants sat on shelves like blackbirds on a wire, jammed shoulder to shoulder, legs swaddled, prevented from falling off by a seat-belt arrangement made of iron piping. All day long they sat there, stinking skeletons in dripping diapers that were changed once daily, cruelly scabbed on head, face, and arms.

"I mustn't get sick," nurse Gay Currie told herself. They had been through other rooms like this and would go on to others. The Teheran Foundling Home, designed for 250 children, held 680 infants, all three years old or less, almost none able to walk, each desperately malnourished and ill of diarrhea.

She had come to the home by accident. Director Ahbtin of the State Public Health Department had rumbled into the office of the chief American health official in Iran. "I want to show you something terrible," he warned; and Gay Currie, full of enthusiasm for serving her country as a public-health nurse in the backward land once called Persia, drew the assignment. It changed her life. It also changed the lives of countless orphans of that ancient kingdom.

"What can we do about this?" the Iranian official asked.

What could they do? The facts were disheartening. Trained help was not available. No reputable physician, Gay learned, would attend the institution because of its inept policies. Its staff consisted mostly of ignorant slatterns who worked 24-hour shifts for $10 a month.

Yet the orphanage staff did not mean to abuse those tots from the gutters. With knowledge, they could do better. Given instruction, they would respond.

"Could I open training courses for your help?" Gay asked. This could be the beginning, she hoped, of better treatment for foundlings.

The government approved her idea of a training course. She taught 30 of the brightest girls in the home, demonstrating the latest equipment for baby care. After six weeks, a pleased government celebrated their graduation day with ceremonies and fanfare. Now things would be better. But the nurses went back to their posts and found the same filthy utensils and inadequate equipment. Their superiors were content with the old. "It's our way," they said.

Nurse Currie excused them, saying: "We must make them understand that new ways are better." She organized seminars which brought together staff members from the home and prominent pediatrists for professional discussions. Their communication was strained and unproductive. She asked for lists of the drugs and foods dispensed. They revealed many odd facts. Drugs, foods, and materials had been purchased and used—but evidently not by the orphanage. Highly placed medical men only shrugged at her story. "Don't get us involved," they said.

She Finds an Ally

Her frustration and her dogged persistence in seeking a way through indifference and red tape won the sympathy of a young American named Joe Fox of the U.S. Information Service. He shared his knowledge of Eastern ways and wiles and bolstered her spirits. He would soon become an invaluable ally.

But their every effort was thwarted. When they enlisted help of the community, the obstacles soon discouraged all but the most dedicated. When they tried a model ward, unsympathetic administrators denied Gay its use.

"I hated myself for failing," she recalls. "I'd been in Iran for months, and those babies were still starving."

At the end of her tether, she prayed. Gay Currie's faith is such that her communication with God is constant, close, and unquestioning: "I asked Him to show me a way out."

Director Ahbtin of the Health Department swept into her office one day bursting with good news. "I'm going to move 250 babies," he said. "I've wangled enough money to rent tunately, he was well able to afford.

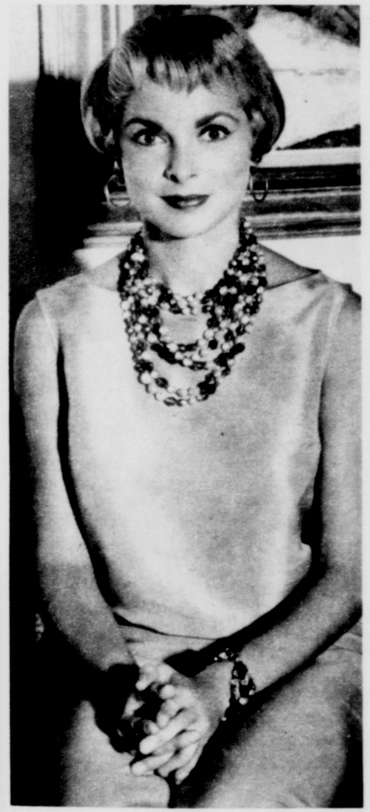
Usually, when Tony gets a new interest he goes all out, and, of course, invariably I get involved. Take cameras. It happened almost overnight. Once cameras caught his interest, he bought all the equipment he could possibly use. That was only the beginning. I couldn't move around the house without his suddenly shouting, "Hold it!" and hearing the click of the shutter. It occurred anywhere—when I was on the kitchen stool, holding the baby, or, oh yes, sitting in the bathtub.

Tony's various projects—astronomy,



French, art collecting, music—keep me on my toes, and occasionally our house in a mess. One day he came home with a toy submarine and worked on it until 5 o'clock the next morning. Then he left all the little parts, screws, and instruments scattered on the floor. He used just about every household tool we owned, but when I tried to take back a screwdriver for my own use, he refused to let me touch it for fear I'd mislay one of the model's pieces.

I kept threatening to throw out the whole mess but failed to impress him—until I returned home one day after a tennis game and found the toy submarine and all the little parts gone. To this day, I don't know if he finished the model or just threw everything out.

The fun of having a husband with so many varied projects more than compen-sates for minor drawbacks. For instance, Tony is very clothes-conscious. In fact, he and Jose Ferrer had a running contest to see who could outdo the other in dressing up. One day we visited Jose and his wife Rosemary Clooney, and Tony carefully dressed in a matador's suit. When we arrived at the Ferrers', Jose was wearing a conservative, beautifully tailored suit, but as soon as he saw Tony he excused himself, dashed to his bedroom, and soon reappeared —in a traditional British hunting outfit complete with bright red coat!

Tony's interest doesn't stop with his own clothes. He helps me with mine as well. If he can't accompany me on a shopping trip, I take the dresses home on approval so he can see them before I buy them. He even supervises my hairdresser, and since his likes vary so, I sometimes don't recognize myself in the mirror!

I suppose some wives might take exception to all his hectic enthusiasms, but I can tell them something: life's never a bore with Tony, and I can't imagine myself wanting any other way of life.

Noted beauty consultant answers questions about face creams

Can Face Creams Iron Out Wrinkles?

by Helen F. Porter

IF I HAD a dime for every time I've been asked whether face creams help when it comes to wrinkles, I'd have salted away a pretty penny by now.

For if there's one thing I've heard over and over again as a beauty consultant, it's those troubled questions about facial wrinkles from women of all ages. What about you? Have you been disappointed in the way face creams fail to smooth out those little laugh lines, or those character lines around your mouth?

Well, from long experience I can tell you that no cream is going to iron away wrinkles. But at the same time, let me tell you about a face cream I've recently come across that I think is just what women have been hoping for. First of all, it's light, greaseless and it's poly-unsaturated. It smooths into your skin almost instantly and goes right to work on wrinkles . . . helping to soften the crevices, smooth facial lines and stave off the appearance of new wrinkles. Especially if you give yourself a nightly facial with it the way I do.

Before you go to bed, just cleanse your face, then pat it with a warm washcloth to open the pores so that your skin is ready to receive the full benefits of this poly-unsaturated cream. Next, smooth it on with your finger tips, up and out from your chin and circling very gently around your eyes. Then, and this is important, give special attention to any little wrinkles. Take a bit of extra cream on your finger tip. Then use that finger like an iron — gently pressing and releasing. The contraction and relaxation of this action works on the fatty layer below the skin and stimulates circulation.

Afterwards, while you sleep, (did you know sleep is the time when skin cell renewal is at its peak?) this poly-unsaturated cream supplies the new skin cells with poly-unsaturates.

These elements with the tongue-twister name are about 50% more abundant in healthy young skin at 20 than in skin at 40. And the unique formula of this cream contains all 3 "essential poly-unsaturates" in totally fresh form, the one form that makes them potent.

The name of this cream, in case you're wondering, is Polyderm, and it's made by Prince Matchabelli. I do wish you'd give it a try, because I feel sure you'll be dedicated to Polyderm once you start using it regularly. For, if what happened to me happens to you (and I have a hunch that it will from all the enthusiastic letters I've been receiving lately) before you know it, you'll be taking a second look at yourself in the mirror—delighted to see how much softer, smoother, and younger looking your skin is.

But before you go out and buy Polyderm, I thought you'd like a chance to try it yourself to see whether you like the feel of it on your skin (and of course to see whether you like what it does for you). That's why I've arranged to have a week's supply, trial-size jar made available. If you'd like one, just send 25¢, your name and address to Polyderm, P.O. Box 57, Mt. Vernon, N. Y. If you just can't wait to get started, you'll find Polyderm at leading U.S. and Canadian stores for $2, $3.50, $5 plus tax.

The Curtis charm means unpredictable tomorrows and chaotic todays—but his beautiful wife isn't complaining

By JANET LEIGH

DURING DINNER one evening, my husband Tony Curtis shocked no one when he announced that he planned to rent a private railroad car and hook it to a train to take us on a vacation to Mexico City.

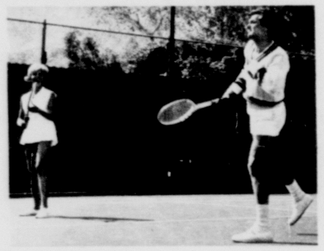
Tony got the idea when he read about a retired Pullman porter who invested part of his Irish Sweepstakes winnings by renting an entire railroad car and inviting his friends to take a trip across the country with him.

A suggestion like this coming from many husbands would have caught their wives quite by surprise. After 10 years of marriage to Tony, however, I've learned to look forward to these brain storms of his for the delight they add to our lives.

This doesn't mean it's easy to keep up with him, though!

Late last summer, for instance, he came home one evening with the news that he had rented a 105-foot cabin cruiser.

"Sounds delightful," I agreed, "but isn't it a little big for us?"



"We'll find some other couples to go along," he assured me.

I looked at him suspiciously. I could anticipate the answer to my next question. "And just how soon are we taking off on this venture?"

Tony looked at his watch. "We have an hour and 15 minutes to get ready."

Four days on a cabin cruiser might mean rest and relaxation for most husbands. Not for Tony. Although his prime reason for hiring the cruiser was to get away from the telephone and work, we were so busy fishing, swimming, playing cards, skin diving, and rowing boats that there was no time just to take it easy. I participated in all activities but one: I drew the line when it came to skin diving because I am petrified of sharks.

The difficulty of keeping up with Tony extends to his love of cars. This shows itself in our constant turnover of cars, which got us into trouble with the Government one year when we changed cars six times, no less.

One morning a Government agent called our business manager and demanded to know details of our used-car business, pointing out that anyone engaged in the business needed a special license and had to report and pay certain taxes.

Although our business manager assured him that Tony was in no such business, the official insisted on calling Tony direct and asking him for an explanation. He simply didn't believe that any one person could buy six cars in a single year without intending to make a profit on them! Tony finally convinced him that he wasn't in business or out to make money but only to enjoy his current hobby, which, for-ill-fed. But her work changed their lives—and her own.

another home. Please come and see it." The building they visited was dark and cavernous, and Gay's imagination filled it with all the old horrors—but she had an idea.

Were not well babies more important to Iran than sick? she asked. The words came unbidden. "Sir, you should set up a model home. You should take 50 babies and prove that modern methods have merit. You can train nurses' aids, administrators, nutritionists, and interns, and serve all Iran."

Director Ahbtin threw up his hands. "But how will we finance this miracle?"

"We'll work night and day," Gay promised. "The money will come."

When the proper house was found, the wives of ambassadors, generals, and business tycoons got down on their knees with stenographers and schoolteachers to scrub it clean. Everywhere in Teheran, people began to talk of the Well-Baby Center, even in the royal palace. Now the tide really turned. At the old home, Queen Soraya walked in one day and cried with indignation. Soon, the directors resigned, and the Queen's own charity organization took over.

Moving day was Oct. 7, 1957. Led by Director Ahbtin, ladies of a dozen nations drove to the old foundling home. On that first trip, their quota was 30 babies.

Gay checked them in, keeping careful records. Swiftly, she noted that her quota of 30 had grown to 31. An American mother confessed: "He was lying there all fat and clean—somebody had just delivered him at the old home—so I brought him along." They called him their "stolen baby." Later, he would become the first to be adopted.

Babies Need Parents of Their Own

As her protegés blossomed, Gay looked ahead. They needed names and parents of their own. In Iran, adoption was frowned on by the religion of Islam. An adopted child had no legal status; it could not inherit property. Foreign adoptions were permitted, however. An American couple asked for a child. "We'll even take twins," they wrote. The home had a homely, hairy, button-nosed pair.

Gay said, "I have your twins but they are not pretty; indeed, I'm afraid they're downright ugly." That week, a second set as beautiful as alabaster dolls arrived. She wrote immediately to the Americans, offering them the dream pair.

They replied, "Your first letter brought us so much joy that we began thinking immediately of your 'ugly' twins as ours. We do not wish to change."

Inevitably, childless Iranians who had money and position, but no offspring, came to plead their cause, and Gay found a little-known custom that allowed a man to bring a child into his home if he declared it his blood offspring. Iranian husbands were soon eagerly declaring themselves the actual fathers of orphans.

The roster of the Well-Baby Center has a glorious record; more than 115 orphans have been adopted, 58 by Americans, a score by Iranians, the remainder by other nationalities.

Last February, Gay Currie left Teheran. In May, she went to a chapel near her home in Montreat, N.C., and married the same Joseph Fox whose wit and wisdom had cheered her through her worst moments in Teheran. They now live in Washington, D. C., while he prepares for another overseas assignment. Wherever he goes, she will go, too, as wife or nurse or both.

Today, Currie-trained girls are serving with unprecedented skill in many Iranian orphanages and clinics. Young pediatricians are abler because of their internship at the Well-Baby Center. And Iranian women by the score, released from futility and wornout customs, are serving the unfortunate.

Before Gay left Teheran a high-ranking Iranian came to the center to say good-bye. His words were those of a simple Moslem benediction. "God speed you, Gay Currie," he said. "And God speed us all, and God be praised that I have lived to see this day."

Underground Explosion

U.S. Touches Off No-Fallout Blast As Tests Resume

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States began its underground nuclear test series with an apparently junior-size blast packing a punch equivalent to 1,000 tons of TNT—possibly less.

President Kennedy announced that Friday's low yield, no-fallout underground explosion took place in a remote, highly guarded section of Nevada. There was no advance announcement and the blast was not audible in the nearest city, Las Vegas, 65 miles away.

In his statement, Kennedy said, "The detonation has produced no fallout. This is in marked contrast to the Soviet nuclear tests in the atmosphere."

He added, "The United States once again reaffirms its readiness to negotiate a controled test ban agreement of the widest possible scope."

Fifteen days ago, the Soviets junked their three-year moratorium on nuclear testing. They have fired 10 blasts into the atmosphere in their current test series.

There have been reports from an authoritative source that a series of 24 U.S. weapons was ready for testing as soon as Kennedy gave the go-ahead.

1. The White House described the explosive yield of the blast only as one of "low yield."

2. A University of California seismologist reported that his seismograph had recorded the earthshock from the blast. He said its magnitude on the earthquake scale of reckoning was 4. That would be a moderate earthquake.

It was the 104th nuclear explosion at the Nevada proving grounds. The 103rd shot was set off nearly three years ago.

There were no reporters present at the blast. The White House had announced that no on-the-scene coverage by news media would be permitted at future U.S. nuclear tests.

Word of the blast was flashed to Washington over an open telephone line from the test site to Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, who relayed it over a direct line to the President at the White House.

But at Las Vegas a sonic boom from a fast flying airplane 28 minutes after the blast was mistaken for the nuclear explosion.

In the old days of testing—before October 1958—mighty flashes, mushroom clouds and devastating booms rewarded viewers who turned out to watch the show.

Settlements 'Trickle In' At GM Plants

68 Reach Accord; Union's Executive Board Calls Parley

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers union's International Executive Board gathered here today for a special meeting while the union and strike-plagued General Motors Corp. plodded toward settlement of local-level issues across the country.

Early today 68 plants with workers represented by the UAW had settled and three represented by the International Union of Electrical Workers also had reached agreement. GM has 129 plants represented by the UAW and six by the IUE.

A number of plants were unable to operate because of local strike. About 242,000 workers remained out of their jobs. GM employs about 350,000 hourly workers.

Settlements came in a trickle Friday. When Walter P. Reuther, UAW president, left the bargaining table at midnight, he said about 15 meetings were being held at the local level around the country and "a number of them are rather close to settlement."

Reuther said the executive board meeting would decide whether to call a meeting of the union's national council. The council has the authority to approve a new contract and quash any local disputes.

President Kennedy has asked that agreement be wrapped up in time to get back in full production by Monday, but it appeared that the request couldn't be met. The union and GM have agreed on a national economic package and on most national work rules, but dispute over local level work rules and production standards stalled full agreement.

Reuther took time out from bargaining at GM Friday to sign the UAW's new agreement covering 25,000 workers of American Motors Corp. The historic settlement, which calls for profit-sharing, must be ratified by local AMC members.

5 Ore Cars Derailed In Columbiana Area

COLUMBIANA — Five ore cars in a Pennsylvania Railroad Co. freight train were derailed at 2 a.m. today at the intersection of the tracks and Route 344 at the Kaiser Aluminum plant a mile west.

The diesel engine heading the long line of cars was damaged in the mishap. A railroad detective said the engine apparently became unhitched.

As it then slowed down, the remainder of the train drifted into the rear of it.

Four of the cars were empty and one was full. The right-of-way is expected to be cleared by noon. None of the rails was damaged.

Senate Opens Battle Over Filibusters

Dixie Opponents Seen Holding Top Hand In Rules Tiff

WASHINGTON (AP)—Southern opponents appeared to have the upper hand today as Senate leaders signaled for the start of a fight over a proposed rules change to make it easier to choke off filibusters.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana planned to move to take up a measure that would permit debate to be cut off by three-fifths of the senators present and voting, rather than the two-thirds as is now required.

With the support of Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, Mansfield said he would follow with a petition to limit debate on the proposed rules change.

Under this procedure, a vote will automatically come one hour after the Senate meets Tuesday on the question of whether to limit debate. This is expected to mark the turning point of the battle.

If debate limitation is invoked—and it will take a two-thirds majority under present rules—then each senator will be allowed to speak for only one hour.

This would clear the way for bringing the proposed rules change to a vote. But if the move to limit debate fails, the Southern forces will be able to filibuster against any action.

Civil rights forces have protested that the end of a session is the worst possible time to try to change the Senate's rules. They contend it plays into the hands of the Southerners because senators are tired and anxious to go home.

The filibuster has been Southerners' most potent weapon in beating of civil rights legislation. Sen. Richard B. Russell, chief strategist for the Dixie forces, contends that advocates of a new rule for halting filibusters are more interested in passing legislation to alter the economy.

Since the Senate first adopted an antifilibuster rule in 1917, 32 attempts have been made to limit debate. Only four times have the moves succeeded—the last time in 1927.

West Aides Progress On Berlin Steps

Foreign Ministers To Conclude 3-Day Conference Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Western foreign ministers were reported today to have made good progress in agreeing on military, political, and other countermeasures that may be used by the Allied powers against Soviet pressures on West Berlin.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk and the foreign ministers of Britain, France and West Germany were scheduled to wind up their three-day Washington conference early this afternoon.

Rusk was scheduled to go to New York Sunday for the opening days of the U.N. General Assembly, beginning Tuesday, and for exploratory talks on Berlin with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

The foreign ministers meeting with Rusk—Britain's Lord Home, France's Maurice Couve de Murville and West Germany's Heinrich von Brentano—are reported to consider the Rusk-Gromyko probing operation of crucial importance. Britain, and apparently the United States, favor an East-West foreign ministers meeting on Berlin in October or November if Gromyo brings word that Soviet Premier Khrushchev is ready for negotiations on what the Western powers would consider reasonable terms.

On the other hand, information from inside the conference is that the four Western ministers agreed that they will not become involved in any negotiations in which Khrushchev clearly intends to dictate the terms and humiliate the West. If that is the attitude which Gromyko displays to Rusk, the judgment of the Western ministers is reported to be that prospects of a shooting war over Berlin will be very great.

Informants said the Western foreign ministers have considered the possibility of making Berlin an open city or of establishing U.N. agencies in Berlin as a guarantee of its independence.

The Western policy meeting here went into its final day amid a rash of rumors about possible new moves by the Soviet Union and Communist East Germany in the Berlin crisis. The ministers learned Friday that the U.S. government has reports that the East German regime plans "the arrest and mass deportation" of people living on the Communist side of the Berlin and East German boundaries.

One of the major problems before Rusk and the foreign ministers has been what counteraction to take if the Reds undertake new moves.

Warpainted Tribesmen Join Assault

White Officers Are Leading Blows On Main U.N. Center

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—U.N. troops were reported reeling today under a massive assault by Katanga soldiers and warpainted Baluba tribesmen on Kamina, the main U.N. military center in rebellious Katanga Province.

A radio message from the Kamina control tower received at Usumbura, in the neighboring Belgian trust territory of Ruanda-Urundi, said resistance of the 500-man Irish and Swedish garrison was weakening and "it will be difficult to hold out much longer."

White officers led the massed attacks.

A bloody struggle, touched off Wednesday by the U.N. decision to use force to restore Katanga to the rule of the Congo's central government in Leopoldville, persisted also in Elisabethville, the capital, and at the mining town of Jadotville, 60 miles northwest of Elisabethville.

U.N. helicopters ferried food and ammunition to the isolated Irish garrison of Jadotville, beseiged by hordes of hostile Katangans in six days of savage fighting. A Dublin dispatch said the Irish government listed 3 men as missing and presumed dead, 5 wounded and 27 captured from a Jadotville defense force that originally totaled 150.

Sniping continued in the tree-lined streets of Elisabethville. City power lines were reported cut again. A clandestine station calling itself Radio Free Katanga quoted President Moise Tshombe as saying his regime is conducting total war against the United Nations.

Two jet aircraft of Tshombe's tiny air force bombed and strafed U.N. troop positions, which have neither fighter planes nor antiaircraft batteries.

U.N. headquarters was reported to have asked member governments urgently for jet fighters. Informed sources said Sweden was considering sending in some.

Casualties have been heavy and U.N. sources said Katangans regained control of large sections of Elisabethville.

The bitterest fighting, however, appeared centered at Jadotsville and at Kamina, in the north.

Milk Driver Arouses 5 In House Blaze

Fire In East End Apparently Started By Cigarette Ashes

An alert milk truck driver aroused the occupants of a double house in the East End this morning, enabling five persons to flee the burning home.

Don Moore of Calcutta, a driver for Vernon Dell Dairy, spotted smoke coming from a front bedroom in the half of the frame dwelling at 938-940 Railroad St. occupied by John Norris.

Pounding on the front doors of the Norris home and that occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Hull, Moore awakened the families and Norris, who had been asleep on a downstairs couch, called firemen.

Norris, Mr. and Mrs. Hull and their two children fled from the house. Norris' wife and two children were staying with relatives

Plans Pushed For New Link Of Lake Road

Engineering work still is moving ahead on schedule for the second southern phase of an East Liverpool - Ashtabula freeway, stretching from the city limits in California Hollow to a point at Substation, the Board of Directors of the Lake Erie-Ohio River Highway Association was assured Friday in a conference with State Highway Department officials at Salem.

Preparation of detailed plans and specifications for the stretch should be complete by late November or early December, which means the department will be ready to call for contractors' bids early in 1962, the group was told.

In previous announcements, the department had indicated it might let contracts late in 1961, but the new schedule will mean no delay in construction, the highway officials said. Although a contract might have been let late this year, no significant work on construction could have been done before next spring, they pointed out.

East Liverpool was represented at the meeting at the Salem Golf Club by Atty. Francis H. Lang and E. R. Chandler, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce. A. P. Morris of Salem is the third member of the association's board from Columbiana County. J. Paul Mossman, manager of the Youngstown Area Chamber of Commerce, is president.

The city's California Hollow-West End Freeway, now more than 50 per cent complete, also represents the southernmost segment of the lake-river highway. It ends at the north city limits. The next phase of the lake-river road will begin at the city limits and extend to a point where the Y. & O. Rd. intersects Routes 7 and 30 at Substation.

The association's board members conferred with William McKenna, head of the Division 11 Highway Department at New Philadelphia, and Carl Campbell, head of the Division 4 office at Ravenna, and members of both division staffs.

Man Drowns In Fall Into Yellow Creek

Edgar Wilson, 50, Wellsville Potter, Loses Life Fishing

A Wellsville potter drowned Friday night in Yellow Creek while on a fishing trip with a step-son.

The body of Edgar (Ed) Wilson, 50, of 1822 Buckeye Ave., was discovered at 1:30 a. m. today, about an hour after dragging operations started. The mishap was timed at 10 p. m.

Authorities said Mr. Wilson tumbled into the deep water from a steep embankment while fishing with Joseph Fluharty.

They were approximately 200 to 300 feet upstream from the old underpass on abandoned Route 7.

Fluharty told authorities that the two were fishing along the bank from some old pieces of concrete when Mr. Wilson lost his footing and tumbled into the water. He said he got a hold of him once but was unable to drag him from the water.

Fluharty then walked back to Wellsville and told his mother of the accident. She notified the Wellsville police who in turn called the fire department.

Fire Chief Robert Lewis said it was estimated Mr. Wilson had

Commissioners Fire Coroner Of Hancock

Hancock County commissioners have dismissed Dr. George S. Naymick, county coroner.

The Weirton physician confirmed his dismissal today after receiving a letter from Courthouse officials in New Cumberland.

Commissioners have made no appointment to fill the vacancy as yet. Justices of the peace will assume duties as deputy coroners until an appointment is made.

The letter dismissing Dr. Naymick cited his residence in the Brooke County sector of Weirton as the reason for the action.

Dr. Naymick was appointed as coroner several years ago when David Thomas of Weirton served as president of County Court.

Leaders Ask Workers For Fund Appeal

Community Fund campaign leaders today began recruiting the 700 to 800 volunteer workers scheduled to participate in the local drive next month.

Richard R. Emmerling, campaign chairman, today outlined organization plans for 10 volunteer divisions and named their leaders.

The "Advance Special Gifts" division will be headed by Winston A. Porter and Sidney C. Porter Jr., both of the Globe Brick Co. This unit will require some 20 to 25 workers.

The Mercantile Division, which contacts about 400 large business establishments, (both executives and employes) will need nearly 100 workers. This unit will be directed by William Williams of the Ohio Power Co.

From 40 to 50 workers will be required in the Public Service Devision, headed by T. Fred Edwards, of the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. Another 40 will likely be needed in the Public Affairs Division, led by Paul Blair, assistant superintendent of E. Liverpool Public Schools.

Fallout Shelters Eyed

'Berlin' Revives Interest In City Civil Defense Unit

With cold war shivers running down their backs, more and more East Liverpool householders are finding their way to an almost-forgotten cubbyhole office at City Hall—Civil Defense headquarters.

The Berlin crisis, Khrushchev's rocket rattling and President Kennedy's stern replies have brought thoughts of atomic warfare and fallout shelters to the forefront for the first time since the early days of the Korean conflict.

Mrs. Edna Sweeney, CD Council secretary, said the number of inquiries directed to her office in the last six weeks is far greater than at any time since the North Koreans marched across the 38th Parallel into South Korea and touched off the last war.

East Liverpool householders, judging by their enquiries, are concerned primarily with construction of home shelters against atomic fallout. Others, in addition to their concern for themselves and their families, want to know what they can do to aid CD work, Mrs. Sweeney added.

The CD Council here is ready with stacks of literature on most phases of civilian survival in nuclear war. The booklets and pamphlets are available for persons who call at the CD office on the second floor of City Hall.

They will be mailed to individuals who are unable to make the trip downtown to pick them up, Mrs. Sweeney added.

The most comprehensive publication on shelters is titled Civil Defense Technical Bulletin, with been in the water about an hour when they arrived. The Wellsville Boat Club sent four boats to the area and dragging operations started between 11:30 and midnight.

The body was found in 10 feet of water about five feet from shore.

Operating the boats were Dave Burroughs, Don Hepp, Webb Thompson, Victor Carosiello, John Erwin, Richard Spahr and Richard Barnes, Boat Club members, and Wellsville Patrolman Robert Wellington.

Firemen set up portable lights along the bank. Chief Lewis said the water is very deep along the shoreline.

He pointed out raising of the Ohio River by the new superdam at Stratton has caused the water to back up into Yellow Creek. The water has reached a level where there is no shallow shoreline anymore, he said.

Lewis said this condition also exists in the Ohio River.

Six volunteers responded to the call with the emergency truck. Two Jefferson County sheriff deputies were on the scene.

They obtained a release from Jefferson County Coroner J. P. Smarrella and the body was taken to the Haugh Funeral Home at Wellsville.

Mr. Wilson was born in New Cumberland May 1, 1911, son of Mrs. Vaughn Loy of Wellsville, and the late Howard Wilson. He was employed at the Wellsville China Co. for 12 years. A World War II veteran, he served with the paratroopers for five years. He was a member of the New Cumberland Veterans of Foreign Wars and the IBOP Local 24.

Besides his mother, he is survived by his widow, Mrs. Elsie Wilson, and a daughter, Miss Janice Wilson, both at home; another daughter, Mrs. Delores Konechick of Wellsville; a step - daughter, Mrs. Frank Woods of Steubenville; another step-son, Dail Fluharty, stationed in Virginia with the Navy; a sister, Mrs. Kenneth Mathers, and a brother, John Wilson, both of Wellsville, and 11 grandchildren.

Services will be held Monday at 1:30 p. m. at the Haugh Funeral Home. Burial will be in New Cumberland Cemetery, where services will be conducted by the VFW.

Friends may call at the funeral home Sunday afternoon and evening.

as the family prepared to move today.

Asst. Chief James Pelly said the fire originated in the front upstairs bedroom. The cause hasn't been determined definitely, but cigarette ashes may have been dropped in the bedroom, he added.

Firemen received the alarm at 8:40 a. m. and had the blaze under control 12 minutes later, using an oxygen mask to enter the bedroom.

The fire was confined to the bedroom where the principal damage occurred. There also was some heat and smoke damage to other rooms and slight water damage, Pelly said.

Firemen also had to open holes in the ceiling and floor of the bedroom to make certain the flames hadn't extended.

Patrolman's Hunch About Fire's True

When city firemen received a fire call to a Railroad St. home this morning, Patrolman Paul A. Burson Jr., desk officer, referred the call to Patrolman William E. McDaniel in the downtown cruiser because the East End cruiser temporarily was off the air.

As McDaniel headed for the home, he had a strange hunch. When the house number was relayed to him, the officer, who resides on W. 4th St., learned the hunch was correct. He own the double frame dwelling!

City Interest In CD Revived

plans and specifications for construction of a basic underground fallout shelter and details on the food, water and supplies that would be required for a family of four to six.

The booklet includes details on constructing the shelter and data on ventilating, lighting and emergency sanitation facilities.

The drawings depict a poured concrete structure with 2 feet 3 inches of earth cover. It is 12 feet long, 9 feet 4 inches wide and 7 feet 6 inches high. The walls are 8 inches thick — solid concrete — and the roof slab is 6 inches thick.

The shelter also can be incorporated into small separate structures such as garages or garden houses, the booklet says. Another drawing shows how a similar shelter can be erected in the basement of a home, utilizing two of the cellar walls.

Three feet of earth cover generally will provide "a high degree of protection" against radiation, the booklet points out. Similar protection will be provided by 24 inches of concrete; 7½ inches of iron or steel or 3 inches of lead, it adds.

After attack, virtually every locality in the U.S. would be subject to fallout that would require inhabitants to remain in shelters for two weeks or more, the booklet says. In many areas, radiation levels might permit leaving a shelter for intermittent periods or permanently after two or three days. Since the density of fallout at any particular spot is difficult to predict, any shelter should be prepared for two-week occupancy, it recommends.

Shelters should provide at least 12½ square feet of floor for each inhabitant and ceiling heights should not be less than 6½ feet, it recommends.

The East Liverpool CD office has another booklet entitled Home Protection Exercises" that is designed mainly to guide the average family in preparing in advance against warfare — including preparation of a shelter, first aid lessons and stockpiling of emergency supplies of food and water.

There is a booklet, "Facts About Fallout Protection," which in brief phrases and a few cartoons explains the dangers of fallout and how to guard against it. Another called "Between You and Disaster" lists the foods and other supplies required for an emergency shelter.

Another pamphlet with basic information on evacuation, home shelters and fallout is called "Six Steps to Survival."

The East Liverpool CD office has ample supplies of all the booklets, published by the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization.

There's even a wallet-size card titled "Civil Defense Preparedness" that boils down the instructions to about a dozen sentences. It includes the various siren signals that would be used to warn of imminent attack and explains how national defense radio messages would be confined to two spots on the radio dial — 640 or 1240 kilocycles.

Over the years, the local CD has conducted a series of courses on home preparedness for women's clubs and other groups. The six-week course is designed to prepare the average housewife for the emergencies she would meet under enemy attack. It includes classes in first aid and home nursing, emergency food stores and fire-fighting.

The course has been presented for the Business & Professional Women's Club, Women of the Salvation Army and the Quota Club. Some parts of the course, at least, have been presented for virtually every parent - teacher association in the area.

Organization of new home preparedness classes will be discussed when the Women's Civil Defense Council meets Wednesday night at 7:30 at City Hall.

Mrs. Sweeney said any women interested in joining the group or in obtaining information about civil defense may attend the session.

The office is open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The telephone number is FU. 5-5394.

And joining CD isn't like joining the Army, Mrs. Sweeney reminded.

A woman caller told her Thursday she was anxious to join the local CD force, but her husband was against it.

"He thinks it's like joining the Army and I'll get sent away somewhere," she explained.

Mrs. Sweeney said the women's organization is aimed mainly at helping housewives prepare their homes against the event of atomic attack or natural disaster. The women's branch has been active three years, meeting each month.

ing some 75 to 100 workers. The Men's Division, headed by Harold Sneddon, who also is serving as assistant campaign chairman, will need another 50 to 100. These two divisions contact several hundred smaller and independently-owned businesses.

The Professional Division, which will solicit gifts from doctors, attorneys, dentists, etc., will be headed by Mrs. Norman Birnbaum and Mrs. Alexander Fisher. They are recruiting some 20 to 25 workers.

Robert W. Gray, Boy Scout executive, will form the Chester Division of about 25 to 30 volunteers and Melvin Whittington of the Crucible Steel Co. will head the Newell Division of 15 to 20 solicitors, both in the West Virginia area. The Industrial Division, largest in the Campaign organization, will be directed by William Hocking Jr. of the Hall China Co. and William F. Porter of the Globe Brick Co. Some 400 to 500 workers may be included in this division by the time its roster is completed.

Both Chairman Emmerling and Assistant Chairman Sneddon today urged volunteers to phone Community Fund headquarters (Fulton 5-2082) and offer their help, saying, "the fullest participation will be required if we are to achieve success in the coming campaign. Each of the six agencies — Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, YMCA, Salvation Army, Recreation Council and USO — depend on the Community Fund for their major maintenance in the coming year. If these agencies are to survive in our community, the campaign must be successful. We must have enough workers to contact every resident in the area; everyone should be given the opportunity to contribute to these important community agencies."

Opening date, campaign goal, division quotas and other campaign details will be decided at next week's meetings of campaign and association officials.

How Are Your Nerves?

It is crossing the minds of many lately that there's nothing new about a war of nerves except the name.

Like most of the other things that men claim to have discovered about human nerves, the war that's waged with imagination was known ages ago.

If the tireless gadflies of the Kremlin could have their way they would have scared every non-Communist to death by this time. They would have convinced every Communist that all truth resided in the Kremlin, and they would have brain-washed all waverers to the point of helplessness.

This hasn't happened.

It isn't going to happen.

Those who know most about the way things are done inside the Soviet Union and Communist China are least nervous. They see the Communist movement for what it is—a forced-draft industrial revolution that squeezes extra work out of people by telling them it's done for the sake of ideology.

It's like an attempt to keep people fired up with war slogans throughout the duration of a long war. First the slogans wear thin, then they wear out. The war of nerves may hurt its perpetrators more than it hurts its victims.

THE FACT is that the Soviet Union never has had any interest in Communism as such, which has been experimented with only in experimental communes set up at various times in the United States.

It has peddled its ideology like a patent medicine pitchman. But it has avoided using its own nostrum in therapeutic doses.

All this has been successfully concealed by one of the most fantastic projects of preying on human fear ever conceived. By taking advantage of every natural fear and creating unnatural fears where no natural ones existed, the psychological warriors of the Kremlin have peopled the world with goblins, spooks, ogres, imps and specters—all red.

These creations now are found under ever overturned rock. They lurk under beds and spring from behind trees.

They fill the news from Berlin, and when that crisis finally has passed and the Kremlin has created a new one, they will fill the news from there, too.

They spring out from places in the United States where no one ever suspected anything sinister before. Every objectionable move, every disputed word or thought immediately is pointed to as the suspected hiding place for one of these Kremlin-manufactured fears.

IT'S ALL PART of the war of nerves.

Berlin is only part of it—the temporary focal point.

A few months ago it was Cuba. It has been Laos, Egypt, the Congo, Korea, Taiwan in the past. It will be Brazil, Mexico, Japan, India, Hawaii in the future.

But this isn't new for Americans—this relentless nibbling at the people's confidence.

It has been tried against them before. In the 19th century it was being tried so relentlessly that the United States was driven to declare in the Monroe Doctrine that the Old World should quit trying to undermine the New World. Russia was working at it hard, then—czarist Russia.

Britain worked at it, first in the attempt to hold Americans in subjugation, later in an attempt to destroy their new government. France worked at it with a plot to take over Mexico for the Holy Alliance.

Spain would have liked to topple America, but was too decadent to do a good job. The Japanese had their turn. And of course the Germans and even the Italians, who never were cut out for this sort of thing.

WAR OF NERVES is not new.

Americans have endured wars of nerves before. They endured them at the hands of hostile Indians.

They sweated out the odd-against chances of survival on raw frontiers. But by keeping their nerves steady instead of allowing them to fall apart they managed to survive and prosper.

If at any time your nerves start to go to pieces under current stresses and strains, think back to the time of your great-great grandfather. He was surrounded by things that could destroy him, though he had been assured on the highest authority that atoms were forever unsplittable.

A Time For PTA Re-Evaluation

Complaints that some Parent - Teacher Association meetings are devoted too much to entertainment and money-raising must be countered with an analysis of the over-all picture of the PTA and its problems.

There are many PTAs in which the link between instructor and home is developed through greater understanding and cooperation, with the education of the child and improvement of the school program being furthered as the result.

However, there are other PTAs in which the basic aims of the organization are bogged down in games and preparations for school parties and bake sales and the highlight of the meetings is either a skit by students or serving of refreshments.

A survey conducted by The Review four years ago pointed out the difficulties faced by PTA leaders. Officers stated that in fund-pinched school budgets there is no money for certain supplies and teaching aids which the PTA provides.

Officers and teachers lamented that the only way they could attract many mothers and fathers to meetings was to put the youngsters in a playlet or musical program.

The PTAs have established goals, and there is no real excuse for not meeting them. But PTA is comprised of teachers and parents. Having equal responsibility in education of the child, they first should work together to insure their relationship is one which paves the way to assisting the child.

Now, at the beginning of a new term, is an excellent time to re-evaluate the PTA program to see if the individual organization is meeting its 1961-62 challenges and its newly-defined goals.

They Didn't Know How Loaded

It couldn't have been a case of the United Nations not knowing the gun was loaded in Katanga Province in the Congo.

Having been on the scene for a year, with everything in plain sight, the Swedes, Irishmen and Indians who make up the U.N. enforcement arm in Katanga Province must have known the gun was loaded.

But surely they could not have known how loaded, on the basis of what has been happening to them since trouble erupted between them and local belligerents in Elisabethville.

They have been encountering jet fighting planes, armored cars, disciplined troops and white officers who know an uncomfortable lot about the military game.

They have been meeting major resistance, in fact, and there is a possibility they may be overmatched. The next step, if this were to be so, would give the United Nations something to think about.

The United Nations either would have to step up its rate of military exertion against Katanga Province or lose everything it has been fighting for in the Congo—unification of the Katanga rebels with the Republic of Congo.

It would have to prove it could lick the irreconcilable Belgians who never have been reconciled to the loss of the Congo, or admit it was powerless to protect other new states in Africa against interference from Europe, Asia, Latin America at the discretion of would-be interferers.

This shapes up as the touchiest situation for the United Nations since that fateful November day in 1950 when troops that had pushed ahead to the Yalu River discovered they were fighting Chinese "volunteers."

The United Nations never did figure out what to do about that, except to retreat and hang on until it could achieve an armistice in July 1953.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

"Miss America" issue got settled for 1961 although the same cannot be said for Berlin crisis, atomic bomb threat to civilization and global Mr. Dracula Contest.

More extensive planning, all out concentration and deep precision routines went into selection of a beauty queen than seems to go into summit meetings and world crisis conferences.

Well, folks never needed entertainment and relaxing events more, so why complain? If the world could get back to a point where only disputes were over bust, waist and ankle measurements, what a break it would be for civilization! We'd all feel so much more at ease.

For a brief interval beautiful faces and figures got call over some of the globe's ugliest people. Grace and loveliness knocked crudeness and savagery out of the picture temporarily.

Interest in legs, facial perfection, charm and general glamour triumphed over interest in fists, voice throwing, men's baggy suits, unpraised shoes and desk thumpings. It was good for morale.

For a little while the peaceful southern town of Ashville, N.C., shoved Moscow, Belgrade, Peiping and Bizerte into the background. A 18-year-old gal of rare beauty, Maria Beale Fletcher, took some attention away from Nikita Khrushchev, Fidel Castro and other violent foes of freedom.

But it was not too easy to forget that, as eye-filling American beauties paraded in the elaborate ceremonials, the "Four Horsemen of Apocalypse" were almost all set to come down a grim runway along the borders of Hell, to the applause of some extra evil global characters, each dressed up for a Mr. Global Annihilation Contest.

Atlantic City event was not a complete waste of time. It made a lot of folks forget for a few hours some male extra ugly mugs and grotesque shapes.

New "Miss America" was formerly a dancer with Radio City Rockettes. This put her on her toes for Atlantic City pageant, obviously.

LAST "OPEN END" PROGRAM should have been called "Open Barroom." It was boozy, cheap and vulgar featuring the rowdy atmosphere of an all-night salon dispute. Few Sunday nights in airwave history have been so degraded.

Jim Lanigan, who beat Tammany boss DeSapio and may be new Tiger chief, is a Harvard man. That rumbling you hear is Dick Croker, Charlie Murphy and Boss Tweed turning over in graves.

The first Chief Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court was John Jay. He later resigned, stating that he did not think the Supreme Court would ever amount to much.

It's Kickoff Time Again

Industry Fights Price Edict

By Victor Riesel

On the morning of Sept. 7, President Kennedy approved a telegram to 12 men which declared war on the steel industry. Actually the wire was signed by his press aide, Pierre Salinger, who now rates with "Hurricane Carla" in the executive suites of the nation's steel companies.

Victor Riesel

As in all wars, there was a series of events leading up to the firing of the first shot—the ricocheting of which won't end for a year.

This first shot may, in fact, touch off a war not alone with steel but with all of U.S. industry.

For months now the President and the secretary of labor, Arthur Goldberg and White House economists have been discussing strategy for freezing prices.

They decided on the tactic of public assault. In effect, the White House would openly dare industry to raise the tabs on its merchandise.

ON SEPT. 6, in line with this decision, President Kennedy signed 12 letters to the heads of the major steel corporations. They were mailed while copies were quietly "leaked" to several newsmen.

The letters, urging the steel industry not to raise prices, arrived in the regular mail on the secretarial desks in the steel company offices during the morning hours of Sept. 7. Most of the steel company presidents and board chairmen were out.

About 11:30 a.m. these were followed by a telegram from Pierre Salinger. Since the press, said Salinger, had gotten wind of the President's letters, the White House would release them to avoid confusion.

The telegram had come just a few hours too late. Newsmen already had placed calls to such men as Roger Blough, chairman of the board of U.S. Steel and Arthur Homer, chairman of Bethlehem Steel.

There had been no advance notice of the presidential letters. None of the company chiefs had been quietly called in and first asked to freeze prices. Most of them did not know of the communication until they read of it in the newspapers.

Mr. Salinger's wire merely sent tempers higher than the 93-degree heat.

THE STEEL COMPANIES then returned the favor. The paper war began. Bethlehem Steel replied by mail—and the President could have read it all in the press. U.S. Steel hand delivered its answer at noontime Sept. 13—by which time the company letter already had leaked into city rooms.

The White House now complained that all this was not fair.

President Kennedy had expected the companies to reply en masse, at one time. Nor was he pleased with the fact that the companies were telling him his Council of Economic Advisers was not really that well informed, and that the unions were showing as little restraint as a teen-ager with her first lipstick.

With the first volley over, we war correspondents began wondering how it would affect the steel industry's negotiations with the steel union next spring.

WOULD THERE BE another long steel strike? There will be if the prices are frozen and Dave McDonald's United Steelworkers demand another big pay-package—as has Walter Reuther.

This isn't guesswork. There was a speech made by Conrad Cooper, U.S. Steel executive vice president, last July 14. I dug it out from where I had tucked it away when I flew off to another barbed front.

In it Mr. Cooper in effect, tells Arthur Goldberg that neither the labor secretary nor the administration appear to know how to settle disputes.

"Many people," said Cooper, "have been quite disturbed by the rapidity with which Washington has intervened in several labor disputes during the first months of the new administration."

COOPER STATES that under the present circumstances the unions are more powerful than industry. He disagrees with Goldberg's formula for industrial peace—a formula which calls for use of the President's 21-man labor-management board and the admission of public representatives to the bargaining table.

All this would lead to "government control of virtually all major bargaining, a stepping stone for the establishment and enforcement of national wage and price policies. . . ."

Then, answering charges by labor that industry had developed a hard policy, Cooper said:

. . ."If the term 'soft policy' points in the direction of appeasement and an attitude of 'labor peace at any price,' then surely this extreme must be ruled out as being unworthy . . . . There is no room for soft heads in this field of endeavor. . . ."

It does look like a lot more will be hot on the steel front than the blast furnaces.

Cotton Corners

By Truman Twill

Dear Nephew: Fall has come to Cotton Corners.

The leaves are drifting through our linden tree. The tips of the buckeye trees are bare.

The foliage on the zinnias has turned brown. The tomato plants have given up, the chrysanthemums and marigolds have taken over responsibility for color arrangements in the flower garden and we have received our first Christmas catalog.

This to me is the most wonderful yet the saddest transformation of all the seasons.

Perhaps because of my age but more likely because of the way Spring has acted lately, I rarely get a rise out of the end of Winter. But I will have to concede that the end of Summer couldn't be staged better if it had been done in Hollywood.

Even the temperature was taken care of this year in meticulous detail. The day it began to drop, all other autumn effects were in full blast. The crabgrass was as high as a small dog's eye. The pears had the wonderful russet color that has been the despair of artists for centuries.

The wind was bearing the most exciting perfume there is — distant wood smoke. Why doesn't some perfume works put this in a bottle and sell it to indoor girls who want to bowl over outdoor men?

Of if they can't get that into a bottle, they should try the scent of fallen apples lying in high grass that has been wet down with a hard rain. There are a dozen wonderful fragrances the perfume people haven't done anything about. Where did they get the idea that people want to smell like flowers when they could smell like burning apple wood, apples, plums, an asphalt highway on a hot afternoon, fallen leaves and newly plowed ground?

But I have strayed from my theme: Fall at Cotton Corners.

In the morning the greatest project of logistics ever tackled by men occurs here as it occurs everywhere — the movement of umpteen million educational shock troops to their battle positions. First come the janitors, then the teachers, then the kids.

Then the whole army is returned to its quarters for the night — and all this takes place with efficiency and dispatch that would be the envy of a military transportation specialist.

The county fair is over. Another Berlin crisis is at its height. Football players have pushed baseball players out of sight, except for a last flurry of interest during the World Series.

Soft drink stands have posted "See You in the Spring" signs. People are closing up summer cottages and figuring out where to keep boats until it's time to put them back in the water.

Women are wearing heavier clothing, and I note that some men who had peeled down to the buff are getting back into undershirts.

Your Aunt Effie has been telling me about the things she hoped I'd get done this summer, and I have been telling your Aunt Effie about the things I did get done this summer.

The sheep in the meadow are acting the way a misled lyric writer once said they behaved in June, when things are "bustin' out all over." I am thinking about buying a new cold-weather cap with retractable ear tabs, and I detect a liverish cast in the once-golden tan on babes who debark at the filling station to give the local yokels a look at what's going on down the road.

It's Autumn, and each year when it comes I'm conscious of something that's impossible to believe in Winter, Spring and early Summer. This is the fact Autumn brings the same relief we feel when we go to bed. We get tired from the things we do in Summer — not tired of them but from them. We need to doze and nod until it's time again to be up and doing next Spring.

Fall has come to Cotton Corners. It has come to me. Give our regards to all and good luck to the family scholars who are, I hope, deep in the books again by this time.

Cotton Corners UNCLE GEORGE

Suspicions Revived

By David Lawrence

Russians May Have Made Robot Space Orbit

Whether Gagarin and Titov, the Soviet spacemen, actually circled the earth or whether they merely parachuted to earth from a previously fixed location after a satellite had gone around the globe has not been conclusively proved as yet but high officials in Washington say that the American project whereby a simulated astronaut traveled around the earth in orbit this week proves that it is theoretically possible that the Soviets didn't actually put a man on the two satellites as claimed.

David Lawrence

Officially the course of the government here is not to express any doubts on the subject. This is a wise bit of diplomacy but it is conceded privately that proof of the alleged flights by Gagarin and Titov is still lacking.

As one space expert put it: "They may have had a man in their satellites and he may never have been ejected, or it may have crashed and someone else could have parachuted from a fixed location and claimed to have gone around the world himself."

A comparison of what was done by the American satellite and what Maj. Gagarin did follows: (Each made one orbit of earth.)

	U.S. Robot	Gagarin
TIME
	1 hour 49 mins.	1 hour 48 mins.
ALTITUDE
	17,500 m.p.h.	17,500 m.p.h.

The artificial astronaut was constructed so it could breathe, sweat and talk just like a human being, and, except for two minor defects, it did just that.

Ground stations throughout the world monitored the flight of the American capsule and kept a close check on its progress.

The artifical astronaut was a small, grey box of instruments 3 feet high, 2 feet wide, and 1 foot thick.

It was laced with hoses, pipes and wires designed to put the same load on the capsule's environmental control system as a man would. In fact, three main purposes were fulfilled:

1. Oxygen was inhaled and carbon dioxide was exhaled, and this filled the cabin with heat and moisture, creating conditions comparable to a man breathing.

2. A man's body heat was simulated by an electrical heating element which indicated the capsule temperature a man might endure.

3. Pre-recorded messages were played back from two tape recorders designed to permit an evaluation of the whole communications system.

THE MESSAGES were similar to those an astronaut himself might make in flight. The voice was that of the assistant flight director, Howard Kyle. He used the same sort of words as astronauts would employ in actual flight to test the space-to-ground radio.

All around the world the tracking stations listened. One minute after the launching the signals began to come in loud and clear.

A station in Australia was the last to have "contact" with the voice tapes, as there developed a technical difficulty which can be remedied. There was also a slight leak in the oxygen system.

Other radio instruments on board did send back information on vibration, acceleration and temperature in the capsule. This, of course, wasn't pre-recorded but was provided simultaneously by scientific instruments.

A special color movie camera, automatically operated, was placed in one of the portholes to photograph the view. Another camera was pointed through a periscope, and a third snapped shots of readings on the instrument panels.

IN ADDITION, there were some devices around which can be operated either automatically or by a human astronaut. Thus, the spacecraft turned itself into the proper position in orbit when it first reached outer space.

Also, the on-board timing mechanism was geared to trigger the retro-rockets which slowed the capsule after completing its orbit and sent it into a planned target area in the Atlantic Ocean near Bermuda. The capsule, with all the scientific instruments in it intact, was recovered.

Just before the flight, the information chief at Cape Canaveral said: "It's supposed to do everything a man could do." Apparently the artificial astronaut did just that.

What does it all prove?

It demonstrates that manned and unmanned flights around the world are feasible.

There still is no proof that either Gagarin or Titov did it. Indeed, there is a suspicion that they were trained to come down in a parachute at a given spot and that neither one really had circled the earth.

This suspicion arises from the strange things they were quoted afterwards as saying which do not stand up on a scientific basis—such as the claim of Titov that he was able to distinguish plowed from unplowed fields at a distance of 160 miles up in the air.

Letters To The Editor

I would like to thank the public for their response on our tag day Sept. 9 and also thank the boys and girls who helped us.

I would like the public to know our Marine Corps League Auxiliary, though small in number, is still very active in spite of the fact the league has disbanded for the present time.

A statement was made in town Saturday that we were frauds, that we collected money and went on vacations. This, of course, is not true. We make monthly trips to Butler, Pa., to the Deshon VA hospital; also, we have an Easter party and Christmas party each year for the veterans.

We have our records and proof of our hospital work. We extend an invitation to any doubting Thomases to join us in our trips to the hospital to see how we work and how much the veterans there enjoy our visits and to know they are not forgotten even in peacetime.

Bringing Up A Family

By GARRY C. MEYERS

Children Must Face Inevitabilities

Often in this column, I have entreated parents to exercise great patience and use considerable time, if necessary, to win the child, from about 20 months to three or four years of age, to comply with a special request — to close the door, bring a book or pick up an object from the floor. I have urged the mother not to shift from a request to a command in such instances. I have further advised the mother to avoid commanding a youngster so young to do anything for her, but to request instead; this in the interest of winning the child's co-operation. Then, I have added, "But when you command with No or Don't, command just once. Expect him to obey, or else."

ALSO I HAVE noted that routines like going to bed, going to the toilet, coming into the house are rarely matters for requesting. They are just things to be done regularly, usually being very different from irregular activities commanded.

Sometimes it's necessary just to pick up the tot and take him to bed, for instance. No occasion for a verbal command then or for any punishment.

Now and then a youngster under three or four may suddenly refuse to let you wash his face or hands or put on his coat, mittens or rubbers. This usually happens when you are about to go out with him.

You may not have time to win his co-operation. It's something that must be done rather promptly.

IN SUCH A case, proceed to wash his hands and face or put on his clothes, by force, if necessary, being as skillful as you can. He must learn to face some inevitabilities then. With some practice, his resistances wane or disappear.

You can, of course, reduce the number of such emergencies by more often planning ahead, so as not to be pressed for time.

Some crying scenes may arise when you wash the young child's hair. His resistance may have risen because some soap or water got into his eyes. Even if force becomes necessary, slowness and patience may be desirable. By having him lie down as you proceed, you might prove to him you can keep the water from his eyes.

My bulletins, "Stubborness" and "How To Teach Child Meaning of No," may be had by sending a self-addressed stamped envelope to me in care of this newspaper.

Confident Living

By Norman Vincent Peale

Don't Manufacture Unhappiness

En route by train from Chicago to New York, I went to the dining car and was seated opposite a man and his wife. The woman was conspicuously well dressed. She was stylishly gowned, had a strikingly beautiful fur piece around her shoulders and was wearing very handsome jewelry. You didn't need unusual discernment to perceive that there must be money in the family. This woman was not pleased with anything. She complained about the air-conditioning not being properly adjusted. She complained that the table cloth looked mussy and insisted on the steward's putting on a new one. She complained about the food. She complained about the weather. Everything was wrong.

HER HUSBAND seemed to be an easy-going, genial sort of man. He didn't seem to be paying much attention to his wife's fussing. He and I got to talking. He asked what line of business I was in. I told him I was a minister. I asked what his business was, and he told me. Then he said, "My wife is in business, too."

"She is?" I responded in some surprise. "I didn't take her for a businesswoman."

"Oh, yes," he said. "She's in the manufacturing business."

"Is that so? What does she manufacture?"

"She manufactures unhappiness," he answered. "Her own unhappiness."

Well, the atmosphere at the table grew a bit chilly. But presently we were able to thaw it out a bit and finally draw the woman into an objective discussion of whether it can be said that unhappiness is, for the most part, self-manufactured.

THE PLAIN FACT is, I think, that we ourselves are the cause of most of our unhappiness. To be sure, our physical condition affects the way we feel. So does the social climate, the way our personal plans are working out, local conditions, even the condition of the world.

And much of the time the conditions are adverse, causing us irritation, tension, disappointment, depression, frustration of all kinds. But that is the way things are for everybody — always were and always will be. So it doesn't explain why some human beings have such happy dispositions and others are always gloomy and low in spirit. When you come right down to it, happiness depends primarily upon an attitude of mind.

A man once told me of himself: "With me it used to be all negativism. There were a great many people I didn't like. Things rubbed me the wrong way. I was wearing myself out with depressing thoughts and I was full of anxieties. I didn't think humanity had any future, either, and I could have given you a long list of all the catastrophes which someday might overwhelm us.

"Then I went to a Billy Graham meeting when he was here in New York. The spirit of God got to working in me. I followed Billy's advice and committed my life to God. As a result I became filled with new hope and peace of mind. God led me into new ways of thinking. And the time came when I realized that I was happy, real happy.

"I don't mean my troubles all just disappeared. But many things that had eluded me seemed now to come to me of themselves. And what is more, I now actually take pleasure in the problems that previously got me down. At least I'm not afraid of them any more. All in all I have a sense of harmony in my living."

ONE THING is sure — this man stopped manufacturing unhappiness for himself. By a new attitude of mind he became a happy person.

In the Book of Proverbs we read, "Who so trusteth in the Lord, happy is he." If you trust in God you have the secret of happiness at all times, anywhere, no matter what your circumstances are. But you have to practice remembering this and feeling it. As we practice, so do we become.

If you practice unhappiness, you will be an unhappy person. If you practice happiness, you will be happy. It's just that simple. The royal road to happiness is the attitude, "Trust God and practice being happy."

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Cincinnati anti-smut ordinance under which news dealer David King was sentenced in 1957 is unconstitutional because it violates the first amendment, U. S. The Power Of Faith by Howard Brodie

PROMINENT MEN OF FAITH

Pope John XXIII

Moving with a warm, humble spirit, Pope John XXIII has moved the hearts of many. He visited carpenters in their Vatican shop and ordered them wine; he talked with Vatican workers on their jobs and raised their salaries. He visited prisoners in jail, the first Pope to do so in 90 years.

The 79-year-old Pope, who hopes to promote the unity of all Christian faiths, starts his day at 4 a.m. with prayers. The former sergeant, a chaplain in the first war, has moved far to become the leader of 500 million Catholics around the world.

Timed For Annual Show

Dahlia Garden Now Riot Of Color

To the surprise of none of his friends, J. T. (Jack) Eccleston's flower garden near Calcutta is a riot of color.

The garden at the Eccleston home on St. Clair Ave. Ext., near the Calcutta United Presbyterian Church, will be even more beautiful as additional dahlia buds burst into bloom, for the 36th annual show of the East Liverpool Dahlia and Floral Society tonight and Sunday at Westgate School.

Eccleston's new garden was started from scratch last summer when he was forced to move from Chestnut St. Ext. because of construction of the new city freeway.

He and his wife were dismayed when they learned their home would be taken because they had spent 35 years building up the soil to the point they wanted. When they left, the top soil ranged from 12 to 22 inches deep.

Beginning anew, the Ecclestons transplanted virtually all of their flowers and shrubbery and most of it survived despite being moved in a period when many wondered whether the plants could stand the change.

"Considering everything, we're very satisfied," Eccleston commented, pointing out the lack of rain had hurt all gardeners.

Eccleston also has an oddity in his garden — a sunflower "tree" apparently planted by birds.

Rather than growing as conventional sunflowers do, the "tree" is loaded with blossoms. "I've never seen anything like it in all my years of gardening," the retired potter said.

Eccleston's more famous for his dahlias, however, originating several varieties and capturing awards at many dahlia shows.

Named for East Liverpool, his "Ceramic Beauty" was the highest scoring dahlia in the nation in 1953, winning five major awards in various shows and was the subject of an article in American Home magazine.

Eccleston recently returned from Syracuse, N. Y., where he served as one of the judges in the dahlia exhibit at the New York State Fair.

Wheat Program Policy Clarified

LISBON — Columbiana County farmers should understand what their permitted wheat acreage is for 1962 prior to planting, according to L. E. Lora, county Agriculture, Stabilization Conservation committee office manager.

Area producers are being reminded by a card from the county ASC office, pointing out that if the producer is not sure what his permitted acreage is, he should check with the office here.

Of concern to many producers is the change in the law which provides that farms previously planting up to 15 acres may now plant only 13½ acres for 1962 harvest if they have planted at least 13½ acres during the previous three years. If less than 13½ acres was planted during the years 1959, 1960, 1961, the acreage permitted is the largest acreage planted in any one of these years.

Area producers with any question concerning their permitted wheat acreage should contact the county office located over the Farmers National Bank, or phone HA. 4-5525 immediately.

Lisbon Stuns Wellsville, Throws Rival For 30-8 Loss

Henry Nets Pair; Devils Gain 2nd

The Review Sports
SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 16, 1961 PAGE 9

By CHUCK CRONIN
Review Sports Writer

Lisbon High's quick - hitting Blue Devils struck for touchdowns the first two times they got the ball, then capitalized on the sluggish play of Wellsville to score a surprisingly easy 30-8 triumph Friday night.

A crowd of 2,000 turned out on a brisk night to see the well-coached Blue Devils open their home campaign with a victory. It followed an 18-6 decision over Carrollton last week.

Piling up the yardage with a razor-sharp T formation attack that included a few razzle-dazzle type surprises, Lisbon punched across touchdowns in every period to gain revenge for a 40-14 setback of last season.

LISBON dominated the action throughout, driving to paydirt for 74 and 60 yards for the first pair of touchdowns and marching shorter distances for the others.

Penalties, especially the ones charged for personal infractions, proved costly to Wellsville. The Tigers lost regulars Jack Culp, an end, and tackle Alvin Jackson, plus guard Mike Thompson before the first half was over. The trio left by way of ejection although there were no flare-ups among the performers.

Lisbon piled up an overwhelming margin on the ground, with 200-pound fullback Gary Peruchetti and halfbacks Dave Rose and Jeff Henry accounting for most of the team's 313 yards by way of rushing.

With star fullback John Euill bottled up after a great performance last week, Wellsville netted only 116 yards rushing and was forced to settle for three quick plays and a punt in each offensive drive.

HENRY, 165-pound senior, scored two of Lisbon's touchdowns on runs of 35 and 22 yards. Fullback Peruchetti boomed into the end zone on a one-yard buck. Rose romped over from two yards out and halfback Tom Coontz scored on another short dash.

Neither team tried much in the way of an aerial attack. Lisbon tried only five passes and completed one. Wellsville quarterback Roger Ours attempted one and sub Bill Reed another, but neither clicked.

Veteran Coach Bud Bucher of Lisbon praised his husky linemen for "a fine job, a better performance than against Carrollton last week."

Lisbon effectively throttled Wellsville fullback Euill throughout and the big senior had a rough go of it most of the night.

Lisbon's Robert Nicholson, 200-pound senior end, piled up most of Wellsville's outside runs before they could gain much momentum. Big Larry Buckley and guard Dave Nicholes helped stop Euill on the inside.

—:—

THE BURDEN of Wellsville's running game fell on the shoulders of halfback Alvin Thompson and the 157-pound junior turned in a worthwhile effort.

Thompson carried 12 times for 38 yards, but two of his long runs were nullified by "little" mistakes of backfield-in-motion or offsides.

Frank Luckino, scrappy 150 - pound senior, scored Wellsville's touchdown on a one-yard buck through the middle. Luckino had set it up with a twisting 34-yard run in one of his few offensive moments.

Luckino's defensive play was one of the few good individual efforts on the squad. He made plenty of tackles in the secondary from his defensive halfback post.

Lisbon exhibited a well - balanced variety of offensive plays in driving 74 yards in 12 plays for its first touchdown in the opening period. The big one was Henry's 19-yard race from the Wellsville 45 to the 26. Peruchetti slammed into the end zone from one-yard out for the score.

AFTER Wellsville punted, the Blue Devils mounted a 60 - yard drive which they covered in only eight plays. Henry swept down the left sidelines on a reverse for the score with 1:45 left in the first quarter.

The second quarter included three quick charges of personal fouls against Wellsville and the ejection of the two regulars, plus Thompson who recently joined the squad.

Penalties moved the ball from the Wellsville 41 to the 6 where Lisbon banged away without success and turned over possession on the one-yard line.

Lisbon moved 28 yards in four plays for its third touchdown in the second quarter, with Henry breaking loose for 22 yards for the score. Tim Bucher's rush for the conversion was held short.

Lisbon ran the count to 24-0 on Rose's one-yard run with 8:15 left in the third quarter. It capped a 14-yard drive in six plays following a Wellsville fumble.

WELLSVILLE'S only successful drive of the game started on the Tiger 38. Leyda, Thompson and Ours alternated in carrying the ball to the Lisbon 35 and a first down.

Then the wiry Luckino squirted into the Lisbon secondary and broke loose. He was caught from behind at the one-yard line, but scored on the next play. Ours drove over for the conversion.

Lisbon's final quarter touchdown was made by Coontz on a one-yard buck that climaxed a drive of 65 yards in 11 plays.

Guiding Lisbon's fast - moving T formation attack flawlessly were quarterbacks David McPherson, 145-pound sophomore, young Bucher and occasionally Henry.

Beaver Local Rips Chester, 40-0, For First Victory

BEAVER LOCAL'S tough little halfback Carl Hoppel (40) appears to be stopped by his own teammate No. 85, Larry Carroll, but actually Carroll was attempting to apply a block for Hoppel on a Chester defender shown tackling Hoppel around his left leg. The action took place in the second quarter of Friday night's game at Chester. No. 15 is Beaver quarterback Mike Klembara. Beaver Local routed the Panthers, 40-0.

Defensive Forces Spearheaded By Myers

By BOB DUFFY
Review Sports Editor

Beaver Local turned its vicious defensive forces loose in the first quarter to build up an early lead and then coasted to a 40-0 victory over the Chester Panthers before some 1,400 fans Friday night at Chester City Park.

Statistics showed Beaver Local had not made a first down and picked up only three yards rushing, but nevertheless Coach Jack O'Rourke's team sported a 13-0 lead.

The victory was the first for the "eager Beavers" after playing Leetonia to a 14-14 tie last week. Coach Dom Amedeo's team, unable to get its offense clicking, dropped their second straight of the campaign.

Beaver Local scored about every way possible last night. One came on a blocked punt, another on an intercepted pass, two through the air and another pair on the ground.

Halfback Francis Possage, hero of last week's tie withe Leetonia, scored twice for the Beavers while Carl Hoppel, Gary Berhar, George Wilkinson and tackle Roger Walker tallied one each.

Playing just shy of sensational on the forward wall was Beaver Local's junior guard Dave Myers, who was the fifth man in the Chester backfield during the first half.

Myers blocked three Chester punts and was in on another. He was directly responsible for Beaver Local's first touchdown and set up another one in the second quarter.

The first two punts blocked by Myers didn't count, since Beaver Local was called for being offside, but the next two did.

CHESTER'S Don Reese went back to punt on his own 21-yard line midway through the first quarter. Myers came busting through to block the kick and send it rolling into the Panthers' end zone where Walker, Beaver Local's right tackle, fell on the ball for the first six points.

Hoppel put the finishing touches to the first TD by adding the extra point for a 7-0 lead.

Two plays later, Chester quarterback George Bebout's pass was picked from the air by Possage on the Beaver Local 49-yard line and the little speedster raced 51 yards for the second touchdown. An attempt for the extra point by sophomore Jim Smith failed. The score came with 3:46 remaining in the first quarter.

Late in the first quarter, Reese attempted to punt again, but the pigskin smacked into No. 35 (Myers) again and Beaver Local took over on the Chester 40 - yard line as the second quarter opened.

It took the Beavers four plays to get to the Panther 24 where Klembara hit senior end Wilkenson with a pass on a touchdown play covering 24 yards.

THE TD came with 10:01 left in the first half and Hoppel added the extra point.

Another Beaver Local drive was stopped when Chester's Kelse Johnson recovered a Beaver fumble on the Chester 33-yard line.

Reese finally got his first punt of the evening away cleanly and put Beaver Local back on its 36.

A Klembara-to-George Gaydos pass netted 28 yards and was the big gainer in the Beaver Local drive which carried to the Chester 28-yard line. From this point the Beavers pulled a razzle-dazzle play to net their fourth touchdown.

Klembara flipped a short pass into the left flat taken by Wilkinson who lateraled to Possage and the speedy halfback traveled the remaining distance for the TD with only 17 seconds remaining in the second quarter. After a pass for the extra point failed, Beaver Local took a 26-0 lead at intermission.

The second half saw the Beavers cross the goal after extensive drives down the field.

THE FIRST sustained march was for 84 yards and climaxed by Klembara's second touchdown strike, a short seven-yarder to junior end Berhar with 2:54 left in the third quarter as Beaver Local controlled the ball for over nine minutes. Possage added the extra point to build a 33-0 margin.

Hoppel was the workhorse of the third period drive and also the bread and butter man on the fourth quarter touchdown march which started on the Beaver Local 21-yard line.

After Beaver Local had picked up a series of three first downs to the Chester 38, Possage reeled off a 26-yard dash to the 12-yard line. Possage got nine more yards to the three and Hoppel hit the right side to score with 2:16 remaining in the game. Hoppel also converted for the 40th point.

The deepest penetration by Chester was to the Beaver Local 41-yard line in the first quarter.

O'ROURKE'S team rolled up 12 first downs and 266 yards on the ground, with another 86 in the air on the strength of Klembara's good right arm. The total offense for Beaver Local was 346 yards.

Other defensive stalwarts for the Beavers were guard Dave Stacey, end John Detchon and Walker.

Leetonia Scores Late, Nips Rootstown, 12-8

Leetonia High's Bears owned their first football victory of the season today after a rally in the dying minutes earned them a hard-fought 12-8 triumph over Rootstown Friday night at Rootstown.

Coach Ike Farrah's Bears drove 59 yards in the final three minutes to gain a come-from-behind victory.

Halfback Guy Falzetta scored the touchdown on a four-yard buck that brought Leetonia from behind. A pass to Joe Gallo accounted for the conversion.

Leetonia had trailed, 8-6, until the final minutes when Paul Conrad led offense clicked for the necessary yardage to spark a rally.

The sensational Conrad scored Leetonia's first touchdown in the third quarter on a three-yard run that capped a 69-yard drive. Frank Guerrier's run for the conversion was held short.

Conrad scored two touchdowns last week when Leetonia tied Beaver Local, 14-14.

East Palestine Bows, 20-8, To Beaver Before 3,500

EAST PALESTINE — Flashing a well balanced running attack, Beaver invaded Ohio here Friday night and returned to Pennsylvania with a 20-8 victory over the Bulldogs.

A packed house of over 3,500 fans watched the Beaver eleven pile up a 20-0 lead before East Palestine broke the ice with a last-period touchdown.

A 35-yard pass play from Dave Mooney to Ed Rose netted Beaver its first touchdown. Lauson Cashdollar took a pass from Mooney for the two-point conversion. The TD came midway through the second quarter.

Time ran out on East Palestine which drove to the Beaver five-yard line where the first half ended.

Another pass play going 35 yards from Mooney to Jim Sanford set up Beaver's second TD in the third quarter. Mooney climaxed the drive by going over from the one.

The Pennsylvanians struck again in a hurry when they recovered a fumble on the East Palestine 24 and carried to the two-yard line from where Sanford bolted over.

Ron Doll and Dave Smith set up East Palestine's only touchdown which was scored by Bill Smith from two yards out. Dave Smith tallied the extra points.

Third Period TD Breaks Tie As Midland Loses, 20-14

Injuries Prove Costly In 2nd Straight Loss

By ANDY NUZZO

The Midland Leopards, showing great improvement on defense over their first performance, dropped a hard-fought game Friday night to the Canon-McMillan Gunners, 20-14, before some 1,700 fans at Midland High School Stadium.

Canon-McMillan fell on end Paul Cacic's fumble of the opening kickoff on the Midland 43-yard line. Halfback Hank Foley then raced 30 yards around end on the first play to the Midland 13 and it looked like last week all over again.

The visitors had a fourth and one situation on the Midland five when Foley hit the line, fumbled and Tom Flasco recovered for Midland on the three.

MIDLAND moved out to its 45 before being forced to punt. Sam Zigerelli's kick slid off the side of his foot and went out of bounds on the C-M 41-yard line.

Midland halted a C-M bid on the Midland 32. After having a 60-yard jaunt called back because of an illegal procedure penalty, fullback Earl Vaughn fumbled and John Subrick fell on the ball on the Midland 27.

Here the Gunners launched their first touchdown drive, going the 27 yards in four plays. Fullback John Scarton plunged over from the four for the score. Dave Miller added the PAT.

Midland came back in the second period and scored, Vaughn going over from the six with 6:15 remaining in the quarter. It climaxed a 70-yard drive which took 11 plays. Ken Epley added the extra point to knot the score at 7-7.

The second C-M drive covered 59 yards in five plays. It was set up when guard Paul Maggi intercepted a Midland aerial on his 37 and returned it to his 41.

Quarterback Mel Podraski hit Foley with a 44-yard screen pass for the TD. Miller again added the point to give C-M a 14-7 lead, with 2:10 left in the half.

MIDLAND started to march for its second touchdown when Vaughn returned the kickoff to his 40-yard stripe. The payoff play as a screen pass from quarterback Trbovich to Vaughn from 25 yards out, the last play of the first half. Epley converted to send the teams to the locker rooms tied at 14-14.

C-M took the second-half kickoff and went 58 yards in 13 plays, the climax coming when Scarton plunged over from the one. The try for point failed when the pass from center went over Miller's head.

Midland made one last bid in the third quarter. The Leopards took the kickoff following the final G-M score and started a march downfield. Epley led the drive until he was injured with 3:35 remaining in the quarter and had to leave the game.

Until hewas hurt, Epply had run four of the seven plays on the drive and had picked up 25 yards.

Midland drove to the C-M four-yard line where, on second down, halfback John Chuldenko was caught for a 12-yard loss.

Two Trbovich passes went astray and Midland managed to get the ball for only six plays the remainder of the game.

LEADING THE ground attack for C-M was Foley who reeled off 133 yards in 19 carries. Halfback John Coligan added 84 yards in 16.

Midland was led once again by Vaughn. The junior fullback ate up 77 yards in 11 tries. Epley managed 55 in 8.

A big blow was dealt Midland when senior guard Henry Tookes injured his knee early in the game and had to be removed. The full extent of the injury is not yet known.

Midland will travel to Beaver next Friday.

Yanks Set HR Record In Split With Tigers

Maris Now Must Hit 4 Home Runs In 5 Games To Tie Ruth's Record

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Homerless in seven games, Roger Maris faces the imposing task of hitting four home runs in five games in order to tie Babe Ruth's 1927 home run record of 60.

Maris, who spurted 24 games ahead of Ruth's pace on July 25, was caught Friday night as he came up with only one single in nine at-bats while the American League leading New York Yankees were splitting a twi-nighter with second-place Detroit.

Maris, with 56 home runs, now is even with Ruth, and must hit four homers in the next five decisions—two against Detoit and three at Baltimore—to match Ruth under the 154-decision allotment specified by Commissioner Ford Frick.

Teammate Mickey Mantle fell further behind Ruth with a single, double, three walks and a sacrifice fly in nine trips against the Tigers. Mantle, with 53 homers, needs seven home runs in the five games to get a draw with the Babe.

The Yankees, however, set a major league team home run record as Yogi Berra and Bill Skowron connected in the 11-1 opening game victory and boosted the New Yorkers' total to 222 for the season, one more than the New York Giants in 1947 and Cincinnati Reds in 1956.

In the nightcap, the Tigers used a two-run homer by Norm Cash and a solo shot by Steve Boros for a three-run third that proved enough to subdue the Yankees 4-2. That left the Yanks magic pennant-clinching number at four.

Any combination of four New York victories and-or Detroit defeats will give the Yankees their 11th pennant in the last 13 years and the first under rookie manager Ralph Houk.

Boston edged Baltimore 3-2 in 10 innings, Minnesota nipped Cleveland 3-2, Los Angeles beat Chicago 9-5 and Washington defeated Kansas City 3-1.

In the National League, the second-place Los Angeles Dodgers crept closer to first-place Cincinnati by belting Milwaukee 11-2 and cutting the idle Reds edge to 4½ games. The San Francisco Giants took over third place with a 5-1 victory over Chicago in the only other game scheduled.

The Yanks won the first game easily behind Whitey Ford, who scattered eight hits in a route-going performance for his 24th victory against three defeats. Berra's 20th homer, off loser Don Mossi (14-7) with one on in the fourth, put the Yankees ahead to stay.

Ron Kline (7-8) spaced seven Yankee hits in the nightcap, giving up a homer to Clete Boyer—the New Yorkers 223rd—in the fifth and an unearned tally in the eighth. Cash and Boros smacked their homers in the third.

Koufax Sets Strikeout Record; LA Trails 4½

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Swift southpaw Sandy Koufax has broken a 50-year-old strikeout record, continued Warren Spahn's 12-year-old jinx and maintained the Los Angeles Dodgers' chances of catching the front-running Cincinnati Reds in the National League pennant battle.

Koufax set the Milwaukee Braves down on five hits Friday night, striking out 10 en route to an 11-2 victory that pushed the second-place Dodgers within 4½ games of the Reds, who were idle for the second night in succession.

The 10 strikeouts gave Koufax 243 for the year—the most ever achieved by a left-hander in modern NL history. Rube Marquard, who fanned 237 for the New York Giants in 1911, held the previous record.

Spahn, meanwhile, met his usual fate against the Dodgers on the road, losing for the 12th consecutive time since he last beat the then Brooklynites in their home park in 1948. The 40-year-old Milwaukee ace was seeking victory No. 20 for the sixth year in a row and the 12th time in his career.

Instead, he lasted less than two innings, his string of 10 straight complete game victories came to an end and the Braves dropped into fourth place behind San Francisco. The Giants whipped the Chicago Cubs 5-1 in the only other NL game scheduled.

In the American League, Roger Maris went homerless for the seventh game in a row and, with 56 homers, fell even with Babe Ruth's record 60-homer pace of 1927, as the New York Yankees split with Detroit. The Yankees won the opener 11-1, reducing their magic pennant clinching number to four before the Tigers won the nightcap 4-2. Boston beat Baltimore 3-2 in 10 innings, Minnesota edged Cleveland 3-2, Los Angeles walloped Chicago 9-5 and Washington defeated Kansas City 3-1.

Koufax, who had lost six straight at the Coliseum and had not won at home since June 11, gave up a leadoff homer to John DeMerit in the first, allowed another run to cross in the inning on a doubleplay, then closed the door for his 16th victory against 11 defeats.

Spahn (19-13) got past the first 1-2-3, but Frank Howard opened the second inning with a liner over the left field screen for homer No. 15. Warren then lost his control, walking the next three men on 13 pitches before Norm Sherry hastened his exit with a two-run single. The Dodgers wound up with six runs in the inning.

The Dodgers continued their assault on replacements Ron Piche and Tony Cloninger in the fourth by scoring five runs—three on a homer by Daryl Spencer, who shared hitting honors with Wally Moon. Moon had a double and three singles in five at-bats and drove in three runs.

COLUMBIANA — It was "Dale Murphy" night here Friday when the junior fullback scored all three of Columbiana's touchdowns in a 20-6 victory in the season's opener over McDonald.

Coach George Fisher's crew built up a 20-0 lead before losing the shutout in the fourth quarter when McDonald's Ed Dolsak raced 20 yards for the visitors' lone tally.

105-Yard Run Features Win For Quakers

SALEM — Quarterback Bill Beery scored three touchdowns—one a thrilling 105-yard run—as Salem High scuttled Youngstown North, 28-14, here Friday night.

The 105-yard run to paydirt by Beery came in the first quarter when he intercepted a North pass five-yards deep in the Salem end zone.

He scored two others, one on a 44-yard punt return in the second quarter, and another on a nine-yard run in the third period, to spark the victory.

It was Salem's second straight success, after a 16-0 win over Struthers in the opener last week.

Halfback Dave Edling scored Salem's other touchdown on a 17-yard run. The Youngstowners scored both times in the fourth period, with halfback Pat Paris going four yards each time.

Nicklaus Battles Wysong For Amateur Golf Crown

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Power-hitting Jack Nicklaus, a veteran at 21, battled for his second National Amateur golf championship today against Texan Dudley Wysong, one year older but far less experienced.

Wysong expected to see the Nicklaus tee shots in front of his, but it didn't seem to bother the slim 170-pounder from McKinney, Tex., who picked up valuable tips from another Texan—the great Byron Nelson.

"I'm going to play this course with my game and let him play the course with his game," Wysong said before teeing off for the 36-hole finals over the Pebble Beach layout.

Nicklaus, who won the amateur title in 1959 and currently holds the collegiate crown representing Ohio State, overwhelmed Sonny Methvin of Little Rock, Ark., 9 and 8 in their semifinal scheduled for 36 holes Friday.

It took Wysong the full distance to bounce the only remaining foreign entry, Ireland's Joe Carr, by a 2-up margin despite Dud's 5-up margin after 18 holes. Carr simply wouldn't give up and Wysong's morning-hot putter cooled in a fog-shrouded afternoon.

Jack was 14 strokes under par for the 104 holes he has played in this event. Wysong was 14-over-par for 113 holes.

While Nicklaus had won several major titles and represented the United States on the Walker Cup team, Wysong wasn't even among those mentioned in preview stories of these national championships.

He told newsmen he has been practicing daily to get into shape for the title bid and that through the past six years Nelson has been giving him helpful tips as a friend of the family.

Pitt, Miami Clash Today In TV Battle

By The Associated Press

Miami (Fla.) and Pittsburgh, disdaining early-season tuneups, plunge into the middle of the major college football wars today at Miami in the feature contest of a slim program.

The game is scheduled for 3:30 p.m. (EST) and will be televised nationally over the ABC network starting at 3:15.

Miami is a slight favorite over the rugged Panthers, who have two hard-running backs in Fred Cox and Bill Clemens to bolster their usually potent power attack.

West Virginia takes on Richmond at Morgantown, W. VA. Richmond held the Mountaineers to a 6-6 tie last year and has a fine halfback in Dick Stoudt.

Iowa State of the Big Eight meets an old rival in Drake, and the Cyclones are expected to see just how well their diversified attack operates.

In other games of more than ordinary interest Wyoming meets Montana at Billings, Utah State entertains Texas Western and Utah is host to Colorado State.

NFL's 14 Teams To Open 42nd Season On Sunday

By ROBERT MOORE
Associated Press Sports Writer

Nearly a third of a million people will turn out in person Sunday to watch the National Football League's 14 teams launch the circuit's 42nd season in play-for-pay action from New York to San Francisco.

The biggest crowds of 60,000 will view the fireworks in Philadelphia's Franklin Field where the champion Philadelphia Eagles clash with the Cleveland Browns and in New York's Yankee Stadium where the New York Giants battle the St. Louis Cardinals.

Elsewhere, 53,000 will see the Los Angeles Rams at Baltimore; 42,000 the Washington Redskins at San Francisco; 40,000, the Detroit Lions against the Green Bay Packers in Milwaukee; 40,000, the Chicago Bears at Minnesota's Metropolitan Stadium in Minneapolis, and 25,000, the Pittsburgh Steelers at Dallas.

Additional thousands will witness the inaugurals on television.

Philadelphia's collision with the Browns very likely will prove the day's eyebrow lifter. The Eagles, unbeaten in four NFL exhibition games, have a new quarterback in Sonny Jurgensen, a new coach in Nick Skorich and a bitter remembrance of the 41-24 licking Browns dealt them on opening day a year ago.

The Browns have finished second in the Eastern Conference the past three years and are tired of their bridesmaid's role. Quarterback Milt Plum seems to have finally arrived with more poise, confidence and skill.

Green Bay, Western Conference defending champion, piled up a 5-0 record in exhibitions. The Packers, with Bart Starr at quarterback, have just about the same team which bowed 17-13 to the Eagles in the 1960 title game.

Detroit and Baltimore expect to have considerable to say about the Western Conference title. The Lions, beaten only by the Eagles (23-14) in the warmups, have speed, fine receivers and a rugged defense. The Colts have added Jimmy Orr, who should be a favorite target for passing demon Johnny Unitas.

The Giants-Cardinals get-together will be a battle of cripples. Both teams have ailing quarterbacks, New York's Charlie Conerly and the Cards' Sam Etcheverry.

OSU's Warfield Injured In Head During Practice

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Bad breaks have put the brakes on the main breakaway threat of Ohio State's football team, and Coach Woody Hayes must be hoping his star sophomore runner isn't really injury-prone.

Paul Warfield of Warren, prize hope at left halfback, was hurt again in Friday's practice. It was a minor head bump but it came only 20 minutes after the start of a scrimmage marking Warfield's return to action after being out since Wednesday with a leg injury.

In the final drill until Monday, the Buckeyes' No. 1 offensive unit behind quarterback Bill Mrukowski's 9-for-14 passing rolled up five touchdowns in the first 15 minutes. End Chuck Bryant caught five of the aerials.

All but four members of the 1961 Hardin - Simmons football players are from Texas.

Coach Appeals For Support Of Potters In Lions Address

An appeal for fan support of the inexperienced Potters was voiced Friday afternoon by Football Coach Bob Hedmond in addressing the Lions Club at the Travelers Hotel.

"I hope the fans will stay 'off' the boys," Hedmond declared, pointing out one East Liverpool fan called a Potter player 'yellow' in the Niles game.

Hedmond said his team is young and woefully lacking in experience and is bound to make mstakes. "There are going to be some long nights," he warned, but pointed out the fans shouldn't take it out on the gridders who are doing their best.

The team's morale is bound to drop lower if it loses and players can lose interest. Their interest will be decreased if they feel the fans are not going to support them, but back only a winner, Hedmond continued. "Give them a pat on the back once in a while," he urged.

The coach pointed out there are 54 players on the squad, but five are out with injuries. The remainder includes 25 sophomores, 13 juniors and 11 seniors.

He reviewed the offensive and defensive units, explaining there are only two players on the offensive team with any experience. On the defensive team, only one lineman has had much experience with a couple of others getting some game experience last year.

All of the sophomores and three juniors will be dressed for the reserve game tonight with Wellsville, Hedmond said, adding that he wants to give the players as much experience as possible, hoping for a change in the grid picture in the future.

He introduced Rey Peduzzi and Nunzio Polichene, line coaches, and Jack Bair, backfield coach.

Hedmond was introduced by Richard Martin, program chairman.

Mrs. Blanche Eli, Civic Music representative, spoke on the membership drive, and Leo C. Lawrence invited the club to attend the dahlia and floral show today and Sunday at Westgate School.

Any premium and accrued interest (and the amount necessary for the payment of interest prior to their maturity) shall be transferred to the Treasurer to be applied by him in the payment of principal and interest of said notes in the manner provided by law.

SECTION 9. The proceeds of the bonds to be issued and all unexpended balance remaining unpaid in the fund after the cost and expense of the purchase have been paid, shall be applied to the payment of said notes and interest thereof as the same shall become due and to no other purposes whatsoever, until all of said notes and said interest have been fully paid.

SECTION 10. That for the purpose of providing the necessary funds to pay the interest on the foregoing issue of notes, promptly when and as the same falls due and also to provide a fund sufficient to discharge the said notes at maturity, there shall be and is hereby levied on all the taxable property in said City of East Liverpool, in addition to all other taxes, a direct tax annually during the period for which said notes are to run, in an amount sufficient to provide funds to pay interest upon said notes as and when the same falls due and also to provide a fund for the discharge of the principal of said notes at maturity, which said tax shall not be less than the interest and sinking fund tax required by Section 11 of the Article XII of the Constitution.

Said tax shall be and is hereby ordered computed, certified, extended and levied upon the tax duplicate and collected by the same officers, in the same manner and at the same time taxes for general purposes for each of said years are certified, extended and collected. Said tax shall be placed before and in preference to all other items and for the full amount thereof. The funds derived from said tax levied hereby required shall be placed in a separate and distinct fund, which together with the interest collected on the same, shall be irrevocably pledged for the payment of the interest and principal of said notes when and as the same fall due.

SECTION 11. The City Auditor is hereby directed to forward a certified copy of this ordinance to the County Auditor.

SECTION 12. That this Ordinance is hereby declared by Council to be an emergency measure and shall be in force immediately upon passage. Said emergency lies in the fact that the present equipment is in a run down condition and is wholly inadequate to take care of the work for which it is intended and the services of the Garbage and Trash Removal Department are curtailed and is therefore necessary to protect the health, public peace and safety of the citizens of the City of East Liverpool.

2 IN MEMORIAM

IN memory of Violet Cook
On her 54th birthday.
She's wandered from our presence here
Into a land that knows no fear.
A land that knows no pain or death
Yet isn't far a single breath.
A land where tears are never shed
Eternity lies but ahead.
To those of us who must remain,
Our loss is surely Violet's gain.
Sadly missed by Husband, Children, Aunt Wee and Aunt Cora.

Welfare Staff Facing Shifts

County welfare department heads in West Virginia and their employes were on notice today that they might get a "change of scenery."

Welfare Commissioner W. Bernard Smith said in Charleston that he had given district administrators authority to transfer any of the help at their discretion.

Smith explained "a great percentage" of approximately 500 workers come under the order.

He said many county workers have held their present positions so long they consider the offices "entitles in themselves."

Others have become too concerned about local political organizations, he added.

Miss Adda R. Hindman, director of Hancock County's department of welfare in New Cumberland, was not available for comment.

Miss Hindman and Mrs. Ila M. Snyder, medical assistant to the aged workers, are among social welfare personnel from District 1 attending the 1961 southeast regional conference of the American Public Welfare Association at Memphis, Tenn.

But the state welfare commissioner didn't pinpoint any one county for criticism. He said only that "we're trying to get away from the 'buddy system' on the county level."

Smith said transfers would be made for periods from two months up or long enough "to let them know we're watching." The transfer program would not violate Civil Service rules, he said.

City Youth Deprived Of Driving License

Robert V. Willison, 16, of 1814 Harvey Ave., and Forrest G. Allen, 17, of Salem received 30-day suspensions of their driving permits for speeding in traffic cases at the Courthouse.

Russell Andrew Williams, 16, and Lawrence James Miller, 17, both of Youngstown, received 15-day suspensions for failing to yield the right-of-way and for stopping without the assured clear distance, respectively.

Charles Leon Cain, 17, of Beloit R. D. 2, was fined $10 for driving without a muffler. Willison was cited by Lisbon police, the others by the State Highway Patrol.

4 Girls Enter Class In Practical Nursing

Three city girls and one from Wellsville have enrolled at the Hannah E. Mullins School of Practical Nursing at Salem. They are:

Linda DeLong, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph DeLong, 1806 Montana Ave.; Nyla Ruth Nuzum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Alford, 1529 Wyoming Ave.; Nancy Jane Rudibaugh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Rudibaugh of Shadyside Ave., East Liverpool, and Terry Jean Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Martin of Wellsville R. D. 1.

LISBON — A project on "Outdoor Cookery" will be presented at the meeting of the Wayne Township Home Demonstration Group Wednesday from 10:30 a. m. to 2:30 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Floyd Pierce of R. D. 1. Members are to bring meat and table service, according to Miss Julia Shank, county extension agent in home economics.

South African 105

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Mrs. Eva Montsinger, whose grandfather lived to be 114, celebrated her 105 birthday in the Cape Town suburb of Ottery Friday. She chopped her daily ration of firewood because "I don't like sitting down doing nothing."

Cow Causes Crisis

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP) — Traffic was snarled at the suburban Depew-Lancaster shopping plaza when a restless Jersey cow strolled into the parking lot.

Policie roped the animal and tied it to a telephone pole until the owner could be located.

Keep In Trim

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Overweight Remains National Problem

One fourth of our nation is overweight. It is perplexing that nutritious, strength - giving food can turn into unhealthy fat. We're in a dilemma. Our esta blished ways of eating no longer match our way of life. Result: Forty million overweight Americans.

Ida Jean Kain

An unprecedented abundance of good food the year 'round plus convenience foods with built-in maid service compound the problem. Consequently a large proportion of our population are trying, none too successfully, to dodge calories.

Perhaps the most alarming part of this weighty picture is the widespread overweight — in all age groups. There is nothing new about the middle - age spread, but now we have chubby children, roly-poly pre-teens, and fat, unhappy teen-agers.

OBVIOUSLY WE haven't learned how to balance our food requirements to our fuel expenditures. We need a meal planning pattern that allows us to enjoy good food without fear of adding fat.

Serving sizes should be changed to fit our less active way of life. In short, our inherited food patterns and accepted serving sizes are outmoded and need to be modified.

On-again, off-again dieting is no solution. It's ridiculous to contemplate putting millions of Americans on diets. We're not happy on diets. Then what is the answer? Dietary know-how! What's needed is a plan by which we can lower total calories. Being able to choose our own weight control meals will undoubtedly help banish resistance to cutting calories.

A choice pattern® plan is adjustable to reducing in any way of life — the homemaker who is confronted with assorted weight problems; corpulent couples, dining in or out; and the working girl who may or may not carry her lunch.

To help you plan reducing meals and control your weight on good food, your dietitian will soon have a new type of leaflet, entitled "Choose To Lose Diet."

It isn't a diet really . . . but a plan by which you eat to build slimness. With the Choice plan, you rule the diet.

BY PLANNING your own meals, within your reducing calorie limits, you get the experience of controlling weight through an everyday pattern of eating. A diet plan should never be more than a guide. Result: A built-in slimming system.

You stay slim by habit. (As soon as the new leaflet is ready, an announcement will be made, so that you can send for it.)

Chester Hill Project Set

Improvements to Route 30 in the Chester area — a point of much discussion but little action in years — appears to be a certainty.

West Virginia State Road Commissioner Burl Sawyers has allocated $50,000 for initial improvements to the heavily-traveled highway.

Sawyers confirmed that the project will involve widening, grading and resurfacing.

Cost of eliminating some of the dangerous curves on the long Chester Hill, where scores of traffic crashes have occurred over the years, is expected to be $250,000.

Sawyers said the road commission workmen will begin initial phases of the widening and grading with the completion of the engineering studies.

The road commissioner said final phases of the improvement will move into contract - bidding with contractors to complete a four-lane thorofare.

Widening, grading and elimination of the curves is expected to begin this month by workmen of the Pughtown Garage of the State Road Commission, it is indicated.

4 Hancock Women To Attend Conference

Four Hancock County women will attend the annual program planning conference Monday through Thursday at Jacksons Mill for West Virginia Farm Women's Clubs.

They are Mrs. Floyd Grimes of Weirton, president of the County Farm Women's Council, Mrs. William Oyster of Asbury Club, Mrs. Earl Pugh of Fairview and Mrs. Kenneth Timberlake of Agalthelian Club of Weirton.

Mrs. Ruth McPherson, county 4-H club agent, said about 200 are expected at the annual county 4-H achievement banquet Monday night at 6:30 in Weirton.

Youngsters will present a program of songs. The event will feature award of certificates of merit and project ribbons.

Irondale Man Chosen As 'Airman Of Month'

Airman 2C Edward Scott Patton, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Patton of Irondale, was chosen "Airman of the Month" in Bermuda, where he is stationed with the 1934th Communications Squadron.

Airman Patton, a 1959 graduate of Irondale High School, entered the service in 1960, and has been in Bermuda since May, having completed basic training at Keesler Air Force Base, Biloxi, Miss. He is in radar maintenance work.

Scientists In Accord On Disarmament Plan

STOWE, Vt. (AP) — Scientists from 11 nations — including the United States and Russia — have reached tentative accord on disarmament proposals in five major areas, a spokesman for the eighth Conference on Science and World Affairs said Friday.

The proposals will face a vote today as the conference holds its final meeting.

Dr. Harrison Brown, a geophysicist from California Institute of Technology, said some of the proposals are "considerably ahead of any government agreements" in nuclear disarmament.

President Grover Cleveland accepted the Statue of Liberty from France on behalf of the United States on Oct. 28, 1886.

Run for Your Life!

Stricken by heart attacks, these businessmen slipped into track shoes instead of rockers; you, too, can attain better health by following their example

By CHARLES CURTIS

SYD MEADOWS was celebrating his 65th birthday. His heart was scarred by what doctors called a complete left bundle branch block, a left axis deviation, and an anterior mycardial infarct. In short, a heart attack.

He balanced his old legs astride the starting line of the running track in Cleveland's Central YMCA. He had made a proud and possibly foolish birthday claim, promising to run ten miles without stopping. A skeptical crowd had come to watch.

Bill Cumler's gun exploded and Meadows was off running barefooted, a pacemaking companion at his elbow. As he whirled into the first turn, the crowd watched with open mouths. This was no ancient eccentric about to commit suicide but a powerful man in fine physical shape. As the laps fell behind, Cumler heard a remark: "That guy could drop dead. What's he trying to prove?"

Cumler, physical director of the Y's Businessmen's Club, knew the answer. Meadows was proving that a man's arteries can be rejuvenated and made fit for a vigorous life at almost any age, provided they are free from disease. He would also prove that running was one of the world's easiest, safest, and most pleasant exercises.

FOUR YEARS AGO, Meadows had asked for a checkup. After running in place for 60 seconds, he was near collapse. "What'll I do?" he panted. "Start running," he was told. Cautiously, he was led through gradually toughening grades of running, swimming, and calisthenics. In four months, his pulse had dropped from 98 per minute to 58.

At the seven-mile mark, his pacemaker dropped out, but Grandfather Meadows plowed ahead. After the 243rd lap—ten miles—he trotted to a stop. The "old man" had run the incredible distance in 71 minutes, 11 seconds.

Meadows' feat, which can be matched in large degree by dozens of other Cleveland businessmen, is evidence of a growing understanding on the part of the public as well as medical men of the benefit of vigorous exercise. Dr. Paul Dudley White blazed the trail with his ardent advice to walk or to ride a bicycle as often as possible. Dr. Edward L. Bortz of Lankenau Hospital, Philadelphia, says, "It appears that exercise is the master conditioner for the healthy and the major therapy for the ill."

WILLIAM ROGERS, who runs Cleveland's airports and harbors, is a distinguished example. Now 65, he had his first heart attack in 1935, his second in 1956. Either one could have put him on the shelf for the remainder of his days. When he got out of the hospital, he went to Cumler and told him, "I want to exercise. My doctor says it's okay."

At this time, five years ago, Cumler was feeling his way. His new program was just taking hold, modeled on the research of Dr. Thomas Kirk Cureton, director of the Physical Fitness Research Laboratory at the University of Illinois. Its "secret" was a technique called progressive overloading. On a supervised basis, a man was encouraged to work just a bit beyond comfort every day, resulting ultimately in a tremendous increase in endurance. The working-up process could take up to six months—and in the case of a heart-attack victim, up to two years.

But Rogers was a prominent citizen and a two-time loser to heart disease. Was it safe? Cumler recalled a medical-journal account of sitters and walkers among the heart patients of a sanatorium. The walkers were permitted to climb a hill every day, and at the year's end they had suffered 70 percent fewer casualties than the sitters.

Before he allowed Rogers to enroll, they had it out. "This can cost you your life, but if you'll do it gradually and quit when I say, we'll try it," he said. They started work in the pool. Rogers walked its width once. Cumler ordered, "Out!"

"You're kidding," Rogers protested.

"Out!" Cumler said, and made it stick.

On his second visit, he was allowed to walk across and back through the water. On his third, he swam a single width. A gradual increase of work load is the essence of Bill Cumler's reconditioning method, and tests are taken before and after each session for blood pressure and pulse.

If you were in Miami last winter, you might have seen a lovely lady hiking swiftly along the beach for block after block while, offshore, a powerful swimmer paced her through a fast half-mile. They were Mr. and Mrs. William Rogers (who doesn't swim), enjoying their favorite sport.

Today, white-haired Bill Cumler is Cleveland's high priest of fitness. A few years ago, he was an overweight, jittery ex-YMCA secretary newly assigned to the Y's anemic Businessmen's Club. Now, club membership is more than 450. Swimmers pursue a scientific program, and two dozen times a week the most rugged company of businessmen in America gather for 45 minutes of hard, nonstop calisthenics, wind and weight work.

FOR YEARS, medical men have debated the value of exercise, plagued by a lack of research on human beings. When Dr. Herman Hellerstein of the Cardiovascular Research Department, Western Reserve University Medical School, heard of the Cleveland Y's program, he led a team of physicians and students to examine Bill Rogers and 17 other cardiacs who were exercising regularly. After a study of his findings, he said recently, "This is the shape of things to come. The Y should magnify its program tenfold."

The lesson is clear. You must walk (or swim) before you can run. But first consult your family doctor. If he approves, walk one block vigorously each day for a week. Add an extra block each week. When you can walk a mile without tiring—and if your doctor consents—you can begin jogging. Try 100 paces the first week, and build up gradually. After a while, if evidence of Bill Cumler's classes at the Cleveland Y is typical, you will discover that the springs of eternal youth are in your own body.

Run—If Your Doctor Says So

Ask your doctor for a health survey, review of your medical history, and laboratory tests. Ask him about an exercise program. He may recommend the individualized courses available at many YMCA's or other facilities. Or he may say, "Start walking, but work up slowly." Whatever you do, don't rush any exercise—and don't disregard your doctor's advice.

Tilt!

Oh, why is his temper out of kilter?
His wife is a rearview mirror tilter!
And while he's driving, she blithely tips
The mirror to fix her hair and lips,
And leaves it tilted the wrong direction.
And though she's pleased with her own reflection,
Her husband's glowering glances hint
Of dark reflections we couldn't print!

"What are we watching now, Alice? I've forgotten."

A confirmed do-it-yourselfer assured his wife he could replace a broken window. After taking measurements of the pane, he went out to buy the glass.

"It's quite a simple job," said the owner of the hardware store. "All you do is take out the old glass, fit in a new pane, fill in with some putty around the edges—and there you are!"

An hour later, the do-it-yourselfer showed up again at the hardware store. The clerk greeted him happily.

"We have the same size pane of glass all ready for you, sir," he said. —Dan Bennett

Beauties of Autumn

Now is the time
That is truly sublime;
No long, noisy weekends,
no desperate haste;
The weather is cool,
The kids back in school,
And the summer replacements
are being replaced.

The nicest thing about drip-dry suits is that they give men equal rights on the shower-curtain rod. —Walter Samuels

The youngster had just finished his first week of school, and his parents anxiously awaited a report.

"How did you do at school?" the father asked.

The boy was crestfallen. "Not so good," he replied.

"You mean you didn't learn anything?" the father asked with great concern.

"Well," said the child, "I learned that I need a vaccination, my eyes are weak, my teeth need fixing, and that I have a propensity for shyness." —Frances Benson

His wife came in from shopping and had bad news: she'd just damaged a fender. Even worse, she hadn't taken the license number of the other car. "Well, what kind of a car was it?" the husband demanded impatiently.

"I don't know," the wife replied. "You know I can't tell one car from another."

The husband decided it was time she learned. For the next week, whenever they were driving, he made her name each car they passed until she was an expert at recognizing auto makes.

About a week later, she came bounding in from shopping. "Darling," she said brightly, "you'll be so happy. I just hit a car—and I'm certain it was a Buick!"

THE DAY WE SAILED WITH FEAR

By ERIC HATCH

IT HAPPENED during the war. About 30 days after D-Day I was on a Liberty ship creeping across the channel from England to France. There were about 1,000 men aboard, including my outfit. I was a civilian specialist in command of the combat loudspeaker trucks of the Third Army, part of the Psychological Warfare Division.

It was a rough trip; not weatherwise, but the channel was full of U-boats—and fog, which made it easier for the U-boats. None of us knew what awaited us on Omaha Beach. None of us had ever been to war before. The fog and the knowledge that the U-boats were there, all around us, preyed on the men's nerves.

Like men everywhere on their way to war, they were frightened. Like men everywhere who are frightened, they felt the need of God's help. On Saturday night word reached the commanding officer that the men wanted church services the next morning. Of course, the services would have to be nonsectarian for there were men of every faith and creed on board. But there was no chaplain. Because I had once been master of ceremonies of a network radio show, the commanding officer asked me to hold services.

NEVER WILL I FORGET that Sunday morning. We were at anchor somewhere in mid-channel. I was conducting the services from the bridge deck. As we finished the first hymn and then joined in the Lord's Prayer, we paused, and I said, "Now for a moment or two, let's each of us worship in silence, each according to his own faith."

The Christians among us knelt or bowed their heads; the Jewish men put on their helmets. I was deeply moved. After a few hymns, it was time for the sermon. I had never preached a sermon, nor even read the lesson in church. It did not matter because I spoke from the heart. At the end I spoke about fear—fear of battle and, worse, the fear of being afraid. I said in closing:

"You—none of you—need worry about fear. You don't need to be afraid because just as He builds the staunch oak tree with all the strength it needs to withstand the violence of the tempest, God has built into each of us the strength and the courage to do anything, to meet any test, to face any enemy that He may call upon us to face."

The next morning the ship was moving again, in fog so thick you couldn't see the bow from the bridge. We knew we were close to shore because ahead of us were the thud and crash of heavy gunfire. I was in the commanding officer's stateroom with two or three other men, drinking coffee. I think all of us were trying hard to pretend we were somewhere else —anywhere else. Suddenly the first mate burst into the room, moving fast and breathless. The C. O. was sitting on a big sea chest. The mate said, "Move, please, sir! I've got to get in there in a hurry!"

The C.O. got up. "What's going on here?" he asked. "Why the sweat?"

"Skipper thinks we got off course in the fog. Says we're heading smack into Le Havre." The Germans still held Le Havre.

The mate went on: "He's burned the ship's papers." He flung open the chest and began taking out guns. He's ordered me to arm the officers and some of the crew." He went to the doorway, sort of grinned, and said, "So long—soldiers."

I felt my stomach heave and my hands start to tremble. I was scared sick—literally. I didn't want any of these men, men I knew well, to know it. I wanted to be alone. I followed the mate out the door and made my way down the corridor to the deck and then down a companionway to the foredeck. Here little knots of enlisted men were standing around, trying to see through the fog. It didn't take much observation to know that what the skipper had told the mate had spread through the ship like a prairie fire. Nobody spoke. Except for the sighing sound of the ship slipping through the water and the distant thump and thud of the big guns, it was as still as—as still as death.

I went over and sat down on a corner of the main forward hatch. It's much easier not to show you're trembling if you're sitting down. For a few minutes I was alone. Then a boy named Sydney came up to me. His face was ashen.

"Say, Mr. Hatch," he said. "Can I talk to you?"

"Of course. What is it?"

"You know all that courage you said I had in that sermon you preached yesterday?" I nodded. "Well, I've got news for you, sir. You were wrong, Mr. Hatch; I haven't got it. I'm scared ————" He used a highly descriptive word. "God may have given everybody else that built-in courage you talked about, but He left me out."

I blew a gasket. "You sit down here!"

HE DROPPED onto the hatch cover beside me. For 10 minutes straight without stopping, I lit into him, indignant, furious that he dared question not what I had said, but the very idea that God would create a man and leave him unequipped to do the things he must do. At the end of the 10 minutes, I wasn't quite certain that I had convinced Sydney, but my rage had gotten me over my fear—for the moment. He got up and said, "Thank you very much for trying to help me."

So I'd lost. He walked off and stood dejectedly by the rail. About an hour later the fog lifted and the sun came out and the ship turned hard a-starboard, in time to keep clear of Le Havre. That afternoon we landed on Omaha Beach. My moment of inspiration came a couple of months later when I was back in Paris on leave. I hadn't seen Sydney since we'd left Normandy. One day at the Crillon Hotel I bumped into one of the Psychological Warfare officers from First Army Group at lunch.

"Say," he said, "remember your friend Sydney?"

"You bet I do," I said. "A nice boy, but a little on the nervous side."

"Nervous?" said Ed. "He got decorated for bravery last week. Went into a patch of woods alone and flushed out a machine gunner. You know what, Eric? The little son of a gun's turned out to be one of those weird characters you find in a war—one of those guys who don't know what fear is."

I opened my mouth and shut it again. You can't talk about a miracle, even a small miracle, in a hotel dining room. Since that moment, in the war and afterward, whenever I have faced a crisis I have remembered this and found new strength. I don't have to be afraid. In truth, I can't be afraid for long. It would be letting Sydney down—and God.

They were untested soldiers facing battle when this noted writer delivered a sermon that proved as sustaining in peace as in war

Carbon costs you money. A tiny bit extra on a vital engine part can waste a tenth of the gasoline you buy, cost you 50 cents or more every time you fill up. Why is this so?

Carbon hurts your engine. It increases roughness. Fouls spark plugs. Runs up repair bills.

Gulf gasolines control carbon. Gulf's exclusive refinery processes refine out dirty-burning, deposit-forming elements.

Result: cleaner-burning performance, faster pick-up, fewer repairs. Just try Gulf. You'll like the driving. You'll like the saving, too.

Tinkers and housewives have become rich, so why not you? All you have to do is know

Nothing says lovin' like something from the oven and Pillsbury says it best

New kind of pie . . . Red Cinnamon Apple!

Because you know a little boy who loves apple pie...

you put your whole heart into doing for him. And it's because you care so much that you begin with Pillsbury's BEST. (Pre-sifted? Of course; for years!)

Sift or not? You decide. The reason you sift is to measure. When you want the accurate measurement that guarantees your very BEST pie crust, sift before measuring.

Apple Pie news! Flavor livelier, color brighter . . . with little red cinnamon candies. Special pastry twist makes pastry fail-proof. See the recipe in our flour sacks right now. A Bake-Off winner from Xenia, Ohio . . . to Pillsbury . . . to you.

A MILLION-DOLLAR IDEA!

what's needed, satisfy the need—and protect your brain child

PEOPLE PROBABLY laugh when you say, "I've got a million-dollar idea!"

Well, the laugh may be on them. In spite of all you hear, this is still the day of the valid patent on gadgets which can make a fortune for you. Rather than laugh, I assure you that the Golden Age of the independent inventor, the "loner," is still very much with us—today more than ever.

Our country's history is bright with examples of the modest one-man break-through that paid off. William G. Kendall got $25,000 for his self-closing top for talcum-powder cans. An Illinois farmer named Joseph Glidden received $60,000 for his invention of barbed wire and a royalty of 25 cents on every 100 pounds manufactured. The Minnesota grocer who met his customers' need for a handy carrier by inventing the shopping bag was soon manufacturing and selling them by the millions. Ponder that humble metal cap next time you pry one off a bottle: it made its inventor, William Painter, a wealthy man.

Things like that couldn't happen now? Our economy is too highly organized? Don't kid yourself. Look at Edwin H. Land of Massachusetts and his Polaroid camera. Take Bill Lear of California, with his long list of aircraft-navigation and safety devices. With the help of patent protection, both these self-taught men made it to the top in fields dominated by giant competitors. They are not alone.

Ever think twice about the problem of stacking supermarket baskets? Somebody did. He now has a patent on that collapsible rear gate in each wheeled cart. Nothing momentous, but the gates flip inward to save valuable space by making the otherwise bulky baskets nestle compactly.

Women Can Cash In, Too

Don't think that only men can think up profitable gadgets. The popular "Jonny" mop, a disposable mop for cleaning bathroom porcelain, was invented by Dorothy F. Rodgers, wife of the famed composer Richard Rodgers. Sometimes a household time-saver invented by a woman takes time to win the favor of other women. The first patent on a contour sheet, for example, was issued in 1903 to Delina Grattin, but it was years before this type of sheet caught on with housewives.

For those who are not self-starters, the National Inventors Council in Washington publishes regularly a list of "Inventions Wanted by the Armed Forces and Other Government Agencies." You can pick up a free copy at any Department of Commerce field office in the country, or write the Department for its latest Cumulative List. More than 50 percent of all patents are issued to private inventors, and anyone with an inventive turn of mind will find this list an exciting clue sheet to our current needs.

But aren't most of those needs too technical for the average inventor? Aren't they the kind that call for elaborate, costly equipment?

Many are, but there are other needs on this list which challenge almost any good theorist or skilled mechanic. Some 98 percent of patents go to male inventors, but what's to prevent a woman from solving the big Air Force problem of keeping birds off high-speed sled-testing tracks, for example, without killing the birds? Many a town council struggling to keep its public buildings clean would also pay generously for that one.

Could you develop a gadget to tell when machinery is about to break down, without dismantling it? Or invent a self-cleaning oil filter? A cheap industrial adhesive tape from waste material? A screw or bolt that doesn't have to be turned so much? A quick, reliable method of coupling hoses? Instant sauces, dressings, or bread mixes?

Have you a test gadget to warn when flashlight batteries are about to burn out, so they won't fail in emergencies? Better still, can you come up with a dry-cell battery that will last indefinitely by some self-renewal process?

If so, get in touch with us. It isn't necessary, but if you like, you can do what an Oneida, N. Y., boy did when he found himself with two fine brainstorms: one an improvement on roller skates, and the other a darkroom gadget. He and his family came to Washington, where our staff steered him through the maze of 500 categories and 55,000 subcategories he would have to search to learn if someone had beaten him to the same ideas.

As with most would-be inventors who tackle the chore unaided, it was a sobering experience for this 16-year-old. Fortunately, it was not a discouraging one. He went home dazzled by the wealth of new ideas he found in our files. Many were in the public domain. That meant he could use them freely because the 17-year period during which a patent pays royalties to the inventor had expired. This youngster hasn't applied for any patents yet, but we expect to hear from him. (Incidentally, there are no age or sex limits on seeking a patent. You don't even have to be a citizen.)

Get Professional Help

Two things are sobering about our files. Sometime this month the U. S. Patent Office, which was founded in 1790 by George Washington and later reconstituted by Congress under Section 8 of the Constitution "to promote the Progress of Science and useful Arts," will issue Patent No. 3,000,000. We currently receive about 80,000 applications a year and grant some 55,000 patents. All 3 million patents issued to date, together with their often massive paper work, jam our facilities to the bursting point. Even with our help, their bulk alone staggers an inventor trying to make his own search, and patents are in language which takes for granted "ordinary familiarity with the art." Often that requires an engineering background.

If you think you have a million-dollar idea—whether it's a pioneering break-through or just a useful improvement—we recommend that you do not do as the Oneida boy did. For your own sake, you should communicate the idea in detail to a properly authorized patent attorney, along with drawings and notes of your earliest thinking about it—dated and signed by witnesses.

For 45 cents you can obtain from us a register, arranged alphabetically and by states, of patent attorneys who have passed rigorous examinations to qualify for practice before the U. S. Patent Office. These attorneys do not advertise. I cannot urge you too strongly to avoid anyone calling himself a patent agent who does advertise. Their low-low fees of six to ten dollars for a preliminary search are obvious come-ons. How much of a really qualified professional man's time do you think you get for six dollars?

What It Will Cost

A reputable patent attorney will make a thorough preliminary search for $75 to $125. If he finds you have something, he will help prepare descriptive drawings, specifications, and claims for your patent application. The wording of each claim is vital. Here these lawyers, many of whom are also engineers, again prove their worth by getting you complete protection. The Patent Office fee for filing an application is $30, with a $1 fee for each claim above 20. Another $30 is payable when the patent issues. These fees are real bargains: they haven't gone up in 168 years.

If your lawyer tells you your idea is not patentable, believe him. The amount of time people waste inventing things that have already been invented is frightening. One help along this line will come when, as I hope, we microfilm all 3 million of our patents and put them in libraries across the country. That way, with the information handy, inventors can get a fair idea for themselves before calling on a patent attorney.

Another spur we hope to offer American inventors is data-processing by computers. With electronic brains to speed up the search of every claim, we may yet catch up with the "information explosion" of modern technology. Now it takes three to three-and-a-half years for a patent to issue.

But don't let that discourage you. Even while you wait, agencies (which you can check on with us) or your local Better Business Bureau can bring together you, your million-dollar idea (patent applied for), and interested manufacturers. Normally, a businessman will not even look at an idea unless you have at least applied for a patent because unprotected ideas often lead to expensive lawsuits.

The patent system, which Lincoln said has added "the fuel of interest to the fire of genius," is being steadily improved to protect you for a reasonable time while you share the fruits of your genius with your fellow men. For your own sake, take advantage of it intelligently. And—who knows?—for the sake of your country's survival.

By CURTIS MITCHELL

Gay Currie chats with an orphaned Iranian boy. She soon discovered many like him, homeless and

SOME OF THE wasting babies lay in cribs, three or four jammed into a space meant for one. Older infants sat on shelves like blackbirds on a wire, jammed shoulder to shoulder, legs swaddled, prevented from falling off by a seat-belt arrangement made of iron piping. All day long they sat there, stinking skeletons in dripping diapers that were changed once daily, cruelly scabbed on head, face, and arms.

"I mustn't get sick," nurse Gay Currie told herself. They had been through other rooms like this and would go on to others. The Teheran Foundling Home, designed for 250 children, held 680 infants, all three years old or less, almost none able to walk, each desperately malnourished and ill of diarrhea.

She had come to the home by accident. Director Ahbtin of the State Public Health Department had rumbled into the office of the chief American health official in Iran. "I want to show you something terrible," he warned; and Gay Currie, full of enthusiasm for serving her country as a public-health nurse in the backward land once called Persia, drew the assignment. It changed her life. It also changed the lives of countless orphans of that ancient kingdom.

"What can we do about this?" the Iranian official asked.

What could they do? The facts were disheartening. Trained help was not available. No reputable physician, Gay learned, would attend the institution because of its inept policies. Its staff consisted mostly of ignorant slatterns who worked 24-hour shifts for $10 a month.

Yet the orphanage staff did not mean to abuse those tots from the gutters. With knowledge, they could do better. Given instruction, they would respond.

"Could I open training courses for your help?" Gay asked. This could be the beginning, she hoped, of better treatment for foundlings.

The government approved her idea of a training course. She taught 30 of the brightest girls in the home, demonstrating the latest equipment for baby care. After six weeks, a pleased government celebrated their graduation day with ceremonies and fanfare. Now things would be better. But the nurses went back to their posts and found the same filthy utensils and inadequate equipment. Their superiors were content with the old. "It's our way," they said.

Nurse Currie excused them, saying: "We must make them understand that new ways are better." She organized seminars which brought together staff members from the home and prominent pediatrists for professional discussions. Their communication was strained and unproductive. She asked for lists of the drugs and foods dispensed. They revealed many odd facts. Drugs, foods, and materials had been purchased and used—but evidently not by the orphanage. Highly placed medical men only shrugged at her story. "Don't get us involved," they said.

She Finds an Ally

Her frustration and her dogged persistence in seeking a way through indifference and red tape won the sympathy of a young American named Joe Fox of the U.S. Information Service. He shared his knowledge of Eastern ways and wiles and bolstered her spirits. He would soon become an invaluable ally.

But their every effort was thwarted. When they enlisted help of the community, the obstacles soon discouraged all but the most dedicated. When they tried a model ward, unsympathetic administrators denied Gay its use.

"I hated myself for failing," she recalls. "I'd been in Iran for months, and those babies were still starving."

At the end of her tether, she prayed. Gay Currie's faith is such that her communication with God is constant, close, and unquestioning: "I asked Him to show me a way out."

Director Ahbtin of the Health Department swept into her office one day bursting with good news. "I'm going to move 250 babies," he said. "I've wangled enough money to rent tunately, he was well able to afford.

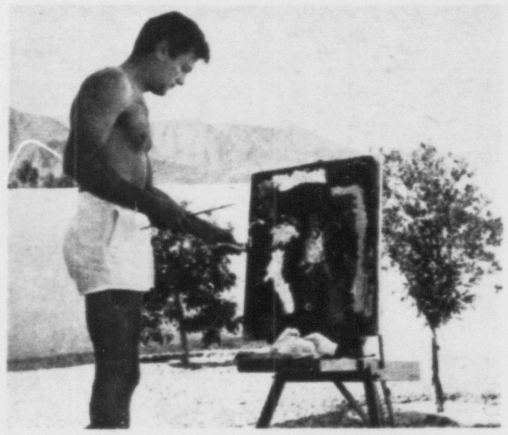
Usually, when Tony gets a new interest he goes all out, and, of course, invariably I get involved. Take cameras. It happened almost overnight. Once cameras caught his interest, he bought all the equipment he could possibly use. That was only the beginning. I couldn't move around the house without his suddenly shouting, "Hold it!" and hearing the click of the shutter. It occurred anywhere—when I was on the kitchen stool, holding the baby, or, oh yes, sitting in the bathtub.

Tony's various projects—astronomy,

French, art collecting, music—keep me on my toes, and occasionally our house in a mess. One day he came home with a toy submarine and worked on it until 5 o'clock the next morning. Then he left all the little parts, screws, and instruments scattered on the floor. He used just about every household tool we owned, but when I tried to take back a screwdriver for my own use, he refused to let me touch it for fear I'd mislay one of the model's pieces.

I kept threatening to throw out the whole mess but failed to impress him—until I returned home one day after a tennis game and found the toy submarine and all the little parts gone. To this day, I don't know if he finished the model or just threw everything out.

The fun of having a husband with so many varied projects more than compen-



sates for minor drawbacks. For instance, Tony is very clothes-conscious. In fact, he and Jose Ferrer had a running contest to see who could outdo the other in dressing up. One day we visited Jose and his wife Rosemary Clooney, and Tony carefully dressed in a matador's suit. When we arrived at the Ferrers', Jose was wearing a conservative, beautifully tailored suit, but as soon as he saw Tony he excused himself, dashed to his bedroom, and soon reappeared —in a traditional British hunting outfit complete with bright red coat!

Tony's interest doesn't stop with his own clothes. He helps me with mine as well. If he can't accompany me on a shopping trip, I take the dresses home on approval so he can see them before I buy them. He even supervises my hairdresser, and since his likes vary so, I sometimes don't recognize myself in the mirror!

I suppose some wives might take exception to all his hectic enthusiasms, but I can tell them something: life's never a bore with Tony, and I can't imagine myself wanting any other way of life.

Noted beauty consultant answers questions about face creams

Can Face Creams Iron Out Wrinkles?

by Helen F. Porter

IF I HAD a dime for every time I've been asked whether face creams help when it comes to wrinkles, I'd have salted away a pretty penny by now.

For if there's one thing I've heard over and over again as a beauty consultant, it's those troubled questions about facial wrinkles from women of all ages. What about you? Have you been disappointed in the way face creams fail to smooth out those little laugh lines, or those character lines around your mouth?

Well, from long experience I can tell you that no cream is going to iron away wrinkles. But at the same time, let me tell you about a face cream I've recently come across that I think is just what women have been hoping for. First of all, it's light, greaseless and it's poly-unsaturated. It smooths into your skin almost instantly and goes right to work on wrinkles . . . helping to soften the crevices, smooth facial lines and stave off the appearance of new wrinkles. Especially if you give yourself a nightly facial with it the way I do.

Before you go to bed, just cleanse your face, then pat it with a warm washcloth to open the pores so that your skin is ready to receive the full benefits of this poly-unsaturated cream. Next, smooth it on with your finger tips, up and out from your chin and circling very gently around your eyes. Then, and this is important, give special attention to any little wrinkles. Take a bit of extra cream on your finger tip. Then use that finger like an iron — gently pressing and releasing. The contraction and relaxation of this action works on the fatty layer below the skin and stimulates circulation.

Afterwards, while you sleep, (did you know sleep is the time when skin cell renewal is at its peak?) this poly-unsaturated cream supplies the new skin cells with poly-unsaturates.

These elements with the tongue-twister name are about 50% more abundant in healthy young skin at 20 than in skin at 40. And the unique formula of this cream contains all 3 "essential poly-unsaturates" in totally fresh form, the one form that makes them potent.

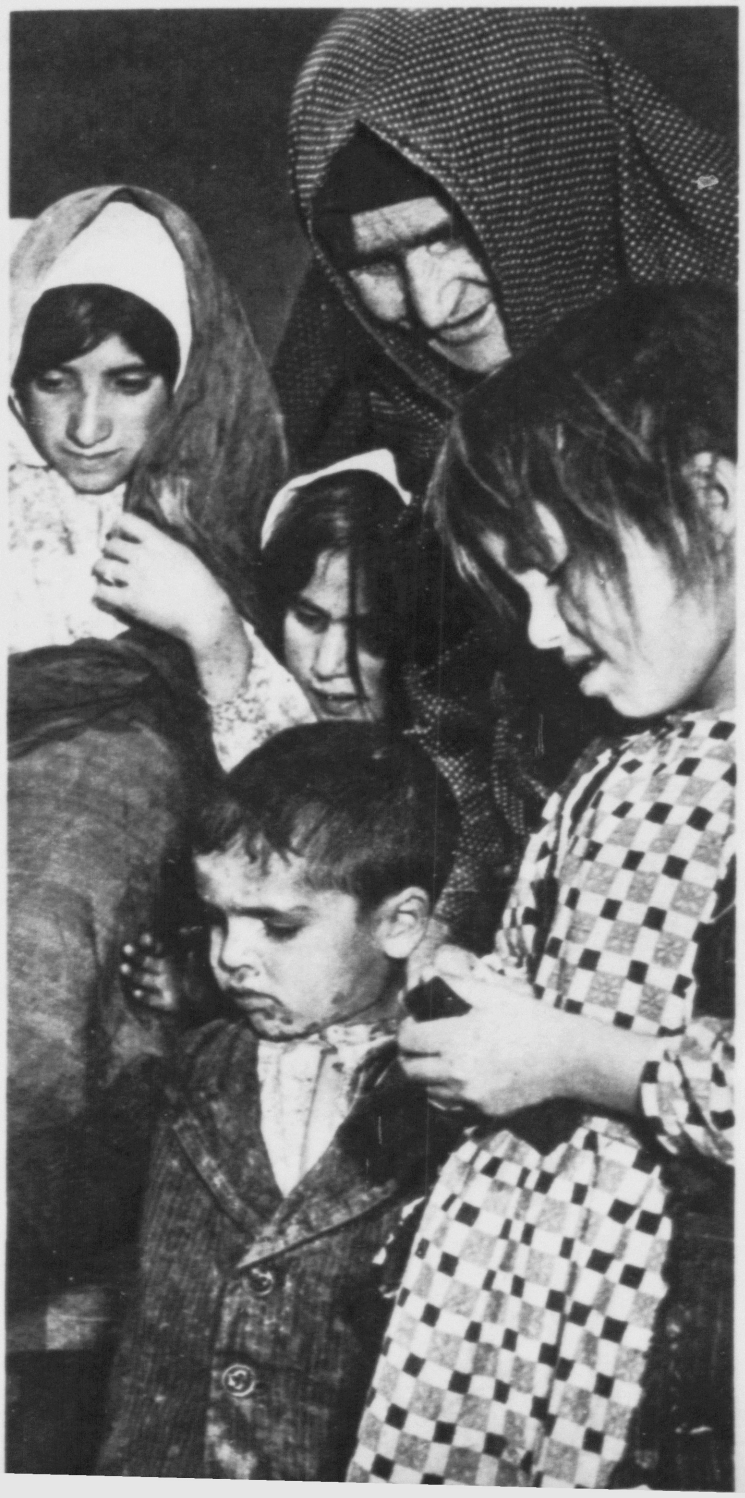
The name of this cream, in case you're wondering, is Polyderm, and it's made by Prince Matchabelli. I do wish you'd give it a try, because I feel sure you'll be dedicated to Polyderm once you start using it regularly. For, if what happened to me happens to you (and I have a hunch that it will from all the enthusiastic letters I've been receiving lately) before you know it, you'll be taking a second look at yourself in the mirror—delighted to see how much softer, smoother, and younger looking your skin is.

But before you go out and buy Polyderm, I thought you'd like a chance to try it yourself to see whether you like the feel of it on your skin (and of course to see whether you like what it does for you). That's why I've arranged to have a week's supply, trial-size jar made available. If you'd like one, just send 25¢, your name and address to Polyderm, P.O. Box 57, Mt. Vernon, N. Y. If you just can't wait to get started, you'll find Polyderm at leading U.S. and Canadian stores for $2, $3.50, $5 plus tax.

Lady"

Gay Currie is an American with her own kind of aid for underdeveloped countries—a faith and understanding that give foundlings a new life

ill-fed. But her work changed their lives—and her own.



another home. Please come and see it." The building they visited was dark and cavernous, and Gay's imagination filled it with all the old horrors—but she had an idea.

Were not well babies more important to Iran than sick? she asked. The words came unbidden. "Sir, you should set up a model home. You should take 50 babies and prove that modern methods have merit. You can train nurses' aids, administrators, nutritionists, and interns, and serve all Iran."

Director Ahbtin threw up his hands. "But how will we finance this miracle?"

"We'll work night and day," Gay promised. "The money will come."

When the proper house was found, the wives of ambassadors, generals, and business tycoons got down on their knees with stenographers and schoolteachers to scrub it clean. Everywhere in Teheran, people began to talk of the Well-Baby Center, even in the royal palace. Now the tide really turned. At the old home, Queen Soraya walked in one day and cried with indignation. Soon, the directors resigned, and the Queen's own charity organization took over.

Moving day was Oct. 7, 1957. Led by Director Ahbtin, ladies of a dozen nations drove to the old foundling home. On that first trip, their quota was 30 babies.

Gay checked them in, keeping careful records. Swiftly, she noted that her quota of 30 had grown to 31. An American mother confessed: "He was lying there all fat and clean—somebody had just delivered him at the old home—so I brought him along." They called him their "stolen baby." Later, he would become the first to be adopted.

Babies Need Parents of Their Own

As her protégés blossomed, Gay looked ahead. They needed names and parents of their own. In Iran, adoption was frowned on by the religion of Islam. An adopted child had no legal status; it could not inherit property. Foreign adoptions were permitted, however. An American couple asked for a child. "We'll even take twins," they wrote. The home had a homely, hairy, button-nosed pair.

Gay said, "I have your twins but they are not pretty; indeed, I'm afraid they're downright ugly." That week, a second set as beautiful as alabaster dolls arrived. She wrote immediately to the Americans, offering them the dream pair.

They replied, "Your first letter brought us so much joy that we began thinking immediately of your 'ugly' twins as ours. We do not wish to change."

Inevitably, childless Iranians who had money and position, but no offspring, came to plead their cause, and Gay found a little-known custom that allowed a man to bring a child into his home if he declared it his blood offspring. Iranian husbands were soon eagerly declaring themselves the actual fathers of orphans.

The roster of the Well-Baby Center has a glorious record; more than 115 orphans have been adopted, 58 by Americans, a score by Iranians, the remainder by other nationalities.

Last February, Gay Currie left Teheran. In May, she went to a chapel near her home in Montreat, N.C., and married the same Joseph Fox whose wit and wisdom had cheered her through her worst moments in Teheran. They now live in Washington, D. C., while he prepares for another overseas assignment. Wherever he goes, she will go, too, as wife or nurse or both.

Today, Currie-trained girls are serving with unprecedented skill in many Iranian orphanages and clinics. Young pediatricians are abler because of their internship at the Well-Baby Center. And Iranian women by the score, released from futility and wornout customs, are serving the unfortunate.

Before Gay left Teheran a high-ranking Iranian came to the center to say good-bye. His words were those of a simple Moslem benediction. "God speed you, Gay Currie," he said. "And God speed us all, and God be praised that I have lived to see this day."

The Curtis charm means unpredictable tomorrows and chaotic todays—but his beautiful wife isn't complaining

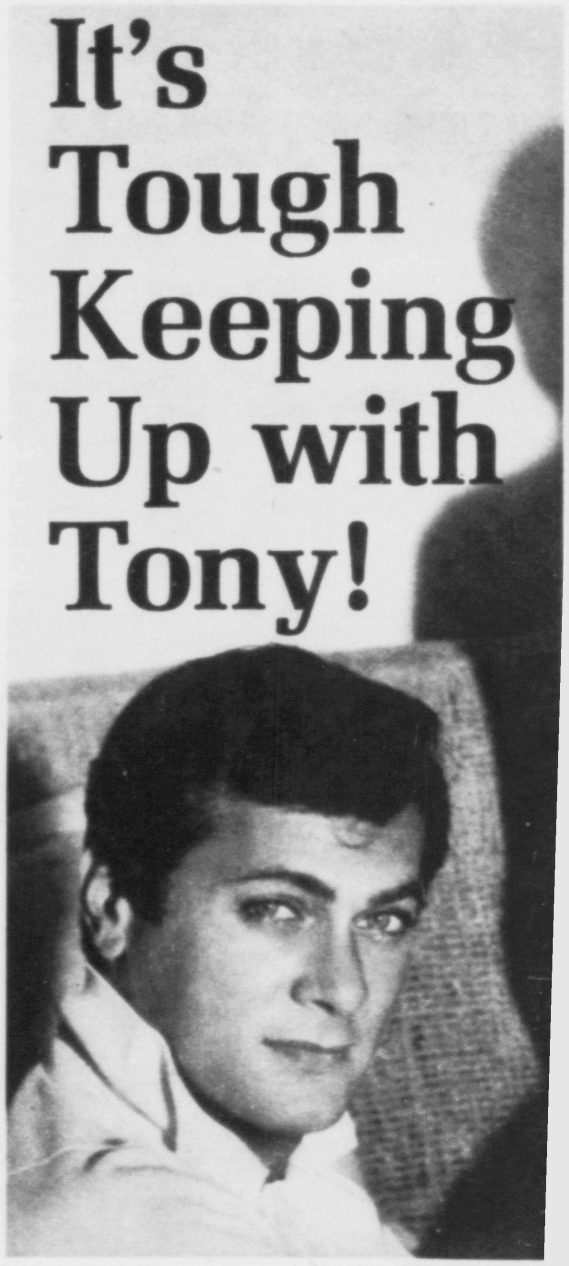
It's Tough Keeping Up with Tony!



DURING DINNER one evening, my husband Tony Curtis shocked no one when he announced that he planned to rent a private railroad car and hook it to a train to take us on a vacation to Mexico City.

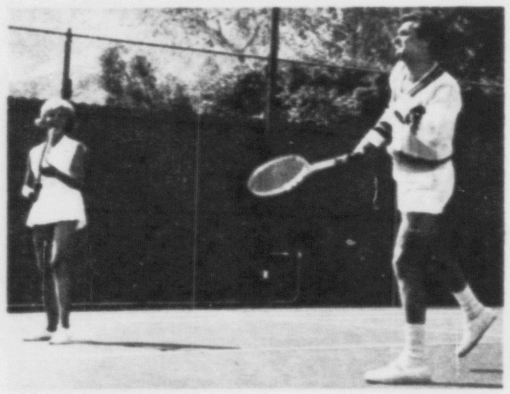
Tony got the idea when he read about a retired Pullman porter who invested part of his Irish Sweepstakes winnings by renting an entire railroad car and inviting his friends to take a trip across the country with him.

A suggestion like this coming from many husbands would have caught their wives quite by surprise. After 10 years of marriage to Tony, however, I've learned to look forward to these brain storms of his for the delight they add to our lives.

This doesn't mean it's easy to keep up with him, though!

Late last summer, for instance, he came home one evening with the news that he had rented a 105-foot cabin cruiser.

"Sounds delightful," I agreed, "but isn't it a little big for us?"



"We'll find some other couples to go along," he assured me.

I looked at him suspiciously. I could anticipate the answer to my next question. "And just how soon are we taking off on this venture?"

Tony looked at his watch. "We have an hour and 15 minutes to get ready."

Four days on a cabin cruiser might mean rest and relaxation for most husbands. Not for Tony. Although his prime reason for hiring the cruiser was to get away from the telephone and work, we were so busy fishing, swimming, playing cards, skin diving, and rowing boats that there was no time just to take it easy. I participated in all activities but one: I drew the line when it came to skin diving because I am petrified of sharks.

The difficulty of keeping up with Tony extends to his love of cars. This shows itself in our constant turnover of cars, which got us into trouble with the Government one year when we changed cars six times, no less.

One morning a Government agent called our business manager and demanded to know details of our used-car business, pointing out that anyone engaged in the business needed a special license and had to report and pay certain taxes.

Although our business manager assured him that Tony was in no such business, the official insisted on calling Tony direct and asking him for an explanation. He simply didn't believe that any one person could buy six cars in a single year without intending to make a profit on them! Tony finally convinced him that he wasn't in business or out to make money but only to enjoy his current hobby, which, for-
